'Phantom's' Panzer Army Is Shattered, Reds Claim

Nazis Lose 80,000 Men in 2 Days; Germans Advance Toward Crimea

(Detailed Stories, Pages 2 and 3.)

The Red army reported today it had smashed the crack panzer troops of Germany's blitzkrieg leader, Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, the phantom general of the French campaign. The Germans were reported to have lost 80,000 troops in the last two days.

Germany's iron general—the man who matched mechanization against the Maginot Line and won—was said to have been bested in a roaring battle of tanks, near Bryansk, 230 miles from Moscow.

The Soviet communique told of great Red operations on a curving central front extending from Yartsevo, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk, down past Yelnya to the Bryansk sector.

Loses Two-thirds of Force

Guderian was said to have lost "two-thirds of his effectives" in an explosive collision with massed Soviet tanks.

The Germans, making no mention of this theater on the Moscow approaches, dwelt principally upon the fighting about Leningrad and reported also that the thrust of their southern armies eastward from the lower Dnieper River toward the Donets Valley, the Crimea and ultimately the industrial basin of the River Don was proceeding with strong aerial support.

While the German people were asked again to have patience pending more news it was reported for the first time that Nazi big guns were firing freely into Leningrad.

Power Plant Bombed

More than 300 R. A. F. fighters escorted bomber squadrons over northern France yesterday to bomb the power plant at Bethune. The planes, flying in layer-cake formation, made up one of the strongest air fleets sent over the continent. One British bomber and seven fighters were lost.

Meanwhile from Ankara, Turkey, it was revealed Bulgaria has requested permission for eight Bulgarian destroyers, a submarine, three U-boats and a torpedo boat to pass through the Dardanelles into the Black Sea.

The request revived the rumor that Italian warships had been sold to Bulgaria, though this was denied by Bulgarian and Italian diplomats. This denial was taken more or less lightly, however, because the latest Jane's "Fighting Ships" lists no warships for Bulgaria.

In Teheran, Iran, hundreds of Russian troops and mechanized forces occupied strategic outskirts while both Russian and British staff officers watched the capital to forestall any friction with the Iranians.

Gorilla, DeGaullist Gift to President, Dies in Childbirth

St. Louis, Sept. 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt's gorilla, presented to him by Free French authorities, is dead.

Phil Carroll, adventurous animal dealer who captured the ferocious beast, said today the gorilla died in French Equatorial Africa after giving birth to a baby.

The animal, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing more than 400 pounds, had been offered to the President in a letter from Gen. De Larminant, high commissioner of the colony.

The White House agreed yesterday to accept it.

Henderson Approves Price Rise In Coal; Foods Up 8% in Month

Leon Henderson, price administrator, testified on Capitol Hill yesterday that prices of basic foodstuffs had increased 8 per cent in a month, and a few hours later announced that he had approved the 15-cents-a-ton increase in the price of hard coal.

Henderson revoked his recent emergency ceiling price schedule on the fuel after he had received from the producers "full and comprehensive data" supporting the increase.

Earlier Henderson appeared before the House Banking Committee in support of price-control legislation, informing members that prices of basic foodstuffs had gone up 8 per cent since committee hearings recessed a month ago.

Henderson is expected to conclude testimony for his price-control bill before the House group today, to be followed tomorrow by Bernard M. Baruch.

In revoking his emergency anthracite schedule, which fixed ceiling prices on the Pennsylvania product at levels prevailing August 15, Henderson explained it was imposed September 12 when the producers "failed to supply information" supporting the price advance.

At a conference with him yesterday, Henderson said all of the leading hard-coal producers agreed they would not raise prices beyond the levels announced Monday without prior consultation and approval of the Office of Price Administration.

The Price Administrator said he advised the producers that their action in disregarding the temporary price ceiling "represented a wholly unjustifiable act of defiance and one that would not be tolerated in the future."

"I cannot condemn such action too strongly," he said. "If followed by other industries it would threaten the whole structure of price stabilization."

The maximum prices established by the companies at the mines per net ton of 2000 pounds were $6.75 for the principal domestic sizes—broken, egg, stove and chestnut; $5.25 for pea coal; $3.90 for buckwheat No. 1; $3.05 for rice and $2.50 for barley.

Before the House Banking Committee yesterday Henderson had said there was "no question that wholesale prices everywhere are continuing to increase" and retail prices also are "beginning to move up in earnest."

He displayed a prepared daily index showing that 28 basic commod-

Committee to Select Schools Qualifying for Penny Milk

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

A city-wide committee upon whose shoulders will largely rest the outcome of growing efforts to obtain a penny milk program for undernourished Washington children was appointed by the Board of Education yesterday.

Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools, heads the group.

"It will be the major problem of the committee," he asserted, "to define low income areas of the city and to assist principals of buildings in determining families whose children should benefit by such a program."

Taking full cognizance of the importance of nutrition in the national defense effort, the school board also created a special committee to study the subject. Mrs. Ola Day Rush, head of the department of home economics in Divisions I-IX, will head the group, composed entirely of school officials and teachers.

In recommending formation of this committee, Haycock asserted: "The whole problem of nutrition of school children should have the consideration of this committee, including the milk program, school cafeterias, school luncheons and courses in home economics and health instruction."

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, board president, expressed hope it will be possible for the nutrition group to visit other cities to see first-hand what they are doing in this field.

The Agriculture Department's Surplus Marketing Administration, which administers the Federal surplus milk project, has ruled that a penny program may be instituted only in those low income area schools in which milk consumption would be increased at least 270 per cent as a result.

That is, even if a school—or group of schools—is eligible on the ground that 65 per cent of the enrollment falls in the relief or submarginal income brackets, it still could not obtain penny half-pints unless it could guarantee a nearly four-fold boost in consumption.

It will be the milk committee's job to select the schools which can meet the Federal requirements. Concurrently, several juvenile welfare agencies—settlement houses, nurseries, etc.—are applying for the one-cent milk, which is made possible by Federal subsidization.

Long Delayed

Keech Revises Bill to End 'Baby Broker' System in D. C.

Long delayed legislation to regulate child-placement agencies in the District moved a long stride forward yesterday.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech forwarded to the Council of Social Agencies a revised bill designed to correct faults discovered when the measure was drafted a year ago. Early approval by the council was forecast, following which the bill would be passed by the Commissioners and sent to Congress.

In February, 1940, The Post exposed evils of the existing "baby broker" system, in which infants and small children are exploited commercially by unregulated agencies and individuals who make placements.

The revised bill, which follows the line of model legislation recommended by the Children's Bureau, provides for establishment of a board which would study applications for licenses and make proper recommendations to the District Commissioners.

Licenses would be renewed annually. The board would consist of representatives of the Board of Public Welfare, Health Department and five private baby-placement offices.

"I believe it is a good, sound bill," commented Conrad Van Hyning, director of public welfare.

James W. Lauderable, assistant Corporation Counsel, who prepared the final draft submitted yesterday to the Council of Social Agencies, expressed the opinion that it will be on its way to Congress in a short time.

Instead of Present 'Hell Hole'

D. C. to Ask for Boys Training School as Site for Aged Home

Commissioner Guy Mason announced last night that the Commissioners would ask the Federal Government for the property of the National Training School for Boys as a new location for the Home for Aged and Infirm.

Subject of a Congressional investigation last year, and target of adverse criticism by Mrs. Roosevelt and of numerous welfare officials, the Blue Plains Aged Home was inspected yesterday by the three city heads, and in the words of Commissioner Mason, "we found a deplorable, abominable and appalling situation."

The training school, a Federal institution, is located on Bladensburg Road Northeast. It is situated high on a hill and would be the ideal location for the poor farm, Mason asserted.

The aged and infirm of the city are "treated worse than criminals," Mason said.

"And the only crime the inmates have perpetrated on the public is the crime of growing old," he added.

The Blue Plains Home is situated on the banks of the Potomac, where fogs and the odors of the nearby sewage disposal plant combine "to make living unbearable," Mason continued.

Commissioner Mason said he understood the Federal institution in

President May Sign Tax Bill Today

New Loophole Plugging Measure Expected to Add Further Revenue

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A $3,553,400,000 tax bill, drilling upward and downward into individual and corporate income for new revenue to help pay defense costs, yesterday completed its six-month journey through Congress.

Voice vote approval by the Senate of the final report already adopted by the House cleared the bill from the Capitol. The President is expected to sign it today.

A new loophole-plugging tax bill, which Chairman George, of the Senate Finance Committee, said should raise up to 250 million dollars more revenue, meanwhile was on the way.

Ready to Proceed

George said the Administration is ready to proceed with the awaited "administrative" tax bill at this session, and still another tax bill probably will follow next year.

He disclosed the coming loophole-plugging bill would be a revenue producer, even though it is aimed at technical reforms and elimination of inequities. Tightening of insurance company taxes and controversial community property State evasions may be included.

As the Senate placed the last legislative seal on the big defense revenue bill, the measure overshot by a bare $3,400,000 the original goal of 3½ billion.

Despite all-time high taxation, it fell two billion dollars short of revenue needed to pay two-thirds of defense operating expenses—the initial Treasury goal.

The bill as passed:

Broadened the tax base by cutting individual income tax exemption $50 for single persons, and $100 for married, started stiff new surtaxes on the first dollar of taxable income, imposed 5 to 6 per cent surtaxes on corporations in addition to normal rates, raised excess profits taxes 10 percentage points in each rate bracket, steepened estate and gift rates and heightened excises on a wide range of luxury, household and recreational articles and services.

Davis Urges Taxation System

Senate passage of the big bill followed explanation of the conference agreement by Senator George and brief interrogation by Senate sponsors of some Senate amendments eliminated in conference.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, protested elimination of exemptions for strategic metal industries from excess profits taxes. George said Senate conferees strongly supported the exemptions but House managers declined to yield.

Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, said the bill will force almost every American to "dig deeper" for taxes and urged Congress to "develop some orderly system of taxation and not rely on just arbitrary tax bills from time to time."

George told reporters one aim of the forthcoming administrative

50 Millions in Cash Given Right Away; Soviet to Repay It In Vital Minerals

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States yesterday opened its cash box for the first time to Soviet Russia, when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation arranged to provide 100 million dollars for Russia, to be repaid over two or three years in strategic minerals.

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones, acting at the request of President Roosevelt, immediately turned over to Amtorg the first ten million dollars, and said that another 40 millions will be advanced as it is needed during the next six weeks to replenish Russia's dwindling supply of dollar exchange.

Jones to Examine Statutes

Though yesterday's transaction was not, strictly speaking, a loan, Jones said that the cash advance against minerals "does not preclude" an unsecured loan to Russia at some future date.

There have been reports that the Administration contemplates a loan of one billion dollars, if need be, to keep the Russians fighting Hitler.

Jones told reporters yesterday that he would "have to examine the statutes" before being able to say whether an okay from Congress would be needed to make such a loan. He appeared before a House Banking and Currency Committee Tuesday to ask a billion and a half dollars more borrowing power.

Russia will use its new cash advance for purchase of war weapons here. In return, it has contracted to send the United States, at some undetermined future date, shipments of manganese, chromite, asbestos, platinum and other articles and materials which the United States usually imports from Russia.

Move to Prevent Debate

Officials took the view that the cash advance was for the purpose of "keeping the Russians going" until winter sets in and also to smooth passage in Congress for the President's request for a second lend-lease fund of $5,985,000,000 which is scheduled to go to Congress today.

Jones' announcement of the cash advance to Russia came on the eve of the President's new lend-lease request and was expected to prevent a floor debate in Congress on the policy of aiding Russia, which leaders fear might be embarrassing to the Administration's program of all-out aid to the Soviets.

The second lend-lease request is not expected to include funds for Russia, but the Administration is anxious to avoid giving members of Congress an excuse to tack onto the new bill a rider barring expenditure of any of the funds for aid to Russia.

As a matter of fact, the British government already has indicated that it will turn over to the Russians a large portion of the lend-

FBI Filmed Nazi Spy Suspect Outlining Plot to Blow Up Plant

By Pat McGrady
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 17.—A film, shot secretly by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and thrown on a screen in Federal Court today, showed Frederick Duquesne, 63, one of 16 defendants charged with espionage conspiracy, going over pictures of planes, guns, tanks and copious notes and diagrams.

Government witnesses—FBI Agent William Friedeman, who made the picture from an adjoining office, and Counter Espionage Agent William Sebold—testified that the silent film recorded Duquesne explaining American war secrets which he had stolen for Germany and discussing several sabotage projects, including the blowing up of the Schenectady (N. Y.) General Electric plant and the scattering of minute incendiary bombs on wharves.

The picture, which Friedman said was recorded in fast motion to obtain better lighting, showed Duquesne with Sebold in the latter's office. Much of the time he spoke so animatedly with his hands that sound effects were unnecessary to indicate his speech.

Friedeman's testimony before the showing served as subtitles.

"Duquesne advised Sebold to be

Roosevelt Shakes Up U. S. Export Control

New Power Put In Wallace's Hands; Army Gets Maxwell

President Roosevelt yesterday ordered a far-reaching expansion and shake-up in the Government's control over exports, a defense reorganization step second in importance only to his recent housecleaning of the Office of Production Management.

Placing broad new powers in the hands of Vice President Henry Wallace, as head of the Economic Defense Board, the President called for intensification of economic warfare against the totalitarian nations.

The Office of Export Control was centralized under the control of Wallace's Economic Defense Board.

Brig. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, who organized Export Control, was returned to an Army ordnance post and Milo Perkins, executive director of the board, was made czar of Export Control as well.

Wallace, who announces the changes and is credited with having authored them, moved at the same time to step up production of vitally needed raw materials of war, even if premium prices have to be paid to extract minerals from low-grade ores.

He said in a statement that he was asking the Economic Defense Board and the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board "for an action program under which we can step up the total amounts of raw materials available to us." Wallace is chairman of both boards.

Wallace made known that the increased supply of raw materials would not only be secured here, but from abroad, especially from Western Hemisphere countries. The Government is currently engaged in contracting for the bulk of the mineral output of several nations below the Rio Grande and

Convention Also Asks Neutrality Act Repeal, Backs Foreign Policy

By J. Norman Lodge
Associated Press Staff Writer

Milwaukee, Sept. 17.—The American Legion national convention, by voice vote, today indorsed the foreign policy of the President and Congress and urged immediate repeal of the Neutrality Act and removal of all geographical limitations on movement of United States troops.

The delegates swept aside a minority report which sought to forbid the National Administration's giving lend-lease aid to Soviet Russia. A roll call vote—first of the convention—showed a count of 874 to 604 in favor of tabling the report.

New Orleans in 1942

The defeated minority report of the foreign relations committee resolved:

"That the American Legion reiterate its oft-stated position on communism and definitely go on record as opposing aid to Russia under the Lease-Lend Act."

The defeat of Adolf Hitler is "our present national objective," the convention decided, and then voted a demand that "if fighting is necessary to defend the United States, we insist upon being prepared to do the fighting outside of the United States."

Near the close of the convention's most important business session the delegates accepted New Orleans' invitation to entertain the 1942 meeting, September 21 to 25, after Atlantic City, the other principal contender, withdrew.

The first fireworks of the day came when the foreign relations

Secret Proposal

Lewis Offers Plan to Reopen 'Captive' Mines Pending Accord

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O.'s United Mine Workers, yesterday offered a proposition for reopening the country's "captive mines" pending a full discussion of the controversy that caused a shutdown Monday.

Announcement of Lewis' offer was made by William H. Davis, chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board, after he had met with representatives of the miners and representatives of the mine owners.

Chairman Davis would not disclose the terms of Lewis' "proposition," and he told reporters that all of those who attended the meeting had been pledged to secrecy. It is to be considered at another meeting to be held at 11 o'clock this morning.

The strike in the captive mines—so-called because they are owned for the most part by the big steel companies which use their output—is one of the most serious that has yet confronted the Nation since the defense program got under way. Forty-three thousand miners in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia are involved.

The miners struck Monday for a union shop. Under a union shop all workers in the mines would have to become dues-paying members of the union within a certain time after being hired. Under a closed shop, a worker could not get employment until after he joined the union.

OPM officials said yesterday that prolongation of the strike would have a serious effect on the production of steel for defense.

If the mines stay closed a week more, they said, some of the blast furnaces in the steel plants will have to be closed. If they stay closed as much as 30 days, the OPM men said, there will be a "severe pinch."

Some steel companies buy their coal from commercial mines, but most of them—companies like United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel—get virtually all their coal from their own mines.

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday called on striking A.F.L. employes of the Kansas City Power & Light Co., to "return im-

Nazis Storm

Any Parisian Liable to Die As Hostage if Killings Go On

By the Associated Press

Vichy (Thursday), Sept. 18.—The German conquerors last night warned all Parisians that they were liable to be shot as hostages unless attacks on Nazi soldiers cease, and police in the occupied zone early today pressed house-to-house searches for hidden arsenals.

Up until midnight no further violence had been reported in either zone, but the stern warning followed the death of a Nazi noncommissioned officer who was shot in the back on a Paris boulevard Monday night.

[A British radio report heard in New York spoke of two German soldiers being killed and one wounded, but this appeared to be a recapitulation of attacks previously reported.]

Hitherto German firing squads have inflicted their multiple reprisals on those described as Communists and Jews. Now every German-controlled Paris billboard and newspaper carries the grave news that any Parisian, regardless of class, creed or occupation, may be shot.

Islands Off Central And South America Searched for Bases Of Axis Raiders

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Knox disclosed yesterday that the Navy has taken these steps to assure deliveries of war supplies to Britain and to protect the United States from attacks by raiders:

1. Warships of the Atlantic Fleet have begun convoying of merchant ships en route to England and the Navy is using all other possible methods of protecting such craft.

2. Plans for safeguarding American coastal waters against attack are complete and antisubmarine nets have already been laid in some harbors.

3. Islands off the coast of South and Central America were searched months ago for hidden Axis U-boat bases and the Navy is continuing to keep such possible raider hide-outs under surveillance.

Report Raider Sunk

A report that an American naval vessel had sunk an Axis raider in the Pacific was mentioned in an International News Service dispatch from Balboa, Canal Zone. It quoted Admiral Frank Sadler, naval commandant at Balboa, as saying in regard to the report:

"I have no news to release today on the matter."

Significantly, there came from Lisbon, Portugal, last night, news dispatches saying that the liner Excambion had been escorted into the port by the Navy-operated Coast Guard patrol boat Ingham, mounting two 5-inch guns. The Ingham had sailed from Lisbon Monday, met the Excambion at sea, escorted her to Lisbon, then immediately put to sea again.

South Pacific Raider

Secretary Knox told a press conference that the Navy "thinks" there is an Axis raider in the South Pacific, because one Dutch ship has been missing there for some time. He indicated that American warships were participating in a search of the area.

Knox's statement that American ships were escorting merchant convoys in the Atlantic was the first official admission that such naval activity was underway. Reporters called his attention to news accounts that New York harbor was crowded with merchantmen that had arrived in the past 36 hours, and asked if it meant that a convoy was being pre-

Windsors to Visit Baltimore After Stay at Ranch

The Duchess of Windsor will take her duke to Baltimore, her home town, for a visit when they come to the United States, the British press service announced yesterday.

Thus it was disclosed that the former Wallis Warfield would return to the city of her birth for the first time since she made history by winning the love of the King of England, bringing about his abdication and becoming his wife.

The Duke and Duchess, who will arrive in Washington September 25 en route to their ranch in Alberta, Canada, will visit Baltimore and New York on their return to the United States, probably about the middle of October.

Young Britons Prefer Death To Dance Ban

Venezuela Leader To Meet Today With Roosevelt

Former President Eleazar Lopez Contreras, credited with giving Venezuela back to the people, is scheduled to confer with President Roosevelt today in the first of a series of conferences on inter-American cooperation and hemisphere defense.

Gen. Lopez Contreras, commander of the Venezuelan armies, was welcomed on his arrival yesterday by a delegation including Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle and Brig. Gen. Sherman T. Miles, United States Army chief of intelligence. A reception in his honor was held last night at the Venezuelan Embassy.

Conferences with Vice President Wallace, Secretary of State Hull, Army Chief of Staff Marshall and others are expected to follow the talk with President Roosevelt.

Gen. Guderian Loses 20,000 Men Near Bryansk, Soviet Says

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Thursday), Sept. 18.—Red army troops have smashed the German panzer forces of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, the "phantom general of the French campaign," in a mammoth battle near Bryansk, 230 miles from Moscow, the Russians reported today.

The maximum German losses announced yesterday and today by the Russians totaled 80,000 including the 20,000 Nazi casualties in the battle with Gen. Guderian.

This was the latest big success contained in Soviet communiques detailing great operations on a curving central front extending from Yartsevo, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk, down past Yelnya to the Bryansk sector.

The big-fisted 53-year-old Gen. Guderian, who drove his panzer units in a lightning enveloping thrust behind the French Maginot Line in the summer of 1940, "lost two-thirds of his effectives" when he collided with hard-hitting Red tanks, the Soviet communique said.

The Germans at Bryansk were said to have lost: 20,000 men in dead, wounded and prisoners; 500 tanks; 70 armored cars; 1525 trucks; 195 airplanes; 85 heavy machine-guns, 51 trench mortars; several thousand rifles and large quantities of artillery and rifle ammunition.

The Russian communique supplement replied to German claims of having destroyed three Soviet armies in the Lake Ilmen district with an announcement that in a month of fighting there the Russians lost 30,000 killed and wounded, but the Germans lost 35,000 to 50,000.

Russian artillery losses, it said, were 42 guns as compared with the German claim of 695 guns. It added that only two or three dozen Russian tanks participated in fighting on the Ilmen front so the Reds could not have lost 320 tanks the Germans claimed.

Nazis Lose 10,000

At Yartsevo on the northern end of the central front the Germans were said to have lost 10,000 killed and wounded, 100 field guns and 100 mine-throwers, to Russians commanded by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko.

[The German general, Guderian, is rated as a great technician and Berlin said recently that he was using successfully a new tactic of mounting artillery pieces on tanks on the central front.

[Guderian was attached to the general staff in the World War, was the first man to step across the Austrian border when the anschluss was ordered and was toasted for his exploits in Poland, Holland and France.

[There is still some mystery as to just how Guderian got his heavy German tanks across the Maas River in less than 12 hours in his drive into the Low Countries in May, 1940.

[The Germans say he enters the thick of the battles himself and directs the charges of his panzer units by radio.]

Designed to Relieve Cities

Observers here received the impression long ago that the fierce and continuing Red counterattacks along the central front were designed to relieve pressure on besieged Leningrad in the north and Odessa in the south.

The early morning communique reported stubborn fighting all along the jagged front and continued Red aerial activity. On Monday alone Soviet airmen were said to have destroyed 78 German planes, losing 25 themselves.

Aside from the Bryansk and Yartsevo victories the Soviets gave details of other successes without reporting the specific localities.

The Nazis, military dispatches reported, had concentrated troops about Yartsevo for a direct drive on Moscow by the shortest route.

Second Nazi Offensive Routed

This second German offensive upon the capital, it was said, was routed with a series of punishing defeats of German tank and infantry divisions.

The Yartsevo area was reported now in Soviet control through an extension of widespread counter-attacks which previously had resulted in the recapture of the town of Yelnya, 60 miles east of Smolensk, and 26 Soviet villages to the southeast.

Mingled shouts for and against were heard throughout the spacious auditorium. There was bitter comment about "Bloody Joe" and the Communists. On the other side, there were declarations that the fight against Adolf Hitler was an American fight and that, while America need not approve of communism, it was purely a matter of good strategy to help Russia fight the Nazis.

"We'll take care of the Communists in this country when the proper time comes," one delegate shouted.

The foreign relations committee report was adopted by a voice vote after the minority's resolution was laid on the table.

On national defense, the convention voted a 20-point program, on general aspects of national defense, adopted 6 points dealing with the Army, 12 concerning the Navy 7 bearing on aeronautics and 5 relating to the Merchant Marine.

"Our present national objectives is the defeat of Hitler and what he stands for, and all diverting controversies should be subordinated to the main objective," the defense committee asserted.

"We appeal for unity on this national objective."

The basic elements of national defense, the convention said, were:

"(a) The ability to apply any fraction or all of our manpower and war industrial resources promptly and efficiently—by universal military training and Federal regulation of war supply agencies.

"(b) The ability to carry war, when unavoidable, to our enemy, and thus prevent him from bringing war to us. This ability will require removal of all geographical limitation on movement of forces and adequate provision for corresponding plans and material.

"(c) Our great potential bulwarks are the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. These oceans will be our greatest assets or worst liabilities, according to our strength or weakness therein. They represent the base of our world strategy."

This declaration was followed immediately by one to the effect that the legion wants America strong enough to meet any possible attack before it arrives and to turn an enemy back "so that our homes remain intact and our families secure."

The rapid disposal of these vital questions left the choice of a new national commander as the principal business for tomorrow's final session.

Two Candidates Lead Field

Two candidates appeared to be leading the field—Lynn U. Stambaugh, of North Dakota, the legion kingmakers' choice, and Edward Scheiberling, of New York, one of the rank and file choices.

Both Maurice Stember, campaign manager for Scheiberling, and Ben Dorris, leading the Stambaugh forces, claimed they had more than the necessary majority of votes for their respective candidates. The ballot under convention rules will be by roll call.

Reports flew fast among the Legion politicians that other candidates would withdraw in favor of one or another of the leading contenders. Other candidates included Roane Waring, of Tennessee; Ray Fields, of Oklahoma; Warren Atherton, of California; Charles W. Crush, of Virginia; Paul Armstrong, of Illinois; Dr. W. J. Danforth, of Texas, and Jack Crowley, of Vermont.

The President's Day

By International News Service

UP AND AT 'EM: With plans to leave the White House and Washington behind him for the weekend, President Roosevelt yesterday went obediently back to following the appointment schedule closely, letting secretaries tactfully but firmly oust lingering callers as their allotted time ran out. The usual morning huddle with the staff came off at around 9 a. m. and the boss was behind his desk and hard at work before 10. The State Department dynamo, Adolf Berle, clicked in first for 15 minutes of the President's time.

ODD JOBS: Former Ambassador to France and Roosevelt handyman Bill Bullitt came in to tell the Chief the results of his latest odd jobs which have included everything from fancy diplomacy to defense matters and morale.

HIGH SPOT: High spot of the day for the President was his brief, satisfying talk with Tycoon Marshall Field who has traded in his title of merchant prince for that of No. 1 angel. "Very interested, indeed" was the President in Field's report that the new Chicago paper, backed partially by his money, will be on the stands "before snow flies." Field told the President that the fledgling would be as pro-administration as the Tribune is anti.

ARMY OVERALLS: Secretary Stimson, Assistant Patterson and a bevy of ordnance officers sat down around Mr. Roosevelt's desk, swapped statistics on munition manufacture, past, present and future, with the President, filed out with full-speed-ahead determination.

CLEAN SWEEP: After closing the door on the retreating Army officers the President went to work hammer and tongs to finish up his lend-lease message to Congress due to be sent up today. Anxious to clean up waiting correspondence and other paper work the President kept his lunch hour free, worked and ate at his desk. Late in the afternoon Secretary Hull dropped over, confabbed with him for a half hour and checked out muttering that he had "nothing to say"—"too hot to talk, anyway."

Steinberg Named To OPM Office

Dean S. S. Steinberg, of the University of Maryland College of Engineering and director of engineering defense training for this area, has been appointed a member of the fourth regional labor supply committee of the Office of Production Management by Sidney Hillman, associate director general of OPM, it was announced yesterday.

The purpose of the committee is to assist in maintaining an adequate and continuous supply of trained workers for the defense program. The committee will act for the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and the District of Columbia.

Flying Cadet Killed In Alabama Crash

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17 (AP).—Flying Cadet Calvin Richard Shaw, 24, of Stewartstown, Pa., was killed last night as his training plane struck a power line as he was attempting to land at Maxwell Field. The plane plummeted into a wooded thicket, but did not burn.

Show, scheduled for graduation as a second lieutenant October 31, was coming in from a routine training flight at the time of the accident.

Chiang Calls For Reconquest Of Manchuria

Chungking, Sept. 17 (AP).—Reconquest of Manchuria is a vital aim of China's struggle against Japan, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared in a broadcast to the nation tonight on the eve of the tenth anniversary of the Mukden incident.

A clash at Mukden on September 18, 1931, touched off Japan's invasion of Manchuria and started her on the program of expansion still under way today.

"There can be no separating any portion of Chinese territory from the whole," the generalissimo said. "Surviving, we shall survive as a whole, or if we perish we shall perish as one."

Chiang predicted that the "final collapse of Japan as aggressor" was about to begin.

Motor Wear—It's Cause and Effect

By ED CARL

An over-strained motor causes your car to use too much oil and to wear out parts that call for replacements or cause lowered running efficiency.

ED CARL

The main cause of motor strain is improper lubrication. After a hard summer's driving you need to have the oil in your differential and transmission checked—probably a replacement of the cartridge in your oil filter. Such simple precautions may save you many dollars in expensive repairs or replacements.

Red Army Trapped Near Kiev, Nazis Say

250,000 in Pocket, Germans Claim, Drive Is Speeded

By C. Brooks Peters.
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Sept. 17.—Viewed from Berlin tonight after weeks of arduous fighting, in which advances were slow and costly, the drive of the National Socialist legions into Soviet Russia appear to be in acceleration.

In the past weeks, during which the supreme German command has maintained a veiled silence, Reich forces have been steadily advancing southward from Gomel. While occasional special communiques from Hitler's field headquarters concentrated attention upon the Leningrad or Lake Ilmen sectors, these German units operating south of Gomel have quietly carried out a strategical manoeuvre, which appears now to have been crowned with success.

Large Soviet forces estimated upward of 250,000 men are now believed—on the basis of the official news agency, D/ N. B., and other war correspondent reports and well-informed local quarters—to have filled a new pocket in the vicinity and eastward of Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine. This new pocket seems to be large in its geographical delineations and to include sizable portions of Marshal Semyon Budenny's army.

Success Intimated

Announcement of this success, moreover, was intimated in today's official communique, which asserted that "the offensive actions in the east are developing into an operation of the largest proportions." Authoritative military quarters, furthermore, declared that this "operation" was approaching its conclusion in the Ukraine.

It is not known whether the pocket trapping hundreds of thousands of Russians about Kiev was closed alone by those Germans advancing southward from Gomel or whether other Reich units advanced across the Dnieper River and met their comrades pushing southward. The single positive fact appears to be that the pocket has been sealed—and, in the local view, is air-tight.

The drive into the Crimea apparently continues to be successful. The Germans, however, are officially silent relative not only to this but also to other sectors of the extensive Eastern Front.

It appears a safe assertion to suggest, moreover, that reports available locally—both those for publication and others—intimate that the Soviet supreme command faces critical situations in the immediate future. The success with which the Russians are able to orientate themselves to the most recent military developments, moreover, may well determine the future course of the Russian-German war.

In the opinions of local German quarters the Russian command endeavored to carry out four separate strategical operations in the past weeks designed to halt or at least to retard the German invasion. All four operations, the Germans say, however, failed. Into the failure they read the complete inability of the Russians to grasp the technical initiative from the German high command.

Tried to Block Encirclement

In the first instance, the enemy is said to have endeavored to thwart the encirclement of Leningrad through particularly stubborn resistance on the Luca front. The attempt, however, was vain. Leningrad is beleaguered and daily being subjected to tactics of attrition by the German artillery and air bombardments.

Second, the Russians are reported to have tried to threaten the safety of the right wing of the German forces driving on Leningrad by attacks from the sector south of Lake Ilmen. The strategical objectives of these enemy operations, informed quarters here declared, was to effect a "breather" to the then sorely pressed, still encircled Leningrad. The results of these operations, the Germans add, was the defeat of three enemy armies, including the annihilation of nine complete Russian divisions. Leningrad, however, was not, it is insisted, thereby aided.

Third, on the middle theater the Soviets, the Germans declared, endeavored by successive large-scale counterattacks to drive back and penetrate the line of the Reich forces operating in the Smolensk area. They hoped, it is said here, so seriously to threaten the German middle that the Reich command would have to pull men from the Leningrad and Ukraine sectors to cope with this difficulty. Therewith, the pressure on the wide Russian right and left flanks would have been removed.

At present, however, the Germans assert, the enemy propaganda has ceased talking of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's offensive. Obviously, moreover, it is said here, the operations in the middle sector did not prevent the Germans from encircling Leningrad and beginning their concentrated drive east of the Dnieper.

Finally, semiofficial quarters declare, the Russians desired to prevent the Germans from crossing the wide Dnieper. This objective also failed, local circles assert. Now the Crimea is critically endangered and the terrain leading to the Donetz Basin is a flat steppe which offers a defender few, if any, natural advantages. At the moment, however, the German forces in the Dnieper elbow region appear to be concentrating their major efforts on widening the bridgeheads which they have already established on the east bank of this river.

Jury Recalls Burch in Nazi Book Probe

Frank B. Burch, prominent Republican lawyer and isolationist leader of Akron, Ohio, yesterday was recalled for a second day's questioning in the Washington grand jury's investigation of Nazi propaganda books.

The Department of Justice "propaganda squad" of special prosecutors declined to reveal the role of Burch in their inquiry, which is aimed at Flanders Hall, Inc., of Scotch Plains, N. J., and other publishing houses suspected of being inspired by German financing and control.

However, it was learned that after midnight Tuesday, a few hours before Burch's first appearance before the grand jury, Federal agents went through his law offices with a search warrant. The warrant was issued by United States Commissioner B. D. Nicola, of the Northern Ohio Federal court district.

Burch has been legal counsel for the German consular officers in his area.

The prosecutors, Special Assistant Attorneys General William P. Maloney, Edward J. Hickey and George A. McNulty, would not discuss the raid or say what evidence, if any, was uncovered.

Representative Dow W. Harter (Democrat), of Ohio, who comes from the Akron district, called on the prosecutors yesterday afternoon at the grand jury headquarters in Police Court Building. They conferred briefly.

Chairman of the House Military Affairs Subcommittee on Aviation, Harter voted for the Lend-Lease Act and for the extension of service of draftees. He is regarded as an Administration supporter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, former crusader against communism and more lately an isolationist figure and opponent of the Lend-Lease Act, appeared before the grand jurors yesterday. She emerged tearful but silent.

Quizzed a second time yesterday was Siegfried Hauck, president of the Flanders Hall firm and former employe of George Sylvester Viereck, registered Nazi propagandist.

War Office Cancels Final 29th Division Show in Baltimore

Baltimore, Sept. 17 (AP).—The scheduled final Baltimore performance of the Twenty-ninth Division's musical revue, "Snap It Up Again," was canceled tonight on orders of the War Department at Washington.

The cancellation, the reason for which was not announced, came about two hours before curtain time and as patrons arrived at the theater they were turned away by members of the cast stationed at entrances.

Refunds were made on all tickets purchased in advance.

Cast members said they understood that the order also provided for cancellation of scheduled performances this week in Richmond, Va., and in Washington next week.

In Washington, Col. Eugene R. Householder, of the Adjutant General's Department, said that show had been ordered canceled under Section 35 of the National Defense Act which forbids soldiers from competing with civilians in civilian activities. A similar show had previously been called off in California, he said.

Petrillo Threatens To Call Out Bands In Mutual Studios

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—James Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (A.F.L.), announced today that all studio bands with the Mutual Broadcasting System would be called out on strike at noon tomorrow unless a union dispute with Mutual's Louisville, Ky., outlet—station WGRC—was settled by then.

Later, however, Petrillo said the strike call would be deferred until after he conferred tomorrow afternoon with S. A. Cisler, WGRC's manager, who advised Mutual officials that he would come to New York.

Petrillo said the point at issue was refusal by WGRC to employ six more local musicians at a salary of $30 a week each, which additions, he said, were necessary to raise the station's staff to the size hired by other stations in WGRC's class.

The National Broadcasting Co. and Petrillo indicated that a similar situation was brewing with N. B. C.'s red network, because of union difficulties at Station WSMB, New Orleans.

Mutual officials estimated that between 300 and 400 musicians would be affected by the proposed strike.

R. A. F. Blasts Vital Power Plant

By George Lait
International News Service Staff Writer

London (Thursday), Sept. 18.—A series of daylight British raids across the English Channel Wednesday, in which Blenheim bombers were escorted by more than 300 fighters, proviked large scale aerial combat that cost the Royal Air Force 14 planes and the Luftwaffe 11, the air ministry announced early today.

In the forays over northern France, where a vital power plant at Bethune was among objectives damaged and set afire, pilots representing many countries within the R. A. F. ranks took part in the heaviest air fighting over western Europe in many weeks.

American volunteers, Free French, Polish and Norwegian fliers, as well as native British, were among those who piloted the swarms of Spitfires and Hurricanes.

Pole Rams Nazi Plane

A Polish pilot, emulating with self-sacrificing heroism the tactics of Soviet flyers over the Eastern front, rammed his Spitfire into a Messerschmitt fighter in midair over northern France. The Messerschmitt burst into flames and streaked to earth, while the Spitfire also plummeted down, its wings torn off in the deliberate collision and its Polish pilot killed.

The day's fighting exacted a toll of 25 planes on both sides. Of the 14 admitted lost by the British one was a Blenheim bomber, the other 13 were fighters. Four British pilots were saved after their planes were shot down.

During the afternoon, said the air ministry, two Blenheim squadrons, escorted by "strong forces" of fighters, attacked the big power plant at Mazingarbe in French Flanders, encountering formidable antiaircraft and fighter opposition, which, however, "was unable to prevent the attack."

Fires Flare

"Bombs," said the communique, "burst on the target and fires broke out."

In this engagement one Blenheim and seven R. A. F. fighters were shot down, while the Germans lost six Messerschmitts. One fighter pilot, the communique said, later was picked up from the sea by the R. A. F.'s "air-sea rescue service." Messerschmitts tried to "interfere" with the rescue, it was added, but were driven off by British fighter patrols that shot down one of the Nazi machines.

Later in the afternoon R. A. F. fighter squadrons dashed across the Channel in a series of "offensive sweeps" that cost Britain six fighters as against four German combat planes shot down in spectacular dogfights. Three of the British pilots were rescued.

Nazis Sink Four Ships

Berlin (Thursday), Sept. 18 (AP).—German speedboats in the English Channel pounced on a British convoy Tuesday night and sank four ships of 25,000 tons, German military reports said early today. The report said that a fully loaded tanker of about 8,000 tons was among the ships sunk.

Dr. Hilferding Is Found Hanged

Berlin, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, German finance minister in two pre-Nazi cabinets, has been found hanged in a prison cell somewhere in occupied France, usually reliable sources said tonight.

Hilferding, who had lived in France since the beginning of the Nazi regime, was arrested at the time of the German invasion. He later was released, but kept under constant supervision and later re-arrested.

Navy Operates Kearny Under Union Clause

By W. H. Lawrence

Copyright by New York Times

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox revealed yesterday that the Navy Department is operating the Kearny (N. J.) shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., at least temporarily, in accord with recommendations of the National Defense Mediation Board, under which members of the C. I. O.'s industrial union of marine and shipbuilding workers must remain in good standing as a condition of employment.

It was believed to be the first time in history that the Government had imposed such a requirement, but it was emphasized that the arrangement was not final, since no definite decision had yet been reached on a permanent method of operating the shipyard, commandeered by the Navy on August 24, on orders of President Roosevelt, after the company, a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, had refused to acept the Mediation Board's recommendation that it grant a "maintenance of membership" clause to the C. I. O. union.

Secretary Knox's disclosure that the "maintenance of membership" clause is in effect, at least temporarily, was made at a press conference after the Secretary had conferred with William H. Davis, Mediation Board chairman.

Issues Press Release

The Navy Department issued the following press release:

"Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today announced that the Government has not yet decided on the course it will pursue in the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. case.

"If the Navy operates the plant itself, it will operate it as a Navy yard; that is, civil service laws will apply, there will be no recognition of unions as such, etc.

"But, if the plant is operated by a corporation, the operation will be in conformity with recommendations of the Mediation Board.

"In the meanwhile, the Navy is instructing Admiral Bowen that, if any case arises under the maintenance of union membership recommendation of the mediation board, Admiral Bowen shall refer the case to the mediation board itself for action."

Union Clause Upheld

It was said authoritatively that the last paragraph of Secretary Knox's statement was said to mean that if the union certifies to Admiral Bowen, who has charge of the plant for the Navy, that any worker is not in good standing, he will send the case to the mediation board for an investigation. If the board finds that the worker has not paid his dues, and that his suspension from good standing by the union is not an arbitrary act, it will recommend that the worker be dismissed from employment.

Secretary Knox said at his press conference that many different plans of operating the plant had been considered, including leasing of the yard to a private corporation, formation of a Government corporation to run the shipbuilding yard, and actual purchase of the yard for operation as a Navy Yard similar to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. In the latter event, workers would be under civil service rules, and there would be no recognition of unions, or requirement that workers retain their union membership.

The Naval Secretary said that Admiral Bowen had reported to the Navy that the yard had been operating at a high rate of efficiency since it was taken over by the Navy on August 24 and that the production of ships was ahead of the schedule previously established by the private owners. The yard is working on approximately 500 million dollars worth of naval fighting and merchant ships.

U. S. Threatens To Take Over Struck Ships

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Sept. 17.—The United States Maritime Commission has notified the Seafarers International Union and shipowners whose vessels are involved in a strike called last Saturday by the union that unless arbiration proceedings are begun tomorrow, the ships will be requisitioned and placed under Government operation.

The ultimatum was reported to have been sent to the Maritime Commission district offices here by Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission. It is said to have set noon tomorrow as the deadline.

Local representatives of the Maritime Commission declined to comment on the ultimatum or its effects if it were carried out. If the ultimatum is enforced, it will mark the first time that such an action has been taken as the result of a maritime labor dispute.

Eleven Ships Affected

Eleven ships in Atlantic and Gulf ports are now affected by the strike. Many of them have been in service between the United States and Government bases in the West Indies, transporting workmen and vital defense materials.

The union seeks an increase in bonuses and insurance paid by operators for voyages to war zones as well as an extension of the war zones to cover West Indies ports.

Admiral Land proposed Monday that the ships be released immediately and that an agreement on a retroactive basis be reached within two weeks. The union met here that night and after a six-hour discussion rejected the proposal early Tuesday morning, insisting that the shipowners would have to make an offer before any settlement could be considered.

West to Join Strike

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Sailors Union of the Pacific (A. F. L.) was reported by a union representative today to be ready to join tomorrow in an East Coast seamen's strike, unless union demands were met by shipping companies.

John Hawk, secretary-treasurer of the Seafarers International Union said that strike machinery had been set up by the West Coast affiliate of his union and that the proposed strike action would affect "every ship sailing between the United States and Axis or Allied ports from the Pacific Coast."

LaGuardia Wins G. O. P. Nomination for Mayor of N. Y.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, seeking a third term, won the Republican mayoralty nomination by about a 3-2 margin, or 19,820 votes, over John R. Davies, former president of the National Republican Club, in an apathetic primary election yesterday in which only about 14 per cent of the enrolled Republicans voted.

The mayor, also nominated by the American Labor Party, without opposition, will oppose Brooklyn's district attorney, William O'Dwyer, uncontested Democratic selection, in the November 4 election.

The final Republican vote: LaGuardia, 63,248; Davies, 43,428. Enrolled Republicans entitled to vote numbered 758,385, indicating yesterday's voting was confined largely to active members of the party organization.

The mayor carried Manhattan, Brooklyn and Richmond, but lost in Queens and the Bronx where the regular Republican organizations had declined to indorse him.

Strike Ended, Truckers Move Piled-up Freight

Washington's eight-day accumulation of freight which has jammed storage space almost to capacity, began to move yesterday, when more than 600 truck drivers returned to work following Tuesday's strike settlement.

Working at top speed, with every available worker and truck on hand, the transfer companies hope to have the accumulated freight cleaned out within a week.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railrosd yesterday canceled its eight-day-old embargo on incoming freight, and tons of packages are expected to begin arriving in the city today.

The other railroads, however, have not relaxed the embargo as yet, and railroad representatives said last night that they did not think it would be dropped for a few days.

Extension of the embargo was explained by the fact that a joint warehouse at Fourth and E Streets Southwest, used for the freight of four railroads, is still filled almost to the top.

—if Bond is your tailor!

Loosen your belt—and relax! You've heard plenty of sound facts to back up higher prices—for everything from ships to sealing-wax. Now listen to a different tune!

Bond prices are NOT going up—thanks to you! Yes, you—for your part of Bond's huge volume is one of the stepping stones that makes this exciting announcement possible.

Here's how! Last year, your purchases of Bond clothes came to 32 million dollars. This year you're boosting it to 45 million. With such overwhelming support, you nerved us to move fast—to our mutual profit. Knowing what was in the cards, we signed for Fall woolens and trimmings almost a year ago. Today, all things considered, instead of facing a very stiff increase in costs, ours is only 7%. Score one, for Bond volume!

Now score two. By keeping prices down, we expect to wipe out much of that 7%. Keeping prices down will hold the good will of our present army of boosters. Keeping prices down will win thousands of new friends. Keeping prices down—with still larger sales to make up the difference—will be good business, for us and for you! We can still hear the applause of 1937, when most stores raised prices and we didn't It's going to happen again in 1941.

And how about quality? Briefly—as long as there's a Bond shingle over a Bond store, there'll be no compromise with what your dollar buys. Were we faced with the need of juggling values to keep prices down, Bond prices would go up tomorrow. We've already said we are taking no chances on losing customers. Neither are we taking chances on losing our good name.

You will continue to get the finest woolens our money can buy. You will continue to get Bond needlework at its best from our own plants. You will continue to get two trousers with every suit. You will continue to get the convenience of a Bond Charge Account—with extended payments—at no extra cost. And you will pay not one cent more than you did last season!

Because more men wear Bond Clothes than any other clothes in America, we can now sit tight. To back up the government's wishes, this will be our policy until the load can no longer be shouldered alone. Then—and then only—may we ask you to help foot the bill.

This, gentlemen, is Bond's way of doing business!

Press Accuracy, Fairness Help Radio, FCC Told

By the Associated Press

The newspaper tradition of fairness and accuracy, the Federal Communications Commission was told yesterday, has been a continuing good influence toward higher standards in radio.

Emile J. Gough, former general manager of Hearst Radio, Inc., who spent most of the day on the witness stand as the FCC resumed hearings to determine whether to promulgate rules for dealing with future newspaper applications for radio stations, said he believed no one else could have contributed so much to radio as the newspapers.

Most of the session was devoted to relations between Hearst newspapers and Hearst radio stations. After Gough had identified correspondence and undergone questioning by commission attorneys, Louis Caldwell, counsel for WGN, the Chicago Tribune's station, asked him about the contribution of newspapers to radio.

Newspaper-owned stations, Gough said, were the first to develop the present form of newscasting and the newspaper tradition of independence from outside control had been carried into radio.

Gough expressed the opinion that radio news reports did not cause people to refrain from buying newspapers. In this connection, he remarked that a person who attended a World Series baseball game was the first to want to read about it in the paper.

Letters Read

One of the letters identified by Gough was written to him by J. V. Connolly, president of King Features Syndicate, Inc., a Hearst enterprise. It said William Randolph Hearst had a "firm conviction that his newspapers should use the radio for exploitation."

The letter, dated December 18, 1936, added: "In other words, the service that the newspapers may give to their readers would be appreciated by the readers and he took the position opposite to that of many of the publishers in the country who protest against the rivalry of the radio."

"Through your own intelligent guidance," Connolly wrote, "the Hearst newspapers that own or are affiliated with radio stations have been able to protect themselves against the deflection of advertising appropriations from their newspapers into radio broadcasting companies, and, also, you have shown the radio editors how not to give a news report over the air that would make it unnecessary for the listener to buy a newspaper."

One letter put into the record today said that "probably the closest thing to a Congressman—next to his clothes—was the next election."

Letters Tells Of Meeting

Written to Harry M. Bitner, an official of the Hearst Newspapers, by Gough, the letter told of a meeting in New York in April, 1937, of representatives of newspaper-owned stations. Former Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington, described as the man who wrote the Communications Act, was present.

"Senator Dill gave a most interesting discourse on the problems confronting owners of newspapers and radio stations," Gough wrote.

"He said that he spoke from experience as a member of Congress of more than 20 years' standing; and he knew that probably the closest thing to a Congressman—next to his suit of clothes—was the next election; that his every act in Congress is predicated on elections. He further said that many Congressmen have found that newspapers opposed them and are fearful that with newspapers owning stations that they may, in turn, keep them from reaching their constituents. He said this growing fear transcends all party lines. . . .

"Furthermore, he paid a great compliment to newspapers operating stations by saying they had done more to advance the art than any other group of station owners. . . .

At the opening of today's session, Chairman James Lawrence Fly asked all attorneys to submit by September 25 statements outlining what evidence they intend to present, the names of witnesses, and how much time they expect to require.

Homecoming Day

Duchess of Windsor, With Duke, to Visit Kin and Old Friends in Baltimore

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 17.—Wallis, Duchess of Windsor, the Baltimore girl who made good, is going back home with the proof. The former Wallis Warfield is returning to the old home town in October with the man who abdicated the throne of the world's greatest empire to become her husband.

Although the duke and duchess will come to New York following their Baltimore visit, no one who has talked with the duchess in recent years can doubt but that the climax of the impending American-Canadian trip for her will be this return to the scenes of her childhood.

Loyal to Old Friends

While in Baltimore, where she grew up, went to school and made her debut, the duke and duchess will stay with her uncle, Gen. Henry M. Warfield. The venerable general, a brother of the duchess' late father, and Mrs. Buchanan (Aunt Bessie) Merryman have long been her favorite relatives.

Always extremely loyal to old friends, it is expected the duchess will be genuinely delighted to see the middle-aged Baltimoreans with whom she grew up, attended school, made her debut and danced in her youth.

Also, it would be only natural if the duchess, in her tours about Baltimore to show the duke what's what and who's who, avoids No. 212 East Biddle Street—not that anyone as frank as the duchess would ever try to conceal the boarding house hash in her past. But it couldn't give either much pleasure to see her old home turned into a 50 cents per head museum for the edification of the curious after the abdication.

During their visit to New York the duke and duchess will be domicile in a tower apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and not in a private home, International News Service learned today.

"The duke and duchess will enter the United States from the Bahamas at Miami, Fla., on September 23 and will entrain for Washington the next morning," a terse British press service bulletin read. "They will leave Washington by train on the afternoon of September 28, arriving in Chicago on the following morning and Calgary on the morning of September 30. They will then motor to the ranch, which is at High River, approximately 40 miles from Calgary.

10 Days At Ranch

"The duration of the stay at the ranch is uncertain, but it is expected that the duke and duchess will remain about ten days. The journey is being undertaken so that the Duke of Windsor may conduct some administrative business at his ranch, which he has not visited for 14 years. The visit, therefore, is both unofficial and private."

While in Washington, the duke and duchess will be guests at the British Embassy. Their social engagements there are limited to a White House luncheon with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, followed by a cocktail party at the National Press Club for the duke and a similar affair for the duchess at the Willard, given by the members of the Women's National Press Club.

Socially ambitious ladies, eager to meet the duchess during her Washington stay, were reported bidding as much as $100 each for invitations to the women's press party. As a result the party has been strictly limited to the members themselves.

'Feeler Battles' Augur British Drive in Libya

By International News Service

Cairo, Sept. 17.—Possibility of a new British invasion of Libya to push the Axis entirely out of North Africa was foreshadowed tonight by continuance of "feeler battles" on the Egyptian-Libyan desert frontier.

Patrolling sorties by British and South African mechanized "advance elements" were reported in a Middle East army communique following large-scale weekend fighting in which German-Italian armored forces were hurled back into Libya after thrusting 35 miles into northwest Egypt.

Cairo military circles discussed the possibility that Britain's greatly reinforced imperial legions in North Africa may "beat the Axis to the draw" in the next few weeks by launching a westward drive before the Germans and Italians could get started on any eastward push toward Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

See October Attack

Some commentators predicted launching of a British offensive in October when autumn's cooler "fighting weather" replaces the almost unbearable heat of an African summer.

In engagements regarded as preliminaries to the anticipated fall battles, British imperial armored columns were declared to have regained all their original frontier positions after erasing last Sunday's Axis thrust into Egypt, which cost five tanks.

Ninety miles behind the advanced Axis lines, heightened activity flared around the Libyan port of Tobruk, held by the British since April 9 against encircling siege.

While the "feeler battles" were raging in the frontier area, a strong Axis tank assault on Tobruk's defense lines was driven off. Heavy and protracted artillery duels ensued.

Cairo headquarters today announced German and Italian siege guns continued their heavy shelling from the east of Tobruk but that the artillery fire from the south and west had decreased.

British Repulsed, Fascists Claim

Rome, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—The high command said today that advanced Italian units reconnoitering in force had repulsed British forces in North Africa and Ethiopia.

It said Axis artillery had effectively shelled the British defenses at Tobruk, Libya, and acknowledged Royal Air Force attacks on the Libyan cities of Bengasi and Tripoli.

London Expects R. A. F. to Bomb Rome

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Sept. 17.—Rome may be a target of R. A. F. bombs in the near future it was believed in London today, following the recent bombing of Cairo by Axis planes. The authorities here were understood to have discussed the subject today in connection with the government's warning last April that the Italian capital would be bombed if Cairo or Athens was attacked.

Air experts pointed out, however, that Rome cannot be considered a major target at this time compared to the importance of a tanker or transport carrying supplies to Libya, for instance.

'New Order' Shapes Up

Japanese Influence Apparent Everywhere in Indo-China

By the Associated Press

Manila, Sept. 17.—Japanese control of French Indo-China has reached a point where the French colony is well on the road to becoming a Japanese preserve, according to travelers arriving here.

In the six weeks since the arrival of the first Japanese army contingents for the alleged purpose of blocking British aggressive plans, the Japanese have abrogated powers of virtually every governmental office and stamped their influence throughout the economic functions of the country, these sources said today.

Recent developments marking Japanese control, they said, included:

The French commercial airline is restricted to carrying Japanese, French nationals who have obtained permits from the Hanoi government and foreign consular representatives who have notified the Japanese delegation before purchasing their tickets.

The Camranh Bay area, where the French were developing a great naval base, is closed to all travelers by land or air.

The government is considering a proposal to prohibit the issuance of land grants to all foreigners except Japanese.

Following word from a high Japanese official, a government order banned newspaper reports concerning the arrival of Japanese troops in Indo-China and their movements in the colony.

Travelers seeking to go overland to Thailand have been instructed to notify the Japanese military as well as French immigration officials.

Persons arriving here said no additional Japanese troops had reached Saigon in three weeks, but supplies still were flowing in by freighter.

U. S. Holds Up Cargoes, Colony Is Aroused

Saigon, French Indo-China, Sept. 17 (AP).—Informed sources reported today that stoppage at Manila of a large number of cargoes destined for Indo-China had created a serious controversy between this French colony and the United States.

The shipments include asphalt, coal tar, wood pulp, trucks, automobiles, dyestuffs, wheat flour, condensed milk, steel, boiler tubes, leather and butter, it was said.

The French were reported to be protesting in particular the delay of a cargo of butter from New Zealand which was scheduled for transshipment at Manila.

All cargoes from the United States were understood to have been licensed and en route when the French-Japanese agreement for mutual defense of Indo-China was announced late in July before the United States froze Japanese assets in that country.

The French were said to have protested officially against action which they called retroactive. They said also that the goods in question were purchased for private use and would not reach Japanese hands.

Blue Army Paratroops Leap to Destroy Bridge in Mock War

By Hanson Baldwin

Copyright by New York Times

Field Headquarters, Third Army, Lake Charles, La., Sept. 17.—The influence of air power upon war again made itself felt today in the greatest maneuvers in the country's history as parachute troops participated in an American tactical exercise for the first time, and bombers of both sides blasted air fields, bridges and highway nets.

The parachutists—119 men and 8 officers of Company A of the 502d Parachute Battalion—leaped at 9:30 this morning to seize and destroy a bridge behind the lines of Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear's Red Second Army. They were engaged on what was plainly a "sacrifice mission," and could have had relatively little influence on the course of the maneuver—which today, third day of the first phase—found the more than 400,000 troops engaged, tired, muddy, unshaven and bedraggled.

The mimic war moved slowly, partially because of umpire's decisions, partially because of the cautious respect with which each side regarded the other, partially because of mud resulting from 5 to 7 inches of rain in the past few days, partially because of constant air raids.

Center Dented

The Fifth Corps of Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Blue Third Army, pushing toward the north, made marked progress in the center of the line toward the south bank of the Red River, but Blue's 250,000 men made relatively little progress on the east flank and the more than 150,000 Red defenders, though possessing a powerful threat in the 762 tanks of the First and Second Armored Division were strangely quiescent. The armored divisions have made relatively little progress since the "war" started, and though there was some doubt in Third Army circles tonight as to the exact where about of the First Armored Division, neither it nor its sister division had been hurled with full force against the Blue flanks or rear. So slow was the pace—something in part due to terrain and in part to necessary artificialities of maneuvers, that some soldiers and observers were calling the "Battle of the Red River" the "blitzless blitz."

At 9:30 a. m., 13 C-33, C-39 and C-50 transports, flying in single column at an altitude of 1200 feet, appeared beneath a high overcast flying north of the Red River above Highway 84, which connects Red Army headquarters at Winnfield with an important river bridgehead at Natchitoches. Within 1 minute and 20 seconds after ground observers sighted the first plane, a smoke pot had been dropped in a cotton field to mark the landing ground, and the first man had leaped. He reached the ground within 11 seconds, and above him in the sky blossomed scores of blue, green and yellow parachutes, supporting the troops themselves, and 30 caliber rifles, and machine guns, .45 caliber sub-machine guns, 60 mm. mortars, and enough ammunition for a full day's fighting. Twelve to 14 men leaped from each plane, and each man carried on his person a pistol and two-hand grenades.

Led by Capt. Ducat McEntee, company commander, the entire company was on the ground, equipped and organized in 17 minutes, while in the skies above the circling transports, a group of 35 blue P-40 pursuit ships provided protection against a weak attack by a flight of Red pursuit ships. A second Red flight later tried to strafe the field in which the "parachutists" had landed but they had equipped themselves and scattered and no harm was done.

Hope for British, U. S. Union Voiced By Hore-Belisha

London, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Leslie Hore-Belisha, former War Minister, today expressed the hope that the Roosevelt-Churchill eight-point declaration would lead to a union of Britain and the United States.

"Churchill had an imaginative idea in offering France common citizenship with Britain," he told the Liberal Party Council.

"There is far more reason for common citizenship with America. If we can replace the Declaration of Independence with a declaration of interdependence, we should lay the firmest foundation for permanent world peace."

The council unanimously voted confidence in the government and support of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration. It also approved speedy aid for Russia.

Auto Drive Turns Out to Be Nearly A Cavalcade

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—A woman driver took a chance squint in her rear-view mirror and noted an automobile was following her car very closely. In fact, it was too close. She looked again. It was still there and, of all things, without a driver. She stopped quickly. The other machine did, too. Then she discovered that she had hooked the bumper of a car when she came out of a parking place and had towed it, unknowingly, several blocks.

Two Exonerated Of Sex Attack On Model, 17

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP).—A Westchester County grand jury refused today to indict two young tennis players on rape charges brought by the mother of Miss Claire Beringer, blond 17-year-old professional model.

The youths, Richard Decker, 22, Miami University student, and John March, 21, of Pelham, had been free in $2,500 bail each since July 27, when they were arrested a few hours after escorting the Bronx model home from a country club dance.

Miss Beringer said Decker attacked her in a parked car while March sat in the rear seat flourishing a pistol.

Witnesses called before the grand jury included the Beringers' family physician.

Red Paratroops Land at Edge Of Teheran

By the Associated Press

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 17.—Hundreds of Russian parachute troops and strong mechanized forces occupied strategic outskirts of Teheran today and both Russian and British staff officers entered the capital to forestall any friction with the Iranians.

The 400 Red parachute troops which were dropped on the edge of the capital took control of the roads so quickly that they even barred the way to approaching British troops for a short time. One bespectacled Soviet liaison officer halted a British brigadier 12 miles from Teheran, produced a map, and vaguely waved at the entire Teheran area as filled with the Red army.

The astonished British officer sent his 12 armored cars through the Russian lines with instructions to stop at a bridgehead 5 miles farther on.

A German motorcade of diplomats, women and children en route to Turkey after the abdication yesterday of Reza Shad Pahlevi was halted by the Russians at Karaj, 25 miles northwest of here.

The former Shah himself, ousted because of suspicion of pro-Nazi sentiments, arrived at Isfahan, 210 miles south of the capital. He plans to go abroad as soon as the trouble blows over.

The British and Russians occupying Teheran found fault with his dilatory tactics in getting rid of German agents.

Russian troops under Maj. Gen. Novikov moved into the Teheran area some 20,000 strong. Fifty-three Soviet tanks lumbered onto the airfield and Red troops took over Iranian army and airforce barracks. A brigade of British troops was approaching from the southwest.

While the troops moved in, Mohammed Shad Pahlevi, 21-year-old successor to the throne, swore before Parliament to uphold the constitution.

On British initiative, the government sent a note to the Japanese Legation demanding surrender of the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, the prewar leader of Arab revolts in Palestine. He was reported to have taken refuge with the Japanese.

The Grand Mufti has been a thorn in British sides for years, stirring up Moslem dissidents from his successive refuges in French-mandated Syria, Iraq and then Iran.

Two Iran army leaders, Gen. Ahmad Nakhjevan, former war minister, and Gen. Riazi Nakhjevan, former general staff officer, were reported freed from prison along with some other high political prisoners of the former Shah.

Mohammed Shah Pahlevi ordered the ousting of Maj. Gen. Rukdunin Mukhtar as Teheran police chief. The youthful Shah personally listened to a Persian language broadcast of the British radio charging the chief had tried to escape with the crown jewels on the ex-Shah's order.

Senators Andrews, Lucas Denounce Lindbergh

Charles A. Lindbergh was denounced on the Senate floor yesterday as a man having "more in common with the Nazis than with the people of the United States."

Senators Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, and Andrews (Democrat), of Florida, both denounced the aviator for his Des Moines speech last Thursday, in which he charged that the British, the Administration and Jewish interests are attempting to force the United States into war.

Lucas read into the record an editorial from the Illinois State Journal, published in Springfield, which accused Lindbergh of a "deliberate effort to stir up racial hatred" and said "his own words stamp him as a student of Nazi methods."

Senator Andrews indorsed Lucas' remarks about Lindbergh, referring to the Des Moines address as "the most deplorable speech made by the so-called 'Colonel' Lindbergh."

Nazis Round Up 100 Daily in Oslo, Swedes Estimate

Stockholm, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Arrests are continuing in Oslo, despite termination of the state of emergency, reports from the Norwegian capital said tonight. It was estimated that 100 persons daily are being rounded up by the police and taken to Gestapo headquarters.

Several members of the Norwegian supreme court and leading Norwegian industrialists were reported among those arrested but later released.

There were indications that a German military court in Oslo would try a number of cases not handled during the recent period of martial law caused by strikes.

Rosenwald May Head Branch of OPM

Lessing J. Rosenwald was reported yesterday to have been selected to direct OPM efforts to conserve scarce materials and simplify manufactured articles.

Informed officials said that the 50-year-old former chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co. would head a new bureau in the OPM which would supervise conservation efforts, campaigns to collect waste materials and plans for reducing the number of styles, colors and models of common household goods in order to save materials needed in the armament program.

Both Flanks Of Nile Army Rest in Libya

By the Associated Press

With the British Army in the Western Desert in Egypt, Sept. 16 (Delayed).—Replacements recently have arrived at Tobruk to aid in the defense of that Gibraltar of the desert, and the end of Egypt's hot season finds both flanks of the ever-growing British Army of the Nile firmly resting in Italian Libya.

On the right, Tobruk, now entering its sixth month of siege, stands as firmly as ever.

The forces at this seaside stronghold, 75 miles beyond the Egyptian border, have proved a constant source of worry to the Axis command, which must keep its forces divided between the main advanced front at Salum, Egypt, and Tobruk.

To the south 150 miles, Giarabub Oasis, 40 miles inside Italian territory, gives the British an anchor for their left flank.

The strategic value of Giarabub, a tiny dot of green amidst the vast sands, is immeasurable. In the hands of the British commander, Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, it points a dagger toward the communications line of any Axis attempt to thrust deeper into Egypt. Tobruk is the other dagger.

There is no road to Giarabub. You bump southward on a compass bearing, enduring blazing heat in an open truck, coated with dust and tormented by clouds of flies.

Time and again a truck has to be dug out of soft white sand. The nights are bitterly cold.

In wild volcanic country as fantastic as the mountains of the Moon, trucks wind down jagged defiles.

The sacred shrine at Giarabub Oasis, the mosque which is the burial place of the founder of the Senussi Moslem sect, has suffered damage—from Italian bombs, the British say.

All Giarabub's inhabitants have been removed, but the British officer commanding the outpost has ordered an Indian Moslem sentry to guard the precious carpets and other relics.

Walls of the picturesque Beau Geste style fort built by Italians have been ripped apart by Italian bombs.

Britain to Drink Tomato Juice If Isle Is Invaded

San Francisco, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—How the British tried to buy 15 million cases of tomatoes to stock refugee food depots for an invasion emergency and how American growers were caught short was related today by a cannery official.

The British figured that in an invasion attempt the Germans would strike first at water systems. By stocking food depots with quantities of canned tomatoes the British planned to provide the people with a safe and nourishing drinking fluid that would substitute for water in case normal water supplies were destroyed or polluted, it was explained by Preston McKinney, vice president of the Canners' League of California.

Even though this year's pack will not fill Britain's unprecedented order, it was estimated that if the Federal Surplus Marketing Administration gets only half of the 15 million cases, there will be eight cans for every person in the British Isles.

Sea Organisms Are Sabotaging Uncle Sam's Flying Boats

By the Associated Press

La Jolla, Calif., Sept. 17.—Barnacles and other sea organisms which reputedly cost the United States Navy and merchant marine more than 100 million dollars annually, have become the Fifth Columnists of the Nation's flying boats.

The marine growths, some of them so small they can be seen only under a microscope, are retarding the speed and decreasing the load of seaplanes, particularly in areas where beaching facilities are not available.

The Bureau of Aeronautics has enlisted Dr. Claude E. Zobell, microbiologist of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, to assist in the solution of this problem.

The Scripps scientist for several years studied the causes of ship fouling by mussels, barnacles, seaweed and other marine growth.

Dr. Zobell regards the growth on flying boats as more serious and complicated than that created by the fouling organisms on ships' bottoms. A ton or two of marine growth on a heavy airplane carrier, for example, would not have the same effect on the speed of the craft as 200 or 300 pounds of organisms attached to the pontoons of a seaplane.

World to End (And May Not) A. D. 2 Billion

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Just in case you've got nothing else to worry about—the end of the world may come at about the year two billion.

On the other hand, it may not.

That's the way two eminent scientists sized up the world-ending situation at the Fordham University centenary celebration.

Predicting the possibility of the world ending in the year two billion, Dr. Victor Hess, 1936 Nobel Prize winner, said such a state of affairs must be based upon the assumption that the earth was a liquid core containing radio-active matter.

The temperature at the earth's center now, he estimated, is about 2,000 degrees centigrade—30 times the boiling point of water.

But that heat generated within a liquid core, he said, would have no way of escaping and thus would destroy more and more earth, gradually liquefying the entire globe.

Fordham's widely known seismologist, the Rev. Joseph Lynch, S. J., held out hope, however, that the world would not come to a liquid end.

Evidence produced by thermos dynamics, terrestrial magnetism and seismology, he said, indicates the earth has a solid core which would permit escape by conduction of any radio-active heat.

Bulgaria Asks Use of Straits For Warships

By the United Press

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 16 (Delayed).—Bulgaria, in a formal demarche, has requested permission for eight Bulgarian destroyers, a submarine, three E-boats and a torpedo boat to pass through the Dardanelles into the Black Sea, it was revealed tonight.

The demarche revived the rumor that Italian warships had been sold to Bulgaria, though this was denied by Bulgarian and Italian diplomats. [The latest Jane's "Fighting Ships" lists no warships for Bulgaria.]

The Bulgarian minister, Kiro Kiroff, submitted the demarche to the Turkish foreign office Saturday, only 48 hours after Russia had formally accused Bulgaria of permitting Germany and Italy to mass warships in her Black Sea harbors for an attack on the Russian coast.

The British Embassy will inquire informally of the Turkish government tomorrow regarding the Demarche, it was reported reliably. Britain is expected to restate her contention that Bulgaria is a belligerent and hence any passage of her warships through the Dardanelles would violate the Montreaux convention.

Turkish military quarters were said to have replied to informal Bulgarian inquiries two months ago with a categorical declaration that such passage never would be permitted.

British sources said "neutral" Bulgarian warships would be bombed wherever found. They contend the warships necessarily would be manned by Italians or Germans because of the lack of trained Bulgarian crews.

Best military sources here believe the Germans have at their disposal in the Black Sea 19 E-boats shipped from Germany, 5 submarines and 3 others under construction, 3 Rumanian destroyers, including 2 built in Britain, and additional small craft from the Rumanian and Bulgarian navies.

Russians were reported to have a Black Sea fleet of 1 ancient battleship, 3 cruisers, 12 destroyers, 30 good and 12 ancient submarines.

Meantime, Germany suffered a defeat on the trade front. Dr. Karl Clodius, Germany's ace trade negotiator, offered to buy chrome from Turkey, but was told that he first would have to obtain the consent of the British who have contracted to buy the country's entire output.

Russia Rejects Bulgarian Reply

Moscow (Thursday), Sept. 18 (INS).—Russia early today revealed she had informed Bulgaria that the latter government's reply to the recent Soviet warning against cooperating with the Axis was considered "unsatisfactory."

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov conveyed this information to Bulgarian Minister Stambolov in Moscow, it was announced.

Nazi Courier Plane Attacked by Reds

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 17.—The German diplomatic courier plane from Berlin to Istanbul was attacked and damaged and one passenger was slightly wounded in an encounter with a Russian war plane over Bulgaria, according to unconfirmed sources here.

Herr Schmidt-Dumont, the German press attache in Istanbul, declined to comment after announcing the attack.

A Change of Policy

Japan Ships Gold to Cover Purchases From Thailand

Copyright by New York Times

Bangkok, Thailand, Sept. 17.—The first shipment of gold, against which Thailand recently agreed to give Japan a credit of 25 million ticals for purchase of Thailand rice, rubber, tin and other products, has left Japan en route here, authoritative sources reveal. (In 1927 the tical, a silver coin, was worth slightly less than 27 cents.)

The shipment was valued at 15 million ticals, and the local press today carried stories saying the treasury has released to the Yokohama specie bank Thai currency of the same value.

The fact that Japan is shipping gold apparently disproves earlier reports that she would not make actual delivery of the metal against her credit and is indicative of the strong line which Thailand has taken in her economic dealing with Japan.

Press reports today said that a 10-million-tical credit given Japan by the Thai banking syndicate prior to 25,000-million credit will also soon be repaid in gold Japan, it was said, is planning to propose the sale of more gold to Thailand in the future.

The freezing of Japanese assets by the United States and Britain prevented the Japanese from continuing payments for Thai products in dollars and sterling.

The Japanese economic offensive in Thailand has been characterized lately by wholesale purchases of minerals, rice and rubber. Nearly all the Thai output of rubber and wolfram and a quarter of its tin production are now going to Japan, whereas a little over a year ago Singapore took virtually the total production of these items. Nearly all Thailand's export surplus of rice is now being sold to Japan.

The Japanese are paying 30 to 100 per cent above world market prices for Thai purchases, apparently for political rather than business reasons. The Japanese, apparently with almost unlimited finances, at present are active in southern Thailand attempting to buy tin mines, while Bangkok real estate is being acquired at any price the settlers choose to ask.

All available scrap iron also is being purchased, and a local daily newspaper estimated that "aliens of a certain nationality" had recently bought 1000 new and old motor vehicles in Thailand, at prices often several times the market value. The Japanese are even willingly paying hotel rates higher than usual.

Foreign observers here believe that one aim of the Japanese is to dislocate Thai economy and strike at Thai morale with methods borrowed from the book of German conquest in Europe.

Reilly Nominated to Succeed Smith on Labor Board

Gerard D. Reilly, Labor Department solicitor since 1937, was named for a five-year term as a member of the National Labor Relations Board by President Roosevelt yesterday, completing reorganization of that much discussed agency.

Reilly, a native of Boston, would succeed Edwin S. Smith, who failed of reappointment when his term expired recently.

If confirmed by the Senate, Reilly would be the youngest member of the board. He will be 35 on September 27.

A. F. L. Opposed Smith

President Roosevelt's first move to reorganize the board, often a target of criticism in and out of Congress, was the appointment of William M. Leiserson, in 1939, then chairman of the National (Railway) Mediation Board, to succeed Donald Wakefield Smith, of Pennsylvania.

Later H. A. Millis, Chicago economist, was named to take the place of Chairman J. Warren Madden, of Pittsburgh.

The American Federation of Labor had opposed reappointment of Edwin S. Smith, asserting he had favored the C. I. O. in board decisions. The C. I. O. favored Smith for another term.

Reilly, who graduated from Harvard University in 1927, worked as a reporter on Providence, Pawtucket and Boston newspapers, and then was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1933.

He came to Washington as a review attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corporation and gained experience in labor matters as assistant solicitor of the Labor Department and as administrator of its Public Contracts Division before becoming solicitor.

Reilly is a member of the Boston and American Bar Associations and is listed as a member of the National Lawyers' Guild.

He is married and lives at 1615 Thirty-fourth Street Northwest.

Large Westinghouse Stock Issue Rumored

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Reports that Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. plans to raise 35 to 40 million dollars through the sale of additional stock circulated in Wall Street today.

The new stock, about 534,000 shares of common, would be issued, in was said, to preferred and common stockholders of record October 15 on a ratio of one for every five shares held. Rights of suscription would expire October 28.

Navy to Use 17 Freighters

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Third Naval District, announced today that the Navy had arranged to use 17 American merchant ships as supply ships to naval bases outside continental United States.

His announcement came two days after Attorney General Biddle interpreted the Neutrality Act to permit American ships to carry passengers and war materials to any part of the British Empire except the United Kingdom, India, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa.

The 17 vessels have been acquired under a time charter and will be manned by civilian crews, Admiral Andrews said. Several already have been put in active service and the rest are expected to be ready for use in a short time.

At the same time, Norwegian shipping sources reported that Norway has transferred about 150 ships to the British and Allied cause since the first of the year, leaving fewer than 100 vessels carrying vital defense materials to the United States.

For the present, these sources said, no further transfers are contemplated although Norwegian shipping is at the disposal of the fight against the Axis.

In August, Norway had 707 vessels, about 550 of which were in the pool operated by the British ministry of shipping. Since then Norwegians have promised 42 vessels to the pool, including the last 22 of Norway's prewar tanker fleet of about 230 ships. All but two of the 42 vessels have been transferred.

Maritime circles also heard that the liner Acadia, which has been in the Alcoa Steamship Co. West Indies and Caribbean service, would carry technicians and other personnel to a new government air base in Liberia, West Africa.

The base was one which Pan American Airways recently announced it would use in a new air freight service between New York and Lisbon.

Although the Maritime Commission here refused to comment officially, the Alcoa line said that the Acadia would be released to the commission on October 1 and be returned a month later. The line said it did not know what use would be made of the vessel.

more entertainment on Sundays

in The Washington Post

now that PARADE has been added

MORE entertainment than The Post had before—yes, and more than you'll find in any other Washington Sunday newspaper. Because the addition of a magazine section rounded out The Washington Post's Sunday program, built the paper up to eleven sections, and provided something new and different in the form of Sunday supplements. Especially since The Post's new magazine section is so different from anything seen before in a Sunday newspaper!

Parade is modern—up-to-date—concerned with things of today! That's difference number one.

Parade is about real people—people whose names make the news headlines, people like ourselves, people pictured in odd or unusual or exciting or glamorous situations. That's difference number two.

Parade, in short, is like the new, popular picture magazines—and that's why Washington likes it so much! Parade is pictorial — Parade is lively — Parade is easy to read! Get The Washington Post this Sunday—see Parade for yourself. And remember—Sunday's Post brings you eleven sections including the most Sunday comics and a complete novel!

Red Cross Speeds Drive Setup

Rushing to complete the organization of approximately 15,000 volunteer workers to conduct the silver anniversary roll call of the District Red Cross, which starts Monday, committees of the chapter last night started a series of final meetings.

At the same time, appointment of Miss Mabel T. Boardman as chairman of the special gifts committee for the District roll call, was announced by Edgar Morris, general chairman of the roll call committee. Appointed as cochairmen were Lloyd B. Wilson, Marcy Sperry and John Saul, Washington businessmen.

Miss Boardman is national secretary of the American Red Cross and last year was vice chairman of the District roll call committee.

The professional committee met last night at the Cosmos Club, and after receiving reports from divisional chairmen, announced through Chairman Preston B. Kavanaugh, that it was confident it could meet its share of the 200,000 city-wide quota.

The general business committee, charged with soliciting memberships among all business houses, will complete its organization at a luncheon meeting today in the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. building. David E. McCoy is chairman of the committee, and J. F. O'Donnell is vice president. A luncheon meeting of the utility committee will also be held today at the University Club.

Final meeting of the general roll call committee will be tomorrow afternoon at local headquarters, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Appointment of a full-time Red Cross nutritionist, Mrs. Theodore Leary, to direct a program of nutrition and food selection in Washington was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, chairman of hte District Red Cross Chapter.

Mrs. Leary immediately called a meeting of the chapter's nutrition and food selection unit for 10 a. m. today to work out plans for classes in nutrition.

22 Episcopal Editors Meet At Cathedral

Editors of 22 Episcopal publications throughout America convened yesterday at the College of Preachers, the Washington Cathedral, for a discussion on common problems.

Meeting under the auspices of the Association of Episcopal Church Publications, they were headed by the Rev. George Madson, of Harris, Ky., president, and editor of the Diocesan News, official organ of the Kentucky diocese.

Yesterday's principal speakers were Joseph E. Boyle, editor of Forth, official publication of the National Episcopal Council, and Alfred Stoughton, of the Washington Cathedral, editor of the Cathedral Age. Bishop E. Block, of San Francisco, editor of the Pacific Churchman, came the greatest distance.

Today's speakers will include Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, and editor of the Church Review, organ of the Church Society for College Work.

Jews See Nazi End in New Year

The Jewish new year 5702—which will be ushered in Sunday at sundown—will see the end of Nazi tyranny, predicted Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of Philadelphia, new president of the Zionist Organization of America, in a Rosh Hashanah message issued yesterday. The national Zionist headquarters are here.

Pledging American Zionists' support to the cause of democracy, President Levinthal said that the Jewish people were the first victims of Nazi aggression, and "were also the first to align themselves with the forces of democracy in the struggle against the blackout of civilization."

"American Jewry," he continued, "joining wholeheartedly in the declaration of our recent historic convention, calls upon the leaders of opinion throughout the free world to proclaim the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine as an integral and essential part of a democratic world order when the common enemy is overthrown and the new era of peace and justice shall have been born."

During Rosh Hashanah services next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, it was announced, rabbis in many synagogues and temples throughout the land will emphasize in their sermons the need of upbuilding the Jewish homeland.

Mint Inspector Used Nickels to Treat Girls

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP).—George Norris Kirby, 51, who lost his $2100-a-year inspector's job at the United States Mint for stealing nickels and dimes, got a jail sentence of three months after explaining he used the loot to treat women employes to ice cream and soda pop.

West Nottingham Starts 300th Year

Special Dispatch to The Post

Colora, Md., Sept. 17.—Beginning its 300th year, West Nottingham Academy, oldest private secondary boys' boarding school in the United States, opened classes here today with 92 boarding and 16 day students.

10-Day Quarantine Of Pa. Students Ordered at Hood

Frederick, Md., Sept. 17 (AP).—A ten-day quarantine of Hood College students coming from Pennsylvania counties, where infantile paralysis is prevalent, was ordered today to safeguard the college and city of Frederick.

The precaution was ordered by college officials and county health authorities.

Hood College will open September 22, when the freshmen class and their "big sisters," the juniors, will arrive. Freshmen will register September 23, other classes September 25.

Convocation exercises will be held Thursday evening, September 25, with classes starting the next day.

Dr. Henry I. Stahr, college president, announced apointment of Miss Elizabeth Murray, New London, Conn., as chemistry instructor, and Miss Charlotte Smith, Frederick, as assistant to the librarian in the new Joseph Henry Apple Library.

For a

Beautiful

Final

Call the Gawlers!

FRANKLY, thru the years we have been privileged to perfect the customary funeral ceremony into a service of much comfort to our bereaved friends.

For that reason every Gawler funeral, with its many exclusive refinements, is unforgettably beautiful, reverently directed and smoothly conducted—regardless of the price you pay.

Proof Of Birth

Legal proof of birth, as many will attest who have tried to secure it, is often hard to come by. And for a very good reason. Nearly half the population of the country was born before the establishment of a reliable birth registration system. Nevertheless, all who work or seek to work in defense industries and all who apply for old-age assistance are now required to produce acceptable proof of the date and place of their birth. The Census Bureau reports that it is swamped with requests for such proof from census records. And the inability to handle requests rapidly is jeopardizing the situation of many persons whose jobs are at stake or who are in want.

This unfortunate state of affairs should be remedied at once along the line suggested by the bureau. The bureau proposes that each applicant first get in touch with the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the State in which he was born. If his birth was not properly registered, he should submit to the State registrar every scrap of evidence he can assemble—Bible, church, hospital, insurance records, or other facts—in an attempt to get a delayed birth certificate. If unsuccessful, he should present such evidence to employers, who have been urged by the War and Navy Departments to accept reasonable proof of birth in lieu of legal certificates.

This procedure on the part of the applicant should relieve the bottleneck which now exists at the Census Bureau—a bottleneck which is responsible for delaying many workers from speedy entry into the production effort. All registration forms and instructions, it should be pointed out, are available at State Bureaus of Vital Statistics or at the Census Bureau.

Disunited Front

In last Saturday morning's issue of the Daily Worker Comrade Lester Rodney delivered himself of a manifesto. He called upon the working class of America to rally behind the embattled Brooklyn Dodgers in their struggle for world supremacy. The Dodgers, Comrade Rodney believes, are the symbol of the exploited masses. Considering how the Dodgers had to work nearly two and a half hours overtime to beat Cincinnati the other day, this argument has a certain plausibility. However, in Tuesday's issue of the Daily Worker the pro-Dodger Rodneyite doctrine is harshly condemned by a comrade who signs himself "Scorer." Now for anything we know to the contrary, "Scorer" may be the nom de guerre of Comrade Stalin himself, or possibly of the dread "Comrade Hans," legendary trigger-man of the American branch of the G. P. U. Anyhow, "Scorer" insists that the true representatives of the downtrodden proletariat are the New York Yankees. "Scorer's" argument is that the materialist interpretation of history clearly proves that the Yankees will take the world series either four games to one against the Dodgers or four games to two against the St. Louis Cards.

However, if "Scorer" were speaking with the indubitable Kremlin accent, this, doubtless, would be Comrade Rodney's cue to jump to the nearest microphone and confess that he had been bribed with Trotskyist gold to betray Messrs. McCarthy, DiMaggio and the other true champions of the American working class. But, after all, it was not so long ago that the watchword of all devout comrades was, "The Yanks aren't coming." It may be that Comrade Rodney has been so busy following the baseball results that he just hadn't time to notice how radically the party line has been altered since June 22, 1941. Still, in spite of "Scorer's" ideological correction, Comrade Rodney stubbornly stands his ground. He says that Comrade "Scorer" is for the Yankees just because he happens to live in the Bronx. This is just about tantamount to accusing the fellow of petty bourgeois sentimentalism. Come to think of it, that arch-heresiarch, the unspeakable Trotsky, once lived in the Bronx, too. Dear, dear, this looks very suspicious!

Will To Resist

The new sailing orders to our Navy which Secretary Knox transmitted to the fleet on Tuesday mark the return of the American will to resist. From now on our Navy will "provide protection as adequate as we can make it for ships of every flag carrying lend-aid supplies between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland." There may be shooting. There is bound to be shooting if our Navy encounters any Nazi or Italian vessel in these waters. For these vessels have been adjudged by their own acts to be "piratical," and the way we intend to deal with pirates is to leave them no longer with the initiative to sink commerce on our great sea lanes across the Atlantic.

Exactly what means will be employed to insure our deliveries is relatively unimportant. The President on Tuesday hinted at new methods. But whether they take the form of a corridor of warships, with the patrol overhead, or of the old-fashioned convoy system, the decision to see that the products of our arsenal get to their destination is overshadowing. We are making those goods for use against Hitler. We are pouring out our billions for the purpose of stopping Hitler. It would have been pusillanimous on our part to lay all the burden of making goods upon our workers and our taxpayers only to see Hitler destroy them en route to their destination.

Why there has been such a delay in assuming this responsibility for completing a policy upon which we voluntarily embarked was touched upon in Secretary Knox's address before the American Legion on Monday. He spoke about "our failure to be mentally and spiritually ready against danger from without." The emphasis on mental and spiritual factors in our unpreparedness was to the point. Tidewater represented the truncated end of the American dream of a better world society. With the defeat of Wilson we emitted a resounding no to the world and retired within our continental borders on the assumption that we could live alone. But the negation did not produce constructiveness at home. It crept over our internal affairs. It corroded our economy in an orgy of speculation and then fastened upon our society in schisms of class conflict.

Now, with the new sailing orders, we are at the end of this chapter. Clear before the eyes of the American people is something more than the common sense of delivering what they are making—something more than the completion of a policy that they have decided to carry out. A vision beyond tidewater is coming back. Our people are again beginning to realize that the United States can no more ignore the world than the world, and particularly a new world maker like Hitler, can ignore the United States. As nations we are, as Daniel Webster put it, like galleons on the same sea. Or, to put the matter another way, we have a responsibility for doing our part in returning the form to our common international life the loss of which gave Hitler his opportunity. The return of the American will to resist should lead to a return to the American will to reconstruct.

President's Gorilla

President Roosevelt, you may have read, has accepted a gorilla, "the largest and most ferocious" ever sent out of Africa, as a gift from the Free French forces. This is great news, and we think the Allies should make the most of it. Several years ago a perfectly serious story appeared in the Japanese press that the diabolical Chinese had placed a company of orang-outangs opposite the Japanese lines outside Shanghai. Such an insult to the Japanese was, of course, not to be borne. Later it developed that a mistranslation of several Chinese words was responsible for the fantasy. But the Chinese were not satisfied to let it go at that. Their press described the simian company in detail—how the orang-outangs had been trained to scratch out Japanese eyes, to catch Japanese bullets and fling them back at the invaders, to swarm all over the Japanese offensive, biting and hugging the enemy to death. All this, it appears, made the Japanese furious. It made them lose face and seem ridiculous.

Well, the Nazis have also been known to miss the point of a joke. In fact, so far as we know, a sense of humor in the Third Reich is definitely frowned upon. This being the case, the Gestapo ought to be forewarned that the President's gorilla is only the first of a Free French gorilla detachment which is to be sent to this country for military training. Gorillas, you know, are much bigger and tougher than orang-outangs and are perfectly adapted to blitz warfare. Machine-gun bullets make no impression on their tough hides (though it is whispered that cannon fire slows them up a little). And when they operate in seemingly impenetrable forests—well, the Germans, who have always been entranced by Edgar Rice Burroughs' stories, will find out that the Russians are men of straw compared with Tarzan and his cohorts. It won't be long now before the gorillas, fully trained and equipped with a "secret weapon," as the saying is, will be returned to their native habitat. The moral for the Nazis ought to be crystal clear: keep out of Africa!

(Editor's Note: The first of this detachment of gorillas is dead—but don't tell the Germans.)

Ankara Alarms

Significant of the possibility that Turkey may soon be embroiled in the war is the news that has reached Ankara in the last few days that the Germans have ordered all Russian and Bulgarian Black Sea ports closed to commercial shipping. It is also rumored that large numbers of Germans and Italians have been concentrated in Bulgarian ports. Presumably this concentration, if it is a fact, is in preparation for an attempt to land troops behind the Soviet Dnieper River defense line in the Ukraine. In view of Russian naval power in the Black Sea, however, such an attempt could only succeed if sufficient Axis naval strength could be brought into the Black Sea from the Mediterranean. The obstacle is Turkey. The Ankara government will not permit Italian warships to pass through the Dardanelles whether under their own flag or under the "flag" of Bulgaria.

It is not only the Turks but also the Russians who see the danger of such developments. That is why the Moscow government has addressed a note of protest to Bulgaria for overstepping the bounds of neutrality by permitting German naval preparations in its harbors. This protest carries the implied threat of drastic action. The Bulgar reply has been to order the partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army and the putting into effect of severe penalties for sabotage and subversive activities. Despite their Quisling proclivities, neither King Boris nor his government have so far dared to join Germany in the attack on Russia, since very considerable pro-Russian sentiment exists among the Bulgars. But, as a result of its Axis link, and the fact that Bulgaria has become a German satrapy, that country, none the less, may find itself plunged into war. The situation in southeastern Europe resembles that of a powder keg with the fuse lighted and steadily approaching the explosive contents.

Senator Capper

Walter Lippmann once said that there are some persons who seem to reflect a general opinion. Go to them whenever an issue comes up, and you are pretty certain to find the American consensus. Such a person is Senator Arthur Capper in respect of Midwestern America. But he is more than that. He keeps his ear to the ground so as always to confirm his own feeling. Accordingly, when he concludes that "The President having acted, the Congress of the United States and the people of the United States must and will support that action," it should not be regarded as a mere personal opinion. His sentiments have shown a canny resemblance to those of his native Middle West constituency whence voters have returned him in consecutive terms to the Senate since 1919. He even got a 22,000 majority in the teeth of the 1937 debacle. Four years ago he put himself well on the side of isolationism by proposing a constitutional amendment calling for a national referendum and Presidential proclamation before Congress might declare war. This was certainly in line with Midwestern attitude. That attitude was more concerned then, as it has been more recently, with the wheat crop than with any international responsibilities. The attitude, seemingly, has changed, and Senator Capper along with it.

COMBAT DRILL

We played at war . . . and at the blast
Of the leader's whistle, I ran fast
And threw myself upon the ground,
And smiled to see what I had found.
Under the brim of my wide hat,
I held to what my eyes peered at.
(A round of grass-strewn earth was in The hollow of my throat and chin)
And I could see grass-stems like trees
Along my side down to my knees.
I leaned across their twinkling row
Cut to the level ground below
And saw dusk-figures moving there
Like something made of shade and air.
Men walked . . . each was a tiny thread,
That the green surface seemed to shed.
Their littleness was here revealed
Out there upon the hazy field.
Through grass and in between the stone,
I saw them all as I lay prone.
The purpose drawing them in file
Seemed unimportant, not worthwhile.
Here in my level, they were as big
As pebbles, chaff, or a small twig.
I held; I watched them slowly pass
Obscurely through the woods of grass.

Nutritional Education

America, according to our greatest scientists, is a half-sick Nation. It is estimated that there are over 45 million under-nourished people in this country. This does not mean that half of America is hungry, but it does mean that half of the people of this Nation do not have adequate meals. It is obvious that because most of these poorly nourished people do not understand what foods constitute a sound health-building diet, they lack that bouyant feeling of being well both mentally and physically. Since scientists know what foods are needed by people in order to keep them well, and in light of the fact that we have a greater abundance of food than any other nation, it is evident that the primary factor back of our national problem of malnutrition is ignorance.

The poor are not alone affected by food deficiencies, as it is found among those of the medium and high income brackets. As this is such a major and important problem upon which depends the health and well being of the present and future generations of this Nation, I am inclined to feel that the Government is the proper agency to mobilize our national resources to deal with this serious condition. While we are spending billions for defense, it would seem that Congress could scrape up a few millions with which to conduct a national program of nutritional education. If we can spend billions for defense, surely we can spend a few millions to teach the people how to keep themselves well by eating properly!

"State Of War"

The definition of "a state of war" cannot be the same that it was in 1914-18. The word "war" now covers much wider meanings. In the modern sense of the word we are and have been at war with Germany for many months, and certainly we are emphatically so now that the President has published his most recent orders to the Navy to destroy enemy craft in American waters, though we are not at war in the old sense.

In the light of the new meaning of "war," we need a new appraisal of the meaning of national loyalty. Suppose this war continues to all the usual lengths to which wars naturally go when once they are initiated? Where will that leave those sponsors of isolationism who continue and in all likelihood will continue indefinitely to sabotage verbally, at least, the American cause, since no open declaration of war has been declared by the Congress? Are not these appeasers and British haters just as disloyal to the United States, in the absence of such a declaration of war, as if such a declaration of war had been formally entered on the journals of the houses of Congress?

Nazi Euthanasia

I am very grateful for your editorial of September 15 in which you quote independent evidences to corroborate my charges that many thousands of ill and incurable Germans were put to death by the Nazis in 1940. I have today received a letter which provides a striking illustration of this practice of euthanasia which I am sure will interest you and reads in part as follows:

"I have read today's editorial in The Washington Post and I would like to inform you of an incident which happened last year in Vienna. It was brought to me by a relation who arrived from Vienna only a few months ago.

"Fraulein K., a close friend of mine, was for some years detained in an asylum in Vienna. She subsequently recovered and was released, but her name was evidently kept on the files of the asylum, together with those of many ill and incurable Viennese. Some months after the German invasion of France, she received written instructions from the Nazis to join the Freiwillige Arbeitsdienst. She was told to arrive at a station in Vienna at a given time to entrain for Germany. She arrived at the station and found there many of the people whom she had known at the asylum. She realized at once that the instructions were misleading and that she was in immediate danger. She succeeded in escaping and is alive and well today. Apparently, however, the officials in charge of the doomed men and women did not dare to report her escape to their superiors. Within a few days of the time set for her departure to Germany by the Nazis, her parents received a short note from the German police informing them of her death."

The writer of this letter was a former resident of Vienna and is well known in Washington.

War Or Peace—Who Decides?

The power to decide whether there be war or peace is not vested primarily or exclusively in the Congress of the United States, but chiefly in the enemy and, next to the enemy, in the President as the Chief Executive and Commander of our Army and Navy and head of foreign relations.

The enemy usually, almost always, begins the war.

The President then tells Congress about the war after it has begun and asks Congress to declare that "a state of war" exists between the United States and the enemy.

The President even before telling Congress about it has usually exercised his Constitutional privilege as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief and has struck back at the enemy as you and I would do if hit. Thus the wars of the United States have begun since the foundation of the Republic.

The British began the War of 1812 against the United States. "A state of war against the United States" already existed when Madison called it to the attention of the Congress. Even the peaceful Madison did a little fighting back against the British and the Indians. Congress didn't declare war against Great Britain but declared "war exists between Great Britain and the United States" by virtue of the acts of war committed by Great Britain.

According to Polk, the American forces were merely reconnoitering in the southern part of Texas, recently annexed by the United States, when the Mexican forces crossed into Texas and thus passed the boundaries of the United States and attacked the forces of the United States, and the President, recognizing that war existed by the acts of Mexico itself, called for volunteers to repel the invaders and asked Congress to recognize and declare "the existence of war" between Mexico and the United States and to take effective measures for war.

According to Lincoln, the Confederates were the aggressors—attacked Fort Sumter, the President called for volunteers, the great Civil War began, and Congress was told about it afterward.

The Spanish-Cuban War, which began a little differently, is merely an exception which proves the rule.

As everybody knows, the Germans began the World War by ruthlessly sinking our ships, and Wilson fought back with armed merchantmen and, finally, when his patience was exhausted, advised Congress that "a state of war" existed between the United States and Germany as a result of the unlawful attacks made upon our ships by Germany, and Congress then declared that "a state of war" existed and took adequate measures to defeat Germany.

The Germans have already extended World War II to us by sinking and shooting at our ships, and the President, as the Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief, has issued the orders to shoot back and eliminate the German submarines and raiders from the seas which we travel, at least within the broad zones established by us for our commerce.

Thus the United States has already entered World War II, at least within the zones prescribed by the President, and in due course Congress will be advised that "a state of war" exists and appropriately so declare.

While in actual practice Congress has little to do with whether there be war or peace, it nevertheless has a great function to perform in war: it controls the purse. By voting or withholding billions, it can make the wars of the United States effective or ineffective. To date it has never failed to recognize and declare existing war when requested by the President so to do, nor failed in its fundamental war function to carry the war on by furnishing the means for the successful prosecution thereof.

Color-Music

Music and pliant color would suggest strong affiliation. Each elusive, each having restless motion, fluctuating intensity, kaleidoscopic color changes.

An impressive example of color in release, free, moving, might be suggested by the glow and glory of sunsets we have all seen; or of an opalescent, nebulous dawn, shyly awakening from darkness, touched by its first color-tints. Each speaks and even overwhelms to our sensitive adjustment. Glory, the one; a precious, unearthly serenity the other.

A few words of the combination of color and music as given by my Motet Choral Society: Impressiveness of distance. A large hall. At the back of the stage a screen of dimension, whitened to receive color-variation. In front of the stage a body of singers, seated. A choral director, not disturbing through motion or mannerism. In the far-end of the hall an instrument to project color, varied color, varied tints, increase or decrease of intensity, pauses, shadows, light-glow. An assistant to manipulate, reading from musical scores marked by the conductor as to changes of color, intensities, interpretation.

The chorus sings, the colors have sympathetic play.

From darkness might evolve a color overture alone, rising, falling, fading into the first bars of the musical composition.

A new art may evolve through tender affiliation of music and pliant color. In the future even symphonic music may have its aura of color tranquillization.

The Post Impressionist

Around D. C.

If you chance to be among the many who have recently moved to Washington, do take advantage of your residence here in the Nation's Number One Showplace and acquaint yourself with your Capital.

When Pierre Charles L'Enfant, French artist, engineer, and Revolutionary soldier, turned his heart and mind to the designing of a capital city for George Washington's Americans about 150 years ago he selected as a site for the home of the Congress an eminence not far from the Potomac River which he described as "a pedestal waiting for its monument." This pedestal is now called Capitol Hill; the monument, the majestic and impressive United States Capitol.

President Washington appointed three commissioners to superintend the construction of the Capitol, and a request for plans was published. The plans submitted by Stephen L. Hallett were being considered as the most likely when a design was received from Dr. William Thornton, a native of the British West Indies who indulged in archecture as a hobby. Thornton's design won the approval of the Commission, which carried a prize of $500 and a building lot. Hallett was given an equal award and became the supervisor of the building to follow the Thornton plans.

The cornerstone of the Capitol was laid during the second term of President Washington. On the day of the ceremony the President and his suite crossed the Potowmack River (in Indian lore, "The River of the Meeting of the Tribes") and marched to the President's Square where they were joined by a large concourse of citizens. A procession was formed and advanced to the Capitol site—the first parade to pass on what has since become historic Pennsylvania Avenue. With the completion of the cornerstone ceremony, the official delegation and company partook of refreshments, including a 500-pound barbecued ox. (The trowel used by President Washington in laying the cornerstone of the Capitol is to this day used in cornerstone ceremonies.)

The original Capitol consisted of two separate rectangular buildings which were later connected by a central section covered by a low wooden dome. The Capitol did not fare too well when the British passed that way carrying a torch in 1814, but it was rebuilt and again sheltered the Congress.

Heat was provided in the Capitol in early days by wood burned in open fireplaces. Members of Congress wore hats and mufflers until debate warmed them up. Two liquor bars flourished in the building, one at either end. Many years passed before reformers were able to banish the sale of liquor in the Capitol. In 1897 the Senate bar was discontinued, but not until 1903 was the House bar ruled out.

Extensions were added to the Capitol in 1851. The present stately dome was completed during the Civil War; President Lincoln considered its completion as a symbol of union.

Atop the dome a 19½-foot figure, The Statue of Freedom, stands silhouetted against the sky. Miss Freedom's beauty—to many—is most apparent when the surrounding clouds are the darkest. And, by the way, she stands with her back to downtown Washington, for the city fathers—150 years ago—expected that the new Federal city would develop, principally, toward the east and faced the Capitol in that direction.

The 430-room Capitol covers 3½ acres with a floor area of 14 acres. The American Flag flies day and night the year around above the central entrances. A light burns above the dome only when Congress is in session at night.

Treat yourself to the thrill of standing in the rotunda and gazing upward toward dome and canopy, 183 feet above. Notice the rotunda frieze.

Visit Statuary Hall, where each State is privileged to place statues of two of its distinguished citizens, deceased. (Rhode Island was the first to respond with statues of Nathanael Greene and Roger Williams; the most recent statue to be unveiled was that of Huey Long, (Louisiana). Statuary Hall was at one time the old House of Representatives. There, former President John Quincy Adams, then a member of the House, sustained a stroke and died in a nearby room.

See the former Supreme Court Chamber in the Capitol, built along the lines of a Greek amphitheater. See the President's Room and the reception rooms.

As you leave the Capitol notice the east portico, for there on a platform built above the broad central stairway, the President of the United States, on Inaugural Day, takes the oath of office and delivers his inaugural address. Notice the spacious grounds surrounding the Capitol, and the stately trees. Also, make a point to pass the Capitol at night. You will be thrilled with the view of the dome outlined against the night sky.

If you have time, read the history of the Capitol. It contains a wealth of facts that interest. Read of the perilous ocean voyage suffered by the plaster model of Miss Freedom on its journey here from Rome, where the figure was fashioned by Thomas Crawford. (The model is now in the National Museum, Arts and Industries Building.) Read of the courtesy extended the ladies in the early 1800's when they visited the Halls of Congress. Ladies, and diplomats, were given the courtesy of a seat on the Floor, during debate. Read of the homicides, two in number, that have occurred in the United States Capitol. Had you heard that during the Civil War soldiers were quartered in the building, and that bread to feed part of the Army was baked there? Can you picture the Capitol grounds dotted with croquet sets that were placed there for the entertainment of the neighbors? Did you know that the Rotunda at one time was turned, practically, into a market place with many things for sale, ranging from mouse traps to pianos?

Today And Tomorrow

The New Orders To The Navy

THE CONSEQUENCES which are almost certain to flow from the new orders given to the navy are immensely important—so important, I venture to suggest, that we can seriously ask ourselves if it may not now be justifiable and actually desirable to reduce the size of the American Army. I realize, of course, that this sounds paradoxical and even sensational, and that there may be technical and other reasons why it is impractical to revise our military program.

LIPPMANN

But it certainly cannot be denied that the development of the war and this latest development of our own policy have together radically changed the situation which existed when the country decided to raise in feverish haste a great mass army.

UNDER its new orders the navy is now charged with the protection of shipping in the Northwestern Atlantic, and the obvious effect of that should be to reduce the sinkings and increase the flow of supplies to Great Britain. But that is by no means the whole effect of the new orders. Another effect, which is of world-wide importance, will be the release of many powerful British ships hitherto employed in the Northwestern Atlantic guarding convoys against Nazi cruisers and surface raiders.

It is no secret, since the facts have all been published in Japan, that the American fleet in the Atlantic contains several capital ships which are more than a match for any Nazi surface raider, excepting only the Tirpitz, sister ship of the Bismarck. For dealing with the Tirpitz, when she ventures out, the British have a fleet of their newest and fastest battleships. With the American capital ships guarding the Northwestern Atlantic against the other Nazi surface raiders, it is evidently no longer necessary for the British to keep all their biggest ships in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. Anglo-American superiority in the North Atlantic is, as respects surface ships, now immense. Thus British capital ships are freed for other tasks, and they are available, if needed, in the Pacific. For the first time, therefore, since the fall of France and Japan's alliance with the Axis, there is available for the defense of Singapore, of the supply lines to China, and of the Netherlands Indies, a powerful British fleet. Thus the new orders to the navy have done more than improve greatly the naval position in the crucial North Atlantic. They have drastically reinforced the security of the Pacific.

THE PRESIDENT did not mention Japan in his address. But the Japanese navy, which has been watching closely the movement of warships, will have understood what it must mean to make available at Singapore a fleet of British capital ships to sustain the very considerable supply of smaller ships already assembled in the South Pacific. With a British fleet available for Singapore, the naval position in the Pacific is now very different from what it has been this past year when there was only the American fleet, more or less frozen at Hawaii. Now, if Japan should embark on the great adventure, she would have powerful fleets in front of her, behind her, and in addition submarines and bombers on her flanks. This may not deter Japan from going to war. But certainly if anything can deter Japan, and strengthen the Japanese moderates, it will be the knowledge that the Japanese navy would have to fight at a great distance from its bases against superior forces so placed strategically that they can be most effective.

What we have done by the naval policy which has culminated in the new naval orders is to unfreeze our own naval power. By using it in collaboration with British naval power there now exist in both oceans naval forces against aggression which are not merely twice but many times greater than there were before. The combined power of the British and American navies is more than the arithmetical sum of the two navies; because collaboration has permitted the use of their respective forces where they can be most effective, the net effect is to multiply the real value of both navies. The underlying principle is quite simple: If John Smith has a thousand dollars in the bank and Tom Brown has a thousand dollars buried in the garden, neither will be as well off as if they formed a partnership and invested their capital jointly.

THIS radical reinforcement of the naval position in both oceans will produce a situation in which the original purpose of the lease-lend policy is more than ever feasible, and the basic promises of the policy are more than ever capable of being fulfilled. The purpose and the promise of the policy are to defend American vital interests by furnishing supplies to the nations resisting aggression in Europe and Asia. In so far as we succeed by our naval action in making the seas safe for the supplying of the armies of Britain, China, and Russia, we shall be sustaining in the field greater armies of seasoned troops than in the wildest isolationist nightmare we could ever dream of raising over here, much less of transporting overseas.

It is now more than ever probable that the original intention of the lease-lend policy can be carried through successfully, and that while the United States may become engaged in large-scale naval warfare, the use of large military forces is more than ever improbable. When we consider what the British, the Chinese, the Russians and their European allies are doing, and could do, if only they had enough tanks and airplanes and guns, it is clear that our most effective part in this war is now, and for any predictable future, to help hold the seas and to be the arsenal of those fighting aggression.

THAT is why it is now a practical question to ask whether a reduction in the size of our own army may not be sound policy. Obviously we must still have a considerable army to garrison our outposts and perhaps to occupy positions vital to the defense of the Western Hemisphere. But as long as we can hold the seas, we do not need a mass army for the defense of the Western Hemisphere. Beyond a comfortable minimum for the predictable future, it is certainly the fact that there is more to be gained by arming the British, the Chinese, and the Russians than by building over here an army on the European scale.

No doubt it would be making security doubly secure if we could have a great and ever-growing navy, a great and ever-growing airforce, a very large army, and in addition could arm and equip the huge armies of Britain, China, and Russia. But since we cannot do all these things fully at the same time, it may well be that the best policy now is to concentrate our principal efforts on the navy and the airforce and upon supplying the allied armies, and in respect to our own army, to work on a smaller scale.

IF on a weighing of the whole situation, this were the policy decided upon as the most prudent and the most effective, it would, I believe, have a profound effect in demonstrating to the world and to our own people that we have known what we were doing, that we have said what we meant and have meant what we said.

No such considerations ought to count, of course, if the military situation makes it unsafe to reduce the army. But if, as is, at least arguable, the military situation not only justifies but calls for a more modest army program, then it will be an incalculable advantage to prove in this—the most undeniably persuasive of all ways—that the promise not to engage American troops on far distant battlefields was honest, and not only honest but objectively correct, and that far from drifting from one entanglement to another, we are doing what we said we would do, and are succeeding.

Oklahoma In Red Fight

Nazi Tactics Charged

Oklahoma City, Sept. 17.—An officer disguised as an oil field worker bought some Communist literature in a hole-in-the-wall book store and thus began Oklahoma's criminal syndicalism prosecutions.

Now four Communists, one a woman, have been given the maximum under the law—ten years and $5000 fine—touching off a civil liberties controversy that probably will land in the United State Supreme Court.

Six others still are charged, and County Attorney Lewis R. Morris says the State will return to the prosecutions in October or November.

In 1917 there was a rebellion against the draft in Seminole County. That was the inspiration for the Criminal Syndicalism Act which the Legislature wrote upon the statute books in 1919.

It became a felony to advocate any political or industrial revolution by violence, or to be a member of any group or party whose beliefs ran along those channels.

In the summer of 1940, Oklahoma County dug from the dusty files this little-used law to base its charges against the Communists. John Eberle, assistant county attorney, launched the roundup.

Wade Webb, the police officer, testified at the trials that he put on oil worker's clothing, pinned his badge to his shirt tail, and visited the book store.

County officers, working with the police, raided the store on August 17, 1940, carted away thousands of books, rounded up known Communists there and in their homes.

First to feel the effects of the musty statute was Robert Wood, State Communist Party secretary. A district court jury gave him the limit when he was convicted on a charge that he distributed literature advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

Alan Shaw, city party secretary, got the limit on a charge that he was a member of a party advocating violent revolution.

Eberle interpreted the verdict as "outlawing the Communist Party in Oklahoma." Then the Legislature outlawed the party by statute and required State employes and teachers to take oaths that they did not belong to the Communist Party.

Eli Jaffe, a party worker, and Mrs. Wood were the next to get the limit. All four appealed to the criminal court of appeals and are at liberty under bond. The court has said it expects to reach their cases in about a year.

George Croom, counsel for Wood, accused the State of "Nazi tactics," basing his charge on these assertions:

That Wood and nearly a score of others were held incommunicado for four days; that principal defendants were held under "excessive" bonds of $50,000 each; that none was guilty of an overt act of violence, yet received the maximum sentence under the law.

Liberal groups from various parts of the Nation, studying these accusations, took up their cudgels for civil liberties.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, after Wood's wife was convicted, said editorially that the "Ku Klux spirit" reigned in Oklahoma.

The Publisher's Weekly, a New York trade journal, was alarmed because all the books in the store were seized.

The Oklahoma Federation for Constitutional Rights, organized by a group of liberal professors and ministers here and at the University of Oklahoma in Norman, added its protests.

The Oklahoma Senate's committee on privileges and elections embarked on a hunt for subversive activities, called in the federation's members, subpenaed the Communist leaders, reported at last with praise for the prosecution and a recommendation for dismissal of one professor.

The Bill of Rights committee of the American Bar Association asked for statements from local attorneys, got a reply from one, James D. Fellows, that the defendants' rights had been protected.

Arthur Garfield Hays, of the Civil Liberties Union, has been given permission to appear in the appeals before the higher State court.

High Court Gets Wage-Hour Plea

The Federal Wage-Hour Administration appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday from a decision holding that the Dallas News was within its rights in computing overtime paid to its employes on the basis of an agreed hourly wage which was above the required minimum pay.

Philip B. Fleming, the wage hour administrator, has said that if the lower court's decision is permitted to stand it would "largely destroy" the action of the legislation providing for a 40-hour work week.

Sub's Fatal Dive Still Mystery as Navy Ends Probe

Copyright by New York Times

The Navy yesterday closed the record of the Submarine O-9, which failed to emerge from a dive in more than 400 feet of water June 20, by publishing a report to the effect that the cause was unknown.

A board of inquiry, headed by Rear Admiral William T. Tarrant, which studied the loss at the site of the sinking off the New England coast and conducted exhaustive examinations at the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard, reported that the ship was in good condition and that its crew had been properly trained.

The O-9, which carried down 2 officers and 31 men, was built in 1918. It was decommissioned in 1921, and was recommissioned shortly before undertaking the test that resulted in its loss.

Independence Day

By Carlos C. Nagel

Chile, 131 Years A Free Country

TODAY the Republic of Chile celebrates its 131st anniversary of independence from Spain.

History tells us of the great significance such a date carried for every nation of the Americas during their first decades of freedom, when the memories of the price paid to gain that liberty was still vivid in the minds of those who had actively participated in the crusade. Their sons and grandsons, in reverence to their ancestors, or themselves seeing the slow but steady development of their nations, revered the date. Since then, however, and until a few years ago, the anniversary of independence of our nations in this hemispheree became a date observed meechanically. Routine festivities, mostly maintained by semi-compulsory participation of schools and ancient institutions, a parade of armed forces, laboriously prepared speeches prepared by political leaders, and a holiday for the clerk and laborer fulfilled and disposed of an obligation toward that liberty we had become to take so much for granted.

Today, facing a world in which liberty is becoming more and more rare and dear to maintain and keep, confronting an old world in which even ancient and once mighty Greece cannot call herself free anymore; we, the inhabitants of the nations of the Americas should impress in our memory and recall just how much it cost our ancestors to give us that freedom which today is in danger.

THREATENED by dictatorial powers from Europe, the Americas are forming a close net to protect that freedom given to us by men like Washington, Bolivar, San Martin, O'Higgins, Juarez and others. This close chain which we are forging at present for self-protection entitles us to know the temper of each of the links of which it is composed.

Today it is Chile that is celebrating an anniversary of independence.

There is no doubt that in that country today, 6000 miles away, the word "independence" is spoken with considerable thoughtfulness. What has not happened since the wars of independence is taking place today. Chileans are looking at their own power of resistance against aggression from within or from old Europe AND they are looking at their neighbors for cooperation to maintain that which suddenly has become so valuable to us all. The troops of Chile marching through the streets of Santiago in gala uniforms, are being looked upon today as units which might tomorrow have to fight for independence. Military representatives from sister countries in the Americas, participating in the festivities of today, will be considered in Chile as very possible allies of tomorrow.

LITTLE do we know about this particular link of defense called Chile, in fact little general knowledge do we have in the United States of the other nations of the Americas.

It is far away, and when mentioned, Chile generally appears in its abbreviation C, as if its name was not short enough as it is, at the rear of the well-used and well-known A-B-C of South America.

Chile is handicapped when it comes to incite the imagination of the average American. It has produced no gaucho nor tango, the maraca and the rumba are from somewhere else and bull-fighting is prohibited. The average Chilean doesn't even look or act like the popular conception of the South American. In fact, the American visitor to that country compares the Chileans to no other Latin-Americans. "Why," they exclaim, "even the American tooth-paste with American label is made in Chile!" The apartment buildings are a perfect replica of those in the States and the expected languorous Chilean walks in the streets faster than the busy Wall Street man at luncheon hour.

Delighted Americans have a time watching the energetic traffic policemen in the busy intersections of Santiago. "Just like our college band leaders," they comment.

TO A certain extent there is a good reason to find a similarity between the Chilean and the North American. The first settlers in the States did not come to this part of the New World looking for easy wealth and exciting adventure. In Chile, they did, but those Spaniards did not remain there after being properly disappointed. Those who came to stay and formed the basic racial Chilean type were the hard-working men from northern Spain, the Basque, and the Andalusian soldiers. These together with the small population of Arsucanian Indians, a proud and war-like race, accepted the late comers: English, Italian, Irish, Scotch, Scandinavian and German. All in all excellent ingredients which with a comparative recent dash of people from the Balkans and Yugoslavia, formed a man capable of coping with some of the adversity Chile has had to face.

This type of population was what Chile needed when it had to recover from at least two formidable wars and several economic debacles, similar to which no other country in the Americas has had to confront. When the United States faced the 1929 depression, the rest of the world went through the same to a certain degree. Chile was the exception but only to the extent of already having been fighting one for eight years. In 1921 that country began to see herself deprived of her main income, an income which until then rightfully had been considered as safe as United States bonds are to an American citizen. The Germans first, and later other nations began to make synthetic nitrate, and Chile had been practically the only nation that had been providing that vital product to the world. The subsequent world depression just added insult to injury.

Chile's long and orderly political life became affected. The life of Chile itself was at stake in those days: the normal mining production of 1928 dropped to a quarter of it in 1932. In 1929 over 10,000 automobiles were imported, in 1932 exactly 42 cars entered through the custom houses of Chile. The Chilean peso, from its normal exchange value of about eight pesos to the dollar dropped to 64 pesos. With a working population of 1,350,000 people, Chile had in 1932 135,000 unemployed.

Today Chile is coming back strong. Financially as well as industrially. The peso is good at 25 to the dollar in the open market. Well over 20 per cent of the foreign investment in dollars has been retired, quite advantageously for Chile, too. The country is well governed by a progressive administration, truly representative of the majority of the people. Its industries are booming and there are few things a Chilean needs to import, certainly no essentials. Today there is no unemployment problem. The Chileans have learned not to carry their eggs in one basket; their fruit and fishery industries are growing and the Chilean wine is becoming as well known in the States as it used to be in Europe.

THIS revival of a nation has taken place in spite of two years of interrupted commercial relations with Europe, a continent with which all South American nations had important business interchange.

The answer to such an accomplishment lies a good deal in the population of the country. It's a vital, aggressive people living in a climatically blessed country in which languor and decadence cannot develop.

The present World War has interrupted momentarily an industry that is bound to replace in wealth that of nitrate of soda.

The Chileans looked around their narrow and long country, they observed their ocean, truly pacific and beautiful, their long chain of snow-covered mountains, their virgin forests, fast rivers and magnificent lakes. They compared their country to other countries that have made themselves famous and prosperous through tourism and found that they had something to offer.

Today the country is equipped to receive the most exacting pleasure traveler. Its railroads are supposed to be the most up to date in the Americas. Vina del Mar, the leading beach resort of Chile, has luxurious and excellent hotels. Rich people from all over South America come to play a hunch in a casino which is supposed to be four times larger than the famous Casino of Monte Carlo while Americans are taken care of with dice tables that will make them feel at home.

THE southern lake region is rapidly becoming the main attraction of the tourist. It is the paradise of the traveler who wants rest and relaxation. Forest-bound lakes rich with game-fish (the average weight of the Chilean rainbow trout is 5 pounds), mountains and streams make it one of the most beautiful regions of South America. During the winter months (summer in the States) the long chain of mountains of the Andes offer what expert American skiers consider the best snow fields for the sport. Numerous skiing clubs have built mountain huts for the Chilean, and ever-increasing numbers of American enthusiasts are going there every season.

And speaking of Chile on her Independence Day, it is satisfying to be able to state that the Chilean, with all sincerity, is genuinely fond of the American and for what he stands for. In the present emergency the government of Chile, suddenly aware of unlawful activities by Germans allowed to reside in the country, has proceeded with strong hand. Prominent Germans, including diplomatic representatives of that country, who had been enjoying the generous hospitality of Chile, have been detained and are at present subject to deportation. Most important of all is the fact that a powerful group in Chile which until now had not believed in the need of a thorough housecleaning and still thought complete isolation as the best policy, today are willing to cooperate in the formation of a solid, all-American bloc of defense.

Chile's Ambassador in the United States, Senor Rodolfo Michels, a man who knows this country from Maine to California and makes it his job to know the people, is an outstanding political leader in Chile and has been revealed as an ideal representative of that country in the States. His thorough knowledge of the United States and inter-American affairs has contributed to Senor Michels' important aid in making Chile a strong link in our democratic hemisphere.

Uncle Sam Speaks

"Boy, do I feel different! . . . Not happy or exultant . . . Not cocky, y'understand . . . Just relieved . . . Just cleaner and better for having shucked off that old cloak of hypocrisy, two-facing, artful dodging and general zigzagging . . . I never was much of a zigzagger, 'specially when there was more zigging than zagging.

"Peace is still my aim . . . I'm for war only when there's no other way out . . . The idea of human beings leaping at each other's throats sickens me and I'd avoid any part of it if I could do it with honor . . . If there was ever a war I'd rather not get into THIS IS IT!

"But I like to know where I stand . . . 'specially when somebody is kicking me in the face . . . I hate pussyfooting . . . Squirming ain't up my alley and never has been . . . Dodging and trimming all over the lot give me a pain in the pants. . . . Not that I'm any giddy, lightheaded rusher into free-for-all fights! . . . Not that I ain't for self-control and level headedness as opposed to bloody shirt waving . . . Not me!

"What I mean is I like the issue clear-cut, the cards on the table, the job squarely stated and my position put right on the line so I know where I'm at.

"I like to know whether I'm supposed to be for the ancient idea of freedom of the seas or if it's just something played on a part-time basis and for special occasions, with flutes and cellos replacing backbones and haymakers.

"The last war was a terrible lesson to yours truly . . . Boy, was I played for a sucker in that one! . . . Was I taken both ways from the middle! . . . I went in for freedom of the seas, world democracy and the brotherhood of man . . . And I came out with the worst headache in history, the biggest bunch of worthless I O U's ever stacked in one pile.

"And even England and France, the boys I went in to help stopped bowing to me as their Buddy and filed me in their records with Humpty Dumpty.

"I got fed up with this saving Europe business . . . I wanted to be through with it . . . I hope I still can avoid doing the first half of that show all over again . . . It don't cheer me up to see the war getting closer and closer. . . . But I never was a yellow dog . . . I never was a coward . . . I never felt at my best ducking, dodging, word twisting and phrase making.

"'An end to hair-splitting' . . . 'Feet on the ground' . . . 'Our ships will protect all American ships engaged in commerce' . . . 'Preserve America's ancient traditions' . . . Well, it takes me out of the smoke and fog and fetid atmosphere of evasion and subterfuge and microphonic monkey-shines, anyhow.

"I know where I stand, which way I'm facing and just what's expected of me . . . And that's something!"

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

The Federal Court Bill's Purpose

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has now dropped that other shoe in his two-part discussion in Collier's of the attempt to pack, or unpack, the Federal courts and I find, on careful study of both pieces, that he has entirely evaded discussion of one of the principal points of the original proposal which was slyly expressed and was denounced as iniquitous.

PEGLER

So fast and confusing has been the rush of events in these years of the New Deal, and so superficial is most of our reading on vital issues, that the court fight left most of us with an impression that only the Supreme Court was to have been packed or, if you insist, unpacked. However, the original bill called for the appointment of additional circuit and district judges as well, who, obviously would be chosen for their political bias, and there was a further provision, expressed in just two words, "hereafter appointed," that these new men and these men only might be assigned to duty outside their home districts.

JOHN C. KNOX, the senior judge of the Southern District of New York, a New Dealer himself, detected and denounced this hidden-ball trick in the hearings held by the Senate Judiciary Committee and he deals with that opposition of his in his memoirs, "A Judge Comes of Age," published this year. Quoting from his statement to the Judiciary Committee, Judge Knox's book reads:

"Passing now to a feature of the proposed bill that seems not to have been particularly stressed in the hearings had before your committee and which, in my opinion, is almost as objectionable as that having to do with the Supreme Court, I call attention to provisions of the act dealing with the assignment of judges from one circuit or district to another. If the new circuit and district judges who come to power under the plans of the President are to be selected because of their young blood and forward-looking ideas, the bill now under consideration exhibits a consistency of purpose that is of sinister aspect to every man who, upon principle, is opposed to the use of a stacked deck of cards." Judge Knox then puts a finger on the two stealthy words, "hereafter appointed," and asks, "What good reason can be advanced for the exclusion from needed service of men who, for years, have demonstrated ability and impartiality and who are qualified by experience to discharge any judicial task that may come before them? If I were asked to answer the question I should reply that, without further information from the proponents of the bill, there is a possibility that somewhere there is someone who fears that judges heretofore appointed will not be amenable to suggestion as to how particular cases should be decided. So far as the Southern District of New York is concerned, I desire that it should never for any purpose whatsover be beleaguered by a flying squadron of judges who, perhaps under some conditions, might be classified as privateers."

THE REPORT of the Judiciary Committee also addressed in similar vein this now conveniently forgotten attempt to pack the lower courts. The committee also put a finger on those two words "hereafter appointed" and said that such a plan "creates a flying squadron of itinerant judges appointed for districts and circuits where they are not needed, to be transferred to other parts of the country for judicial service."

"To a greater and greater degree," the committee reported, "under modern conditions, the Government is involved in civil litigation with its citizens. Are we then through the system devised in this bill to make possible the selection of particular judges to try particular cases?"

And in the summary of the adverse report the Judiciary Committee flatly charged that the bill was presented to Congress "in a most intricate form and for reasons that obscured its real purpose."

"IT CONTAINS the germ of a system of centralized administration of law that would enable an executive so minded to send his judges into every judicial district in the land to sit in judgment on controversies between the Government and the citizen. It is a measure that should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America."

Here both a judge Democratic in his politics and sympathetic with the New Deal and the Senate Judiciary Committee expose a subtlety and impugn the good faith of its proponents and the committee flatly charges that the real purpose of the bill was obscured.

This whole issue is ignored, however, in President Roosevelt's triumphant and self-vindicating magazine discussion of the fight.

Autumn Storms On Black Sea May Upset Germans' Program

Autumn storms on the Black Sea might affect any German attempt to attack the southwest Russian coast with water-borne troops, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Dispatches from Turkey have speculated on the possibility of a Nazi invasion of the Crimea or the Caucasus from Bulgarian and Rumanian ports.

"At the time of the spring and autumn equinoxes," the bulletin explains, "there often are violent winds which endanger Black Sea shipping. These are particularly strong in the west, where Nazi transports would begin their voyages.

"A German move across the Black Sea apparently would be launched from Burgas and Varna, Bulgaria, and perhaps Constanta, Rumania. These ports are 250 to 325 miles from Sevastopol, Soviet naval base in southern Crimea. It was from Varna that the British, French and Turkish forces sailed to fight the Russians around Sevastopol in the Crimean War.

"The Crimean Peninsula, slightly larger than Vermont, juts 100 miles southward into the Black Sea but receives a large measure of natural protection from three mountain ranges. These ranges cut off the cold north winds so that the southern Crimea has virtually no winter.

"Sevastopol, a city of 80,000, commands one of the most spacious and sheltered harbors along the Black Sea. It used to be a leading grain port for the eastern Ukraine, but in recent years its harbor has been given over primarily to naval activities. Dockyards, ship repair basins, a submarine testing course, and a naval observatory make it one of the principal Soviet naval bases.

"Another Russian Black Sea port which has figured in talk of a German attack is Batumi (usually Anglicized to 'Batum'), at the eastern end of the sea near the Turkish frontier. It is more than 700 miles from Burgas. Batumi is important as the terminal of an oil pipe line from the large Baku fields across the Caucasus Isthmus on the Caspian coast.

Pilot Killed in Midair Crash

Streaking through the air in a high-powered pursuit ship of the Second Army, Lieut. John Bobroski, of Racine, Wis., crashed in midair with a Navy dive bomber yesterday, plunged to earth as the tail was ripped from his fighting plane and was killed.

Bobroski was tailing the Navy plane in a mock "dog fight" in the air over Barksdale Field, La. Fighting planes in the Second Army group were demonstrating how to defend the field and nearby bridges from demolition by dive bombers.

CARNIVAL FOR THE DEMOCRATIC WORLD

By Robert R. Rand
Post Staff Writer

The six members of the Little Helpers' Good Deed Club have declared war on Hitler. Puting aside all personal problems last month, no matter how dear, they are now launched on an all-out effort to "help those who are not as fortunate as we are."

Their ages added together total three score years and two, and collectively they have all that should go with that period in life—devotion to ideals, an awareness of their responsibility, a sense of dignity for their work, and a mature, calm determination to overcome all obstacles.

On the "carnival grounds," Joan Magnus sells lemonade to George Lyerly

Divided by six, their combined 62 years are as follows: Joyce Green, 11, 5309 Eighth Street Northwest; June Kershenbaum, 11, 802 Ingraham Street Northwest; Joan Magnus, 10, 5310 Eighth Stret Northwest; Linda Mae Jelinek, 10, 5320 Eighth Street Northwest; Barbara Hutzell, 10, 725 Ingraham Street Northwest, and Mary Ann Newell, 10, 736 Ingraham Street Northwest.

Since the last week in August, this young group has been hammering nails into Hitler's coffin steadily, day after day. First, they bought beads in the dime store, and after spending hours of stringing them, they went from house to house, selling them "in the name of freedom." The proceds go to Bundles for Britain.

Following the successful termination of that phase of the battle, these anti-Hitlerites began to gather old clothes in the neighborhood. Many hours were spent in washing them, sewing them, and getting them into condition to send abroad.

"We want to help the kids over on the other side of the ocean, the ones who can't have all the good things we have," says Joyce Green, temporary president of the group. (The Little Helpers' Good Deed Club has a "rotating" president, so that each girl will have a chance for leadership.)

"When we started the club," continued Joyce, "some of us wanted to call it the Little Helpers' Club, and some wanted to call it the Good Deed Club. So, for — because — well, for unity, we decided to call it the Little Helpers' Good Deed Club."

Yesterday, and the day before, the club launched its final battle of the season against totalitarianism. (School opens soon, it was explained.)

After several days of secret preparations, a carnival was opened to the democratic world in the yard of 725 Ingraham Street Northwest, home of one of the members. There, in a colorful display (crepe paper and orange crates), and to the accompaniment of modern music (a phonograph), one could drink lemonade, munch refreshments, be driven through the "carnival grounds" on a cart, or play in gameland and trickland. The cost was three cents per, or two for five.

This last battle was victorious. Coins jingled in for two days, as more than fifty children in the neighborhood availed themselves of the inexpensive entertainment. Late yesterday afternoon, the fighters were reaching their goal—five dollars.

"And we won't stop here," the club members said last night. "When the season (school) is over, we'll continue with the fight. Even if we can't do a lot, at least we're doing something to help democracy."

Strike Blacks Out Kansas City

The unheralded power strike which blacked out Kansas City, plunging hospital operating rooms into darkness and stalling laden street cars, was checked last night with the arrest of six power plant strikers, one of them an A. F. L. union representative.

Police Chief Harold Anderson placed charges of sabotage and malicious mischief against the men. He said: "If any deaths have been caused by this the charges should be murder."

Meanwhile, Herbert Schneider, jr., 2 (right), rallied as the respirator which aids his breathing resumed its work. The child, an infantile paralysis victim, was taken from the "iron lung" when power was turned off at midnight Tuesday. The boy's mother remained at her son's side yesterday.

Solomon was injured when his auto struck a street car loading platform shortly after the city was plunged into darkness by strikers

2. CANDLES WERE SCARCE—Three nurses at the Kansas City General Hospital had only one candle to light the children's ward. Nurses Ellen Huntley, Kathleen Moyer and Frances Briscoe gather round the flickering light to give their charges 2 a. m. feedings, two hours after the city's blackout

3. MAYOR ON THE JOB—Mayor John B. Gage (right) of Kansas City, picked his way through the dark corridors of police headquarters by flashlight shortly after midnight to ask Sergt. Melvin Douglas if there was adequate police protection during the blackout. Sergt. Douglas worked by the light of a candle and the lantern at right

Going to College Here This Fall . . . ?

Washington College of Law Retains Interest in Women Students

By Earl J. Wilson

The Washington College of Law is a monument to the efforts of two determined women to change a curious situation that existed in Washington during the eighteen nineties.

In 1896 women were admitted to practice before all the courts of the District, the Supreme Court of the United States and the Executive Departments. But they were denied admission to any school in the District.

"Sort of hang your clothes on the hickory limb but don't go near the water," the Dean of the Washington College of Law observed yesterday.

Two women, Eleen Spencer Mussey and Emma M. Gillett, who were practicing attorneys in Washington realized the need for equal education facilities here for both men and women. In February 1896 they founded a school for that purpose. Classes were held in their offices for a while and two years later the school was incorporated as the Washington College of Law.

Today in the school's building at 2000 G Street Northwest the women's atmosphere still pervades. On the walls of the office hang pictures of the two founders, and Dean Grace Hays Riley who graduated from the school herself in 1908, heads the faculty.

"The aims of the school were to assure the admission of women to the study of law and, while men now predominate in our classes, we still keep our interest in the advancement of women students," Dean Riley said.

This is a good year for women to begin the study of law. "It is a fact," she said, "that when war comes women's opportunities develop and if they are prepared they profit by it."

This year the school expects to enroll nearly 150 students. Most of these will be men and women employed in the Government, Dean Riley said.

To enter the Washington College of Law students must produce evidence of completion of at least sixty semester hours of college work. Upon completion of three years work in the school the degree of Bachelor of Laws is conferred upon the student.

In the day division the work is divided into two and three hour sessions beginning at 9:10 a. m. Monday to Friday. The evening division hold sessions on the same days from 5:10 p. m. to 7 p. m. Tuition for the day and evening divisions is $180 and $140 respectively.

The armed forces of a great democracy really are nothing more than the clenched fist of the people. Behind that clenched fist are all the genius, the loyalty, and the industry of the people.

If the people and the industries of the nation are not dedicated as solemnly as the armed forces to the purposes of the nation, then the armed force will lack the stamina and the singleness of purpose which are so necessary in times like these.

In this democratic nation the rights and the freedom of the individual have been developed as nowhere else on earth. Now, in the hour of danger, it is vital that our freedom-loving people should stand as one in the support of National Defense.

We want you to know that these stores are doing their part in all possible ways to back National Defense. Let us all do our best to eliminate waste, to conserve labor and materials for the nation's use and buy Defense Stamps to help pay the bills.

lease equipment it receives from the United States.

Restrictive language inserted in the new lend-lease appropriation measure that discriminated against Russia would, of course, hamstring this joint Anglo-American program to send large amounts of American-made weapons to the Soviets.

No Russian Materials En Route

None of the materials which Russia promises to deliver in repayment are en route, Jones told a press conference, and he does not expect the RFC to be fully repaid for two or three years. This was interpreted to mean that Russia will be able to make repayment at its convenience, perhaps after the war is over.

When asked if the remaining half of the 100 million dollars involved also might be advanced to Russia soon, Jones indicated that it would be, if necessary.

"We will be glad to help Russia any way we can within our financial ability and within reason," he said, "as long as they are fighting the way they are."

The loan administrator and Secretary of Commerce said that he believed the Soviets would need a great deal more than this initial cash advance and that they have now exhausted their supply of dollar exchange in the United States.

The 50 million dollars being immediately advanced will pay for a great deal of material, "as much as they can get shipping space for for a good many weeks," he stated.

Day-to-Day Aid Basis

The Administration's program of aid to the Soviets, he said, is on a "day-to-day basis," a remark that was taken to mean that Russia's fortunes in war will have a lot to do with determining how much more help she will receive.

The cash advance was the first credit extended to Russia since the Communist Revolution there in 1917. In 1933, soon after recognition of the Soviet Union by the United States, the Russians attempted to secure credits here but were unsuccessful.

The President's letter to Jones, instructing him to make the funds available to Russia, follows:

September 12, 1941

"Dear Mr. Administrator:

"The Russian government needs dollar exchange with which to buy war supplies in the United States; we need many critical and strategic materials produced in Russia, some of which we normally import from that country.

"To assist the Russian government in paying for war supplies which it wants to buy in the United States, and which it can get in limited quantities, and to expedite our own national defense program, I would like you to arrange through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or one of its subsidiaries, for the purchase from Amtorg Trading Corporation, a United States Corporation owned by Russian interests, of manganese, chromite, asbestos, platinum and other articles and materials which we usually import from Russia, up to the value of 100 million dollars, for delivery as rapidly as possible, with proper allowance for dislocation of transportation and of their productive facilities, and that advances up to 50 million dollars be made against the purchase price of these critical and strategic materials, to be used by Russia in paying for purchases in this country.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

(The lens caught the pictures clearly).

Duquesne exhibited drawings of a gun and baby tank for transportation in an airplane—the airplane had not yet been designed—and a large tank with deflector plates, said Friedeman.

"He said he saw in Tennessee" Friedeman said, "an antitank device which the Government called a 'deep-dyed secret'—a pill box buried in the ground with room for one man to operate against tanks."

Show Bomb Making

Friedeman said Duquesne's gestures pantomimed the preparation and explosion of bombs.

In the background were a calendar—registering June 25, 1941, two days before the round-up of 33 persons, 17 of whom have pleaded guilty—and a clock, whose minute hand went from 6:18 to 6:42 during the showing.

Friedeman testified that from the adjoining room he was able to see and hear everything that went on in Sebold's office.

Duquesne, Friedeman added, said in a discussion of incendiary bombs that "candy split into two pieces with a combustible phosphorous compound inserted before putting the pieces together again, made a good and safe incendiary bomb.

"He said it was best, however, to use chewing gum. It was to be well chewed, he said, and then wrapped around a phosphorous compound which would not ignite until the temperature rose above 75 degrees. He said that in this manner it could be planted on wharves on a cold day and would not set fire until a couple of days later.

"He said a workman could plant these incendiary bombs while speaking to the boss."

Under cross - examination by Frank J. Walsh, Duquesne's counsel, Friedeman said: "Duquesne said he had dropped these bombs in times past on dock facilities."

Friedeman quoted Duquesne as having told Sebold he had looked over the General Electric plant a year earlier and that it was Duquesne's purpose to blow it up.

Sebold had testified that he was assigned by the German Gestapo to spy in the United States. He informed the FBI of this on his arrival here early in 1940, and the FBI built and operated for him a "spy" radio on Long Island which became a communications system for German agents here.

The Navy chief did not answer directly, but said that it must be remembered that since the World War "many more methods of providing for the security of merchant ships have been developed."

"Only One of Methods"

"The escort of convoys by combatant ships is only one of the methods to be used and is being used," Knox added.

The Navy chief's disclosure stirred isolationist circles on Capitol Hill. Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, declared that it was "contrary to all Administration promises," and recalled President Roosevelt's statement of a year ago that "convoying means shooting and shooting means war."

Earlier, there was a brief but heated attack in the House on the President's new orders to the Navy. Representatives Woodruff (Republican), of Michigan, said that the order to shoot was "nothing less than a declaration of war" and that neither the Army or Navy was ready for war now. Representative Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, urged that President Roosevelt "be taken out of office."

Secretary Knox said that the Navy has been making intensive preparations during the last year to provide adequate "local defense" of harbors, bases and shore-lines so that the Fleet can be free to move anywhere. Such plans, he said, have included the construction and conversation of small patrol vessels, procurement of submarine nets and mines and vessels to tend them, and the training of crews for such work.

Rear Admiral Alexander Sharp, who is in charge of such "local defense" plans, told reporters that the Navy was "already in the process" of laying anti-submarine nets in some harbors.

A reporter asked if this was being done for "practice" only.

Questions Sidestepped

Knox declined to answer questions as to whether the Navy was convoying merchant ships to Iceland and then turning them over to the British. He also refused to specify the areas in which the fleet is operating to hunt down Axis raiders. To give out such information would be "unwise and indiscreet," he stated.

"I will say this, howver," Knox added, "wherever we regard our defense as essential and we think there is need for naval activity, the activity is going on."

The Navy has had no "brushes" with German warships since President Roosevelt issued his orders to "shoot first" last week, the Secretary dclared. Asked if such incidents would be made public, Knox replied:

"If we catch a raider, we'll tell the world."

Galapagos Searched

He said that the German vessels were operating from bases in Norway and France, but declined to discuss the question of blockading such centers. Despite rumors of hidden bases in the Western Hemisphere, ships of the fleet have searched islands off the coast of South and Central America, such as the Galapagos, without success, it was said.

Knox told reporters he had not yet formed a "firm opinion" on the suggestion that the United States modify the Neutrality Act to permit the arming of American merchantmen. One factor is a lack of guns for such work, though the gun crews are trained and ready, he stated.

Bates Suggests Soldiers Be Given Tobacco Rations

Representative Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky, said yesterday he had written Secretary Stimson asking the War Department's attitude toward including cigarettes and tobacco in soldiers' daily rations.

He suggested that if a soldier smoked a pack of cigarettes a day, that would take one-fourth of his salary.

Bates told Stimson that some of the selectees had told him that depriving themselves of cigarettes was "responsible for much of their unhappiness" and added:

"They tell me that time after time they have seen smoke-hungry soldiers dive into gutters to rescue the but of a cigarette from a passing automobile."

Bates said he had not received a reply to his letter.

mediately to work," and it also called upon A. F. L. leaders to exert their influence to that end.

The employes had ignored a recommendation of the Mediation Board that they continue at work pending a settlement of the controversy between them and an independent union by the National Labor Relations Board. When they walked out of the power plant, Kansas City suffered a "black-out" that lasted four hours.

Appeal By Davis

Chairman Davis, in his appeal yesterday, told how the Mediation Board had recommended that the parties to the controversy permit the issues to be resolved under the legal processes of the National Labor Relations Act.

"The strike that went into effect last night," he said, "is a rejection of that recommendation. The National Labor Relations Act, which has been described as the Magna Charta of trade unionism in the United States, gives to this union an orderly method of obtaining the recognition for which it is now striking—it is labor's own act.

"In this emergency the universal and ungrudging acceptance of the letter and spirit of the act by employers is a compelling obligation. It is an equally compelling obligation on the part of labor to seek and follow its legal remedy in preference to direct action in such cases as this. All the pressure of public opinion is called for to enforce these obligations."

President Orders Expansion And Shakeup of Export Control

already has signed several such contracts.

The reorganization in effect made Wallace the overlord of exports of many categories for the entire Western Hemisphere, for the United States is now in the position of having to ration its neighbor nations in their requests for supplies of materials that are vitally needed here for the defense program.

Control of Economic Destinies

The President's order, besides giving the Economic Defense Board control over all exports that require a Government license, also designated the board as the agency to "obtain, develop and determine overall estimates of materials and commodities required for export purposes in the interest of the economic defense of the Nation, exclusive of lend-lease operations."

Such figures, when compiled, are to be referred to the SPAB, which has been made the central defense planning agency.

This task really means that Wallace's agency will hold in its hands control over the economic destinies of a score of Latin-American nations that need raw materials to keep their industries running. Holding the friendship of these nations by judicious rationing will be an important part of the board's work.

The Economic Defense Board also will be the central office where exporters, manufacturers and foreign importers may submit proposals for the export of commodities and materials, and it also will clear such proposals through the necessary Government channels.

This centralization is expected to cut red tape, eliminate duplication and be a parallel to the recent simplification of priorities procedure in the domestic defense set-up.

That economic warfare will be uppermost as the governing policy was assured when Wallace declared:

"The international crisis requires a determined intensification of our policy of preventing shipments to Axis-dominated countries.

"At the same time we must help see to it that other nations in that part of the world which is still free get enough goods to maintain the stability of their own economies insofar as that is possible. This is particularly important in the Western Hemisphere."

The expanded production of raw materials, said Wallace, will have to be secured by expansion of production facilities both here and abroad, conversion of more nondefense plants to military use, working more shifts and paying premium prices for minerals from low-grade ores.

He called for an "ever-normal stockpile" of critically needed metals and other materials, to complement the ever-normal granary already ordered by Agriculture Secretary Wickard.

tax bill is a more permanent tax structure, through which revenue can be raised or lowered at need by changes chiefly in tax rates.

A time extension in relief for those taxpayers bearing defense plant construction costs meanwhile was provided in a bill approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. The bill extends to six months the time in which certificates can be obtained permitting deduction of defense plant building costs from excess profits over a five-year period.

The law now requires certification from the joint Army-Navy board that such new facilities are necessary for defense, within 60 days after construction is started. Besides extending the time, the new bill permits certification by either the Secretary of the Navy or the Secretary of War, depending on jurisdiction.

A blast at the $3,553,400,000 tax bill earlier was aimed by Labor's Nonpartisan League, which charged in a statement "harsh treatment of low income groups."

John T. Jones, director of the league, alleged "steamroller tactics in the House and absence of full debate in the Senate," with no leadership fight for Treasury proposals to tax excess profits, estates and large incomes more heavily. He said labor "must be alert against discriminatory taxation in the next revenue bill."

"No effort," said the league's statement, "was made by the representatives of either party to gain the enactment of progressive provisions with respect to loopholes in income tax law and the estate and gift taxes, in the inadequate excess profits taxation or various unwarranted excise taxes, as well as the lowering of income tax exemptions."

Henderson Approves Coal Price Rise

ities had increased from 150 on August 16 to 157 on September 13 and were still trending upward. Living costs generally rose 1 per cent from mid-July to mid-August, he said, and had advanced 7½ per cent since August 1929.

Questioned by Representative Sumner ((Republican), of Illinois, he said the country is in the midst of "a mild inflation," with production leveling out but prices still rising.

The Associated Press said last night that opposition to Henderson as the prospective price-control administrator appeared likely to delay the Administration's price-control bill still further. Some Democratic members of the committee suggested, it is reported, that provision would be made for a board to administer the law, and others predicted that Senate confirmation would be required not only for the administrator but for his subordinate officials "pretty well down the line."

Every Parisian Faces Execution

most to prevent serious German reprisals in Paris. But he expressed fear that if the attacks continued the Germans would take more and more into their own hands the police administration of the occupied capital, perhaps imposing a dusk curfew and shooting many more hostages.

On the latter point the new German warning, from both the Nazi military administration in Paris itself and the German Field Command in occupied France, was explicit. It threatened that "an increasing number of hostages" would be executed and that they "no longer will be taken exclusively from among the Communists but from all classes of the Paris population"—in the event the attacks go on.

Only Tuesday the Germans in Paris shot ten hostages, all described as Communists and Jews, in reprisal for three attacks on German soldiers. A few hours before the executions, a German noncommissioned officer who died today was shot in the back, his assailant escaping.

In Paris tonight German and French police worked overtime. One of their jobs was to track down by house-to-house search a so-called terrorist secret headquarters somewhere in the Eleventh Arrondissement, working-class ward which has been the scene of previous disorders and mass arrests.

Woman Witness Sought

Police also were seeking a woman witness to the shooting of the noncommissioned officer and trying to find the kidnapers of 20-year-old Manuel Heurteaux, son of an important colleague of Marshal Petain. Heurteaux was kidnaped nine days ago in the Passy section of Paris.

The two men who kidnaped young Heurteaux were described by some sources as impersonators of German police. They entered a garage which the elder Heurteaux operates near the Trocadero, inspected the papers of Manuel and his brothers, and spirited the young man away in a car.

Latin-American Nations Begin Roundup of Nazis in Earnest

By John Lear
Associated Press Staff Writer

Buenos Aires, Sept. 17.—When the Argentine committee investigating subversive activities seized a German short-wave radio transmitter, a coded message was found hidden in the box in which the transmitter was packed.

The committee translated it as follows:

"La Paz if unable to stay in Lima. Follow instructions for ambassadors' conference in Santiago to the letter."

Last March the German diplomatic chiefs in Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Peru and Uruguay held a conference in Santiago, Chile. The meeting was more or less accidental, the five men declared, because they were all on vacation and had gone to Santiago because it is one of South America's vacation spots.

None of the five has said publicly what they discussed, but one of the five, Edmond von Thermann, German Ambassador to Argentina, who has just been invited to go back home, had recently returned from Berlin.

While the Minister to Uruguay was attending the meeting, the German press attache in Buenos Aires, Gottfried Sandstede, took over his job as charge d'affaires in Montevideo. Six months later Sandstede fled from Argentina by airplane to escape questioning by the Argentine Chamber of Deputies committee investigating un-Argentine activities.

Radio Seized on Plane

In July the committee seized, aboard a commercial plane, the radio transmitter being carried from the German Legation in Lima to the German Embassy in Buenos Aires under what the German government termed "diplomatic immunity."

The man who carried the radio slept beside it for four nights on airport floors in two Peruvian cities rather than let anyone else handle it even for a few hours.

In La Paz, Bolivia, that month, the German Minister to Bolivia, Ernst Wendler, left his post on demand of the Bolivian government after it announced discovery of a letter addressed to Wendler, signed by a Bolivian army officer, Elias Belmont, who was stationed in Berlin, discussing a conspiracy to overthrown Bolivia's President.

Now Van Thermann is under a vote of censure of the Argentine Congress and possessor of an invitation to leave, and the German colonies in each of the nations in which the four other men who conferred at Santiga are stationed, are under scrutiny, in one way or another, by the nations in which they live.

These incidents which have come to light—dated within less than a year—are accepted by many informed quarters as evidence of a tie between fifth columns in South America.

How many and how strong such fifth columns are, depends, in a way, on the definition of a fifth column.

Wide Range of Activities

South American definitions range from armed bodies of men and soldiers plotting revolt to welfare societies, operators of secret radios, scientists mapping strategic rivers and nearby sources of war materials, and wild natives with oil drums hidden in their jungle swamps.

But here is what persistent investigators have learned to date:

Argentina—The committee found an "almost military" organization of 60,000 men, formed into "cells" under the guise of welfare work, sworn to support Hitler, watched to make sure of their loyalty, punished for lapses, taxed to maintain a system which feeds children Nazi doctrine through fairy tales.

Chile—Across the border from the places where those cards were discovered, Chilean government agents reported caches of guns and ammunition, and battle practices complete with machine guns under direction of a uniformed, army-like organization of 25,000 men wearing swastikas on their coat lapels. Maps seized there indicated the organization controlled air fields and radio stations on islands along the coast and in the southern lake region which afford the easiest entrance to Argentina.

Bolivia—While Chile was putting a careful thumb on her Nazis, Bolivia was arresting the son of her Ambassador to Chile. No explanation has been offered for his continued detention. An inquiry into anti-Bolivian activities is continuing. Details of a reported revolt plot have not been given to Congress, but focal points have been named as oil fields—from which the Germans once wanted to run pipelines to the Atlantic Coast.

Brazil — German agitation has been quieter as the result of laws against foreign language schools and centralized control of communications. The heavily concentrated German population has been deemed less dangerous since President Vargas declared himself for the United States and his son-in-law quit a job with the Italian Lati Airline, which crosses the South Atlantic.

Peru—Peru halted activities of the German-subsidized, so-called news agency, Transocean, and grounded a German airline after Congress voted to protest an unauthorized flight over the Ecuadorian border which precipitated a new outbreak in the border war.

Ecuador—President Arroyo del Rio, blaming Axis influences for Peru's attitude toward the border dispute, closed Ecuador's German-owned airline which carried army officers free and sought permission to fly to the lonely Galapagos Islands, south of the Panama Canal.

German Airline Nationalized

Colombia—Has nationalized the German airline after it was found to be mapping approaches to the Panama Canal. Later, President Santos broke up a military plot, seized a group of "scientists" exploring the southeast flatlands, which are believed to be rich in undeveloped oil and are called a hotbed of propaganda brought surreptitiously upstream from Brazil.

The government announced an investigation of reported Nazi air bases on the Caribbean coast mentioned by President Roosevelt in a recent speech. In the hills dividing Colombia and Venezuela, Editor Arturo Regueros Peralta was shot to death just before he was due to testify in Washington in the United States investigation of the Transocean agency.

Uruguay—The Transocean investigation in Washington really started in Uruguay, where South America's first decisive Nazi inquiry last year disclosed a bomb depot, broke up a cellular organization and put eight Nazi leaders in jail. More recently a pro-Nazi deputy was ejected from Congress.

Paraguay—Decreed death for Fifth Columnists a week after the Bolivian putsch was smashed. Paraguay decreed a curfew a short time later, then lifted it without explaining "student strikes" and "labor troubles."

Venezuela—German technicians have long since been rooted out of strategic oil fields, but a Nazi agent was seized a few weeks ago on oil fields which specialized in aviation fuel. Secret radios still broadcast anti-Yankee talk.

Kansas City Acts To Balk Blackouts

Surprise Strike Called Outlaw; 6 Union Men Seized

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Sept. 17.—Electric current gave light and motion to this city again tonight under the watchful eyes of civil and military officials determined to block any recurrence of a surprise strike that paralyzed the metropolitan area for four early morning hours.

Prompt official action smothered the strike, termed outlaw by Mayor John B. Gage and A. F. L. brother unions of the strikers, but not before it had impeded the work of defense plants, blackedout hospitals, stopped electric-powered transportation and threatened the water supply.

At the height of the strike, police seized six men, including Albert F. Wright, representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. L.). Men who wished to return to work were given police protection and virtually normal service was restored by mid-morning.

No Warning Given

The restoration was accomplished by 60 men at the power company's two plants. The company normally employes over 500.

The strike was called without warning at midnight, after recommendation by the National Defense Mediation Board yesterday that the company and union permit the courts and the National Labor Relations Board to decide the issues of their dispute. The A. F. L. union seeks recognition as representative of the 200 employes in the linemen's department.

Wright was taken before Police Chief Harold Anderson soon after his arrest. The union representative, sent here from Lincoln, Neb., by W. B. Petty, an international organizer, was silent before Anderson's accusation that he called the strike.

"It is un-American to shut down our plants without notice," Anderson shouted at Wright. "If anybody died as a result of this I am going to see if I can't file a murder charge against you."

Called on Carpet

Wright was released on bond but later was called before the Mayor and the City Council on a Mayor's subpena. Wright's attorney, John Langsdale, first was ordered from the Mayor's office, then was allowed to return but took no part in the questioning.

The power break shut off operation of a respirator containing a 21-month-old boy, an infantile-paralysis victim. Emergency power was used until city current was restored. Urgent surgery was performed under candlelight and flashlights.

Michael W. O'Hern, Jackson County prosecutor, conferred this afternoon with Chief Anderson on whether to file charges against the arrested men.

Later city charges of trespass were filed against Wright and malicious destruction of private property against the five other men arrested. Wright had been booked earlier for investigation and released on $200 bonds.

Called Outlaw Strike

The Building and Construction Trades Council, an American Federation of Labor body representing 15,000 members in Greater Kansas City, branded the strike an outlaw by formal resolution and ordered council members to ignore picket lines in their work.

Mayor Gage called for 250 special policemen to serve through the emergency. A battalion of State guardsmen, ordered out by Gov. Forrest C. Donnell, was not called into action, but remained in an armory.

No official estimate of actual damage had been made tonight. Molten metal cooled in the pots of two plants engaged in filling defense orders. The newly completed Lake City ordnance plant, making small arms ammunition for the Army, shut down while power was off. Valuable serum spoiled in hospital mechanical refrigerators.

Vindication

Hod Carriers Vote to Keep Moreschi Rule

St. Louis, Sept. 17 (AP).—Joseph V. Moreschi, who was named president of the American Federation of Labor Hod Carriers', Building and Common Laborers' Union by other international officers in 1926, today was elected to a five-year term at the union's first convention since 1911.

In the last 30 years, the union's executive board of eight members had appointed all international officers.

Opposition of a minority faction to the Moreschi administration collapsed and his nomination was the signal for a demonstration by the delegates. They shouted, whistled approval and snake-danced through the hall for 12 minutes.

In a speech of thanks, Moreschi said he and his fellow officers had been exonerated of attacks by a minority faction.

The minority, headed by Brian Feeney, business agent for New York's "sandhogs," had been beaten in every convention maneuver by the administration forces. Efforts to limit the term of union officers to two years was voted down by the delegates this afternoon in favor of five-year terms.

Two 29th Division Armies Open 'Hostilities' at A. P. Hill

By the Associated Press

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Sept. 17.—A gigantic chess game—with 15,000 men as pawns and a 50-mile strip of wooded Virginia country as a board—was played today by commanding officers of the Twenty-ninth Division's Blue and Red forces.

Moves were based on messages radioed from their "eyes," two flights of 104th Squadron observation planes and several radio patrol cars.

It was the first day of hostilities in a make-believe war, part of a two-week training period at the reservation.

Blue Army Moves

Early today Blue army forces, the theoretical invaders, began moving approximately 12,000 men from 30 to 40 miles into attack positions. All day heavy troop transports and weapon carriers rumbled northward on every available road. The 50-mile strip that separated the enemies last night teemed with crawling columns of trucks until late tonight. Amazed countryfolk and field hands lined roadsides as column after column roared by, raising clouds of dust which aided enemy observation planes high overhead to spot the moving units.

Careening motorcycles and command cars weaved in and out of mechanized columns, speeding messages of enemy activity to division headquarters in the rear. It was a formidable-looking army that moved into attack sectors. The ugly snouts of Browning automatic rifles protruded from transports, guarding against strafing attacks by enemy aircraft. Great six-wheeled weapon carriers towed heavy field artillery, and from the shoulders of infantrymen were swung the new Garrand automatic rifles.

Invaders encountered stiff resistance. According to the rules the numerically inferior Reds should have set up defense fortifications on their international boundary, but these forces made strong and unexpected Red thrusts into Blue areas. Throughout the day headquarters received reports that roving Red patrols had blown up strategically located bridges and barricaded keyroads. The destroyed bridges, which umpires marked with white flags, impeded the Blue attack.

Roads Are Clogged

In some areas, one-way country roads were clogged with miles of halted transports, awaiting umpires "go ahead" signal over repaired bridges.

The majority of the Blue forces had established bivouac camps in heavy woods and thickets of the military reservation by sunset. Officers believed that most units were within striking distance by infantry men of Red outposts. The initial "fast, hard hitting attack" outlined by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, will probably begin tomorrow morning.

Throughout the day groups of Red prisoners were brought to headquarters for questioning. After being held for a few hours, they were returned to designated neutral points and exchanged for captured Blues.

Blue Army Soldier Killed in Accident

Bowling Green, Va., Sept. 17 (AP).—Private Charles Holland, of Marion, Md., was killed in a truck accident while serving with Blue forces during Army maneuvers here. He was attached to the provisional Antitank Battalion of the 110th Field Artillery.

No one else was hurt in the accident, but details were not immediately available.

Utility Loses Fight Over Its Records

The Federal Power Commission was sustained by Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Court, yesterday in its long-drawn-out controversy with the Peoples Natural Gas Co. over the commission's demand that the company produce its records for examination.

An order issued by Justice Bailey directed the company either to grant "full and free" access to its books in Pittsburgh or bring them to a hearing which the commission may set here if the company should deny access to the documents within ten days.

Legion to Help Navy In Recruiting Program

Copyright by New York Times

The American Legion is establishing national procedure to assist the Navy in recruiting men to man the "two-ocean" Navy, it was announced yesterday. Legion posts will work in all localities with naval enlistment sections.

It is expected that the legion will specialize particularly in obtaining recruits for flight training.

Boys Training School Sought For Aged Home

Bladensburg Road will be discontinued soon by the Bureau of Prisons. It occupies considerable acreage and the fact it is within the District boundaries makes its use as a home for aged and infirm "doubly good," he said.

Rebuilding on the reservation at Blue Plains is out of the question because of its undesirable location, District officials contend.

The Commissioner recalled his visits to the new District Jail and to Lorton Reformatory.

Filthy Conditions Found

The city heads said they found the food served to the crippled and aged inadequate, the buildings in a state of disintegration, the sleeping quarters filthy and vermin-infested and the power plant so antiquated it was in a dangerous condition.

"Why the bread and butter for lunch had been placed a half hour before meal time and believe me the flies got there before the inmates," Mason said.

As a result of the outcries in Congress last year some Work Project Administration funds were made available for minor repairs to the plumbing and kitchen facilities and in some instances in the dormitories. Still, the money was woefully inadequate, Mason stated.

As supervisor of welfare activities, the Home for Aged and Infirm falls directly under Commissioner Mason's supervision.

The welfare commissioner is particularly anxious to have the Bladensburg Road site because of its present fine buildings, its healthful location and the large acreage.

Institution "A Hell Hole"

"When you consider that most of the old folks in the Home for Aged are afflicted with arthritis or sinus or tuberculosis, it becomes almost a necessity that the surroundings be pleasant, healthful and bright," Commissioner Mason said.

"Society certainly must be out of joint when we keep these nice old folks in a hell hole like the Blue Plains institution."

Welfare officials have requested a sum of $25,000 in the 1943 fiscal budget estimates to be used for the preparation of plans for a new institution. This fund would be used for plans for an enlarged institution on the Bladensburg Road grounds, it was stated.

One glaring defect at the present institution which will be corrected immediately is the complete lack of fire hose.

Making the trip yesterday were Commissioners Mason, John Russell Young and Charles W. Kutz; Budget Director Walter L. Fowler; his assistant, William F. Wilding; Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning and Otto Cass, superintendent of the institution.

G. W. U. Offers 2 New Courses

Two new courses in Pan-American relations and one new course in public personnel administration were announced yesterday by George Washington University.

Dr. Luis Quintanilla, Counselor of the Mexican Embassy, and associate in romance languages at the university, will teach "International Politics in the Western Hemisphere" the first semester, and "Current Trends in Latin-American Government and Politics" the second semester.

Clark May Ask 'Full-Fledged' Movie Inquiry

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee conducting hearings on alleged war propaganda in the movies, said yesterday that he may soon seek Senate approval for a "full-fledged investigation" of the charges against Hollywood.

Critics of the subcommittee have contended that it has exceeded its authority by summoning witnesses and holding public hearings when its function was merely to report to the Senate whether the charges against the film industry warranted Congressional investigation.

Clark insisted yesterday that numerous Senate subcommittees in recent years have proceeded to conduct hearings under the general authority of the full committees of which they were a part.

Defends Course

"The only way we can report to the Senate whether an investigation is justified is by getting at the facts," Clark said, "and the only way we can get at the facts is by calling witnesses."

The Idaho isolationist said he personally was satisfied by the testimony of the past week that a full-dress investigation was necessary, but that the subcommittee would hear several film executives and examine some of the alleged propaganda movies before "presenting our case to the Senate."

The subcommittee is now operating without a staff and without any special appropriation, he said, and would have to ask the Senate for funds before it could conduct an exhaustive investigation.

Resumption Postponed

The subcommittee will resume hearings at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, instead of today, as originally announced. Nicholas Schenck, head of Loew's, Inc., will be the witness. Clark said the hearing had been postponed because Senator Brooks (Republican), of Illinois, a subcommittee member, was attending the American Legion convention in Milwaukee.

"I have no objection to anyone making a propaganda movie and showing it himself," Clark said, "but I think we are confronted with a very dangerous situation if it is shown that block-booking and other devices enable a few producers to force all the exhibitors to show these pictures."

Fire Safety Bill Facing Revision To Bar Monopoly

Legislation to modernize the District's fire-safety law will be revised to end all possibility of monopoly in sale of fire-alarm apparatus here, Representative Harris (Democrat), of Arkansas, declared yesterday.

Harris, chairman of a special subcommittee that recently reported favorably on the bill, confirmed at the same time statements that District officials are responsible for language in the measure which, fire underwriters have charged, bars all but one manufacturer from installing alarm equipment which the measure would require for certain buildings.

The change will be made, Harris said, before the measure is reported to the House District Committee Monday.

The revised bill, he added, will retain a requirement for municipal fire-alarm connections in buildings five or more stories in height or having a single floor area of over 35,000 square feet.

Housewives Aid Defense By Saving Equipment

Thrifty Women Will Cherish Their Utensils

By Martha Ellyn
Post Household Editor

TAXES for defense soon will be cutting a slice from the family budget. That means that the homemaker is going to have to watch her household expenses to make the proverbial ends meet.

Martha Ellyn

"Easy come, easy go" can no longer be the way we regard our possessions. It has been a part of life to own a range on which to cook, a mechanical refrigerator in which to preserve food, a vacuum cleaner to make house-cleaning brisk and efficient, and a host of other "servants" to make housekeeping less grim and time-consuming.

Everywhere one reads and hears of "priorities." Priorities and price-fixing have been established by the Government. What does this mean to the homemaker? It means that the materials needed by Uncle Sam for defense equipment cannot be used for household equipment. So it is the patriotic duty of the homemaker to conserve her household equipment. Caring for the stove, the refrigerator, water heater, electric sweeper, pots and pans and other home equipment no longer available in unlimited quantities will be no additional strain on the homemaker.

Safeguard Articles

We have all read of the curtailed production of stoves and refrigerators, and all remember the aluminum "shower" given to Uncle Sam following Mayor LaGuardia's plea. So it behooves women to give the best of care to the necessities that cannot be replaced readily.

To learn just what precautions should be taken in caring for stoves and refrigerators I have questioned Miss Ruth Sheldon, Home Service Director, Washington Gas Light Co. "Take care of the equipment you are fortunate in having," is her general admonition. And since this home economist knows the function of every burner, rack, bolt and screw that is used in assembling a stove, she gives pointers on the care of the range.

"The beauty of a modern range is easily maintained with a few minutes' attention each day," she says. "No difficult cleaning will be necessary if a little forethought is exercised. Do not allow food to boil over, but turn the heat down as soon as the boiling starts. The temperature of boiling is the same whether it boils rapidly or slowly. Turning the heat down will save fuel and will accomplish the same for the cooking.

Put Utensils in Pan

"Spoons, forks and spatulas that are used in cooking should be placed on a pan to protect the top of the range from sticky spots when taken from the food.

"Any spilled food should be wiped up before it dries. The surface of the range and the drip tray should be wiped with a damp cloth. Never wash enameled surfaces when hot, or the finish of the range may crack and craze.

After using the oven let it cool and then clean any spatterings with either steel wool or mild scouring powder. Charred food can be removed with a brush or spatula. In some of the modern ranges the oven bottom can be removed for easy cleaning.

"When the broiler is used let it cool until the fat solidifies. Use a rubber plate scraper and wipe out any remaining fat with a paper towel. The rack should be wiped thoroughly with paper toweling and the rack and pan washed in hot soapsuds, then rinsed with hot water and thoroughly dried.

"If daily care is given the range it will not be necessary to clean the burners of a range in a difficult way. When it is necessary to give them exceptional cleaning, the burners can be removed and washed with a brush and hot, soapy water. Then rinse with clear hot water, drain and dry thoroughly."

Refrigerators, too, should have daily care as well as weekly cleaning, says this home service director. Here are her suggestions:

Clean Refrigerators

"A high standard of cleanliness should always be kept in the refrigerator. Each day any spilled food should be wiped up. The top of the refrigerator should be wiped with a cloth wrung out in soapy water, then rinsed with clear water and dried. Never leave any telltale fingerprints around the handle of the door. Clean as for the top of the refrigerator.

"Every refrigerator should have a weekly cleaning. This should be done after defrosting. If the refrigerator is not equipped with an automatic defroster, it should be defrosted whenever the accumulation of frost is ¼ of an inch thick.

"The pan under the freezing unit should be washed in warm suds, rinsed thoroughly and dried thoroughly. Freezing trays, racks or shelves should be washed in hot soapsuds, rinsed with scalding water and dried. Wash the interior of the refregerator with a cloth wrung out of cool water in which baking soda or borax has been dissolved. Use 1 tablespoon of the powder to 1 pint of water."

A vacuum cleaner, too, should be given the best of care, not only to preserve it, but because it will lag on the job if the dust bag is clogged. If the cleaner is run over pins, hairpins, tacks and other sharp objects, the belt of the motor-driven brush may be cut or the dust bag punctured. The dust bag should be emptied after each use for if dirt is left in it the suction action will be less effective.

The revolving cylinder and brushes of the vacuum cleaner should be removed once a week and all threads and hairs removed. The current should be turned off before pulling the plug so that contacts may not be burned. The cord should be wound loosely to avoid damaging the fine wires inside.

The manufacturer's directions should be followed for lubrication of motor-driven or agitator cleaners as overlubrication is as harmful to the motor as lack of it. Badly worn belts and brushes should be replaced. Dust the cleaner and clean all the attachments each time it is used.

A stream-lined refrigerator, like the one shown here, is a prized possession. With National Defense needing every bit of material available to build equipment, such a household necessity may not always be available. Realizing such a possibility, Miss Ellen Minor cleans her refrigerator with as much care as she would an inlaid satinwood piece of furniture.

Simple Beauty Measures Best For Teen-Agers

By Carolyn Abbott.

COSMETIC PLATITUDES no longer satisfy the inquisitive minds of beauty conscious teen agers. Usually on a limited budget, both high school and college girls want to know exactly how and what to do to make their skin, hair and fingernails lovelier.

"As I open my mail daily, I am stimulated by the eager letters from teen agers, who seriously write for beauty information. With the opening of school next week inquiries increase. Rose Laird, authority on the young skin, who is in town this week for personal consultation at one of the local stores consented to answer many questions put to me by my young readers.

Here are the results of my interview with Miss Laird:

A. Is cold cream suitable for the teen-age skin?

Q. No.

Internal Care Needed

A. How can one keej from getting blemishes?

Q. Thorough external cleansing with correct medication plus internal care.

A. What should be done about blackheads on the nose?

Q. Use a complexion brush and liquid soap, plus an overnight cream.

A. Is a complexion brush good for the skin?

Q. Yes, it whips up circulation and helps to remove dry, dead skin.

A. If the skin becomes dry from using a complexion brush, should one continue using it?

Q. Yes, but lubricate the skin with a greaseless lubricant.

A. What should one do about a skin that is oily in some parts and very dry in others?

Use Liquid Cleanser

Q. Use a liquid cleanser frequently and a masque twice weekly. Apply a greaseless lubricant to only the dry part.

A. Why should the face be washed in cold water?

Q. Hot water opens the pores too much. This is an open bid for more dirt and grime. Cold water helps to shrink the pores.

A. How can the pores of the skin be refined?

Q. By thorough and frequent cleansing.

A. What can you do to prevent nails from breaking and peeling?

Q. Use glycerine and lemon on them.

A. Are powder bases good for the skin? If so what type should the young girl use?

Q. Yes, powder bases are not only good for the skin but are essential. A medicated protective lotion is best for the high school girl.

A. Has a vinegar-rinse a good or harmful effect on the hair?

Q. A vinegar rinse is beneficial to the hair.

A. Should a high school girl wear mascara?

Q. No.

A. What are your suggestions as to the way a girl should apply make-up if she wears glasses?

Q. Keep rouge high on the cheeks. Wear a little eyeshadow but no mascara. Concentrate on lipstick.

A. Is it harmful to apply cologne or perfume directly to the hair?

Q. Yes.

Thumb-Warmer

Hollywood, Calif.—The smallest muff in fashion history will be carried by Ann Sheridan. It measures exactly 5 inches from stem to stern and figuratively accommodates a pair of thumbs. The tiny finger-warmer is part of an ensemble unique in that it clothes Ann from head to toe in fur. Eighty black galyak skins were used for a chic hat, a smart street dress with deep dolman sleeves and the miniature muff.

Use Hairbrush in Right Place

For the young girl, Rose Laird, beauty authority, recommends simple measures—cold water for the face, no cold cream and the old-fashioned hair brush. A shampoo every 10 days should be maximum for the teen agers, she maintains. If the hair gets too oily in the meantime, follow the example of Bonita Granville, Hollywood star, above, and brush, brush. Use a piece of cotton on the hairbrush and remove all accumulated oil and dust as indicated in picture.

Room Ought Not Be Spoiled By Crowding

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THERE'S one sure way to spoil a room—no matter how handsome the furniture . . . no matter how right the plan. If you crowd it, fill it too full, the effect will be lost in a mire of details. Even though it's quite a tug to part with any of your things—better be hardboiled and clear out. If everything is a treasure, you might try rotating them using only part of them at a time . . . or if you have a collection that has been overflowing the place, consider shelves, racks, curio tables for displaying them interestingly.

Take Mrs. J. R.'s living room for instance. It's 10 by 12 in size and is furnished with a sofa, three easy chairs, a large radio, a secretary desk and chair, a library table, two small tables, a coffee table and a collection of white porcelain Chinese figurines inherited from a missionary aunt. The furniture all needs fresh slip covers and the walls will be repainted. New purchases will include a rug, and curtains. Mrs. R. asks our advice about her refurbishings.

Well, first we'd eliminate. A room that size can't hold that much furniture comfortably—maybe one easy chair might be shifted to another room. And could the library table be used elsewhere? That would leave all the furniture needed for comfort and convenience—without jamming the room. If more seating space is needed, a narrow bench under the double window would be smart and practical detail to add. As for the Chinese figurines, they'd be lovely in the shelves of the secretary—especially if you line the secretary with a very soft cloudy green velvet or damask—cover the shelves in this color too and illuminate them indirectly.

Unbalanced Meals Are Cause Of Fat, Says Famous Doctor

By Ida Jean Kain

WOMEN can do more than anyone else to toughen up America, Dr. Victor Heiser told me in a recent interview. They can make the biggest contribution because they can see to it that the food they serve their families contains all the essential elements for abundant health.

The famous doctor said: "The nation which applies the science of nutrition to the greatest number of its people will be the most powerful in the world." And he thinks there is no question but that the housewife will play the leading role in the practical application of the newer knowledge of nutrition.

The way Dr. Heiser explains it, there's no need to wrinkle your brow or to wear down your pencil figuring the exact proportions of calories, protein, vitamins and minerals that are needed. Foods naturally divide themselves into two classes—the tissue builders for protection and the fuel foods for energy.

Eat Them Every Day

The first group are called protective because they keep our bodies renewed, stabilize the nerves and ward off old age. By now you should be quite familiar with the foods that perform these miracles: Fruits, vegetables, milk, cheese, butter and eggs, whole grains, lean meats and fish. All that's necessary is to see that these foods are included every day in the menus. So that life-giving elements will not be thrown away, precautions must be taken to cook the vegetables quickly in a small amount of water, and this water must be used. Otherwise, both vitamins and minerals may be lost.

He is strong in his belief that the amounts of sugars and starches in the average person's diet should be decreased. He thinks we eat too much. "Most people like to eat as much as they can without gaining too much weight. What they should do is try to eat as little as possible without losing weight." That applies, of course, to those who are normal weight.

Importance of Balance

Dr. Heiser is among the authorities who believe that overweight is largely due to unbalanced meals. When a person fills up on lots of starch and sugar and does not get the requisite minerals and vitamins, nature can indicate your needs only by making you hungry. But if you keep right on eating more of the fuel foods rather than the protective foods, you do not assuage this hidden hunger—you are still hungry for the missing elements.

He says, frankly, that he has never known a fat person who did not eat too much, and that the glands may be thrown out of kilter by the long-continued excess intake. A lessened food intake would give the glands less work to do and would normalize things.

In his latest book, "Toughen Up, America," Dr. Heiser tells exactly how to go about making your family healthier and happier.

Baroness Kargere Here To Exhibit Dolls

Miniatures Also Are Collected By Visiting 'Fashion Missionary'

By Hope Ridings Miller

She's pretty, vivacious and accomplished . . . and she has a title, which should assure her plenty of attention in this title-loving town.

She's a cosmopolite; has studied and lived practically everywhere, and she has sparkling eyes, surrounded by the longest, loveliest eyelashes ywood. (What's more to the point, hers are natural.)

BARONESS KARGERE

She's a doll careerist, a collector of miniatures, and a self-styled "fashion missionary," who is convinced that "Through color, every desire in life may be realized."

She's Baroness Audrey Kargere, and she's in town to arrange for a benefit showing of her half-million dollar doll collection and her miniatures. And she has hopes of seeing Mrs. Roosevelt, whom she met some time ago in California. Arriving in town early this week, she is staying at the Wardman Park Hotel, and it was there that I talked to her briefly yesterday afternoon. Let's get outdoors, in the sunshine," she said with an engaging smile. "I never stay inside if I can help it." Her biscuit-brown skin showed she and the sunshine were old friends. Her brown eyes, flecked with hazel, blended with her bronze coloring and contrasted smartly with her simple white sports dress. Completing her costume was a white twisted turban of the type she probably wore back in the days when she was in India, studying Theosophy with the famous Annie Besant.

We talked of many things—color, causes and the San Francisco Exposition where she exhibited her doll collection to admiring throngs, and where, incidentally, she first met Mrs. Roosevelt. She told me her collections were on display in Florida last winter for the benefit of British War Relief, and that there was always an unveiling ceremony for each new doll in her display. We began by discussing color effects. We ended with her outlining her belief in reincarnation; and if this report seems to skim an amazing number of unrelated subjects—then it's a fitting account of our half-hour conversation.

Duchess of Windsor, Newest Doll

Her dolls? She has fifty-three. Most of them once belonged to Gertsell, the well-known European court dressmaker, who always fashioned a miniature model of each outfit he designed for a noted client. In the original collection were figures portraying such distinguished ladies as Baroness Schleinitz; Charlotte, the Cinderella Princess; the Queen of Saxony, Princess Hohenlohe, Countess von Richtofen, and the Kaiserin.

Baroness Kargere believes every doll has its day, but hers have years and years of history and heartbeats tucked into taffeta, gathered into dainty lace, and sewed into the seams of their frocks, which reflect fifty years of elegant costuming. Most recent additions to the collection are "Queen Elizabeth," depicted in the evening dress she wore to the White House dinner here; "Mrs. Roosevelt," in a replica of an Inauguration Ball gown, and "the Duchess of Windsor," who will be formally admitted to the collection some time soon.

Miniatures? Well, that's another of Baroness Kargere's collections. She developed a fondness for items of Lilliputian proportions years ago when as a child in Vienna she had one of the finest doll houses in Europe. Today her possessions include such choice effects as 200 ivory elephants, small enough to go through the eye of a large needle, carved out of rat's teeth; the Lord's Prayer engraved on a pin head; the smallest broadtail coat in the world, and goodness knows what else.

Her philosophy? That's a story within itself. A very interesting one that I can only mention in passing here. It embraces the fact that she is a Theosophist, who thinks that each life is merely a continuation of some other. She believes she formerly was one of those ancients whose mission in life was to lead the way to happiness "over a highway of color."

'Everybody Has Three Colors'

That bring us to another point. In other words, Baroness Kargere is convinced that every man and woman has a personal color, a business color, and a social color. She thinks every shade has a definite effect on the individual, and she's convinced that women today are wearing far too much black and brown. In her opinion, architecture might well take a tip from nature in the matter of color, and she prophesies it will be only a matter of time until building exteriors will be something besides white, gray, or natural brick. ("I'm all for pink buildings," she said. "Especially pink buildings for blond stenographers," she added with a chuckle.)

Color is the language of the emotions, in her opinion, and she doubts the world would be in the turmoil it is if cities were dotted with bright blue, green, or yellow structures.

How long she will be in Washington she doesn't yet know. Her plans about exhibiting her collections here are also a bit indefinite. But she likes the town, and she may be around quite a while.

Incidentally, she's a graduate of the Sorbonne, and she can talk well on almost any subject you can think of, in any language you choose. And one other thing—just so there'll be no mistaken ideas about her. She does have a European title, but you can take it or leave it as you choose. She's half Viennese, half Parisian; but she was born in New York when her parents happened to be visiting there; she's now an American citizen, and she doesn't give a hang whether you call her "Baroness," "Mlle.," or just plain "Miss."

Col. Flanagan, 'Goodwill Envoy' From Canada, Honored Here

An unofficial goodwill envoy from Canada to the United States—and vice versa—is Col. James W. Flanagan, former Texan, who now makes his home near Toronto, and has come to Washington for a brief visit. Last evening, Col. Flanagan was guest of honor at a dinner given by George Williams at the Sulgrave Club; but in the course of the evening, the dapper visitor turned over a generous share of the spotlight to Mme. Wessel, wife of the Swedish Military Attache. Just returned from her homeland, Mme. Wessel has been away from Washington since early in May. Last night, friends flocked around her all evening to find out about conditions in Europe and about her trip back to this country. She left Stockholm by plane exactly 15 days ago, going from there to Lisbon and then boarding a transport for the remainder of her trip.

In the manner of most wives of diplomats, Mme. Wessel gently declined to talk for the record about what she saw in Europe. Instead, she shifted the line of talk to Washington; and said she was busy now getting her household effects moved from her apartment at the Woodward to the house which her husband recently leased on Twenty-ninth Street.

A number of the guests at last night's party have visited Col. Flanagan at Divadale, his magnificent Canadian estate. Mr. Williams himself was there the past summer, and in an informal program during the dinner he recounted some of his experiences, later calling on others who had also visited the estate, to give some of their impressions.

Among those who talked were Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Morris Sheppard and Mrs. Lionel Atwill. Former Senator Henry F. Ashhurst, who although he had never been to Divadale, hopes to go sometime soon, rounded out the evening's program with an eloquent speech. Col. Flanagan in reply to the bevy of tributes invited all those who had been to visit him to come again, and all those present who had never been to Divadale to come at once. The party included a company of 18.

Arthur T. Coverts Honeymoon in North

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thomas Covert, who were married August 28 in the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, will make their home in Foxhall Village when they return from a wedding trip in the North.

The bride was formerly Miss Elizabeth Lee Lanham, daughter of Mrs. Haneke Lanham, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Covert, of Hopwood, Pa. The Rev. John Bailey Kelly officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her grandfather, F. Michael Haneke. She wore a lovely gown of white lace and mousseline de soie, the full skirt swirling from a fitted bodice of Point de Venice lace. Her veil of tulle was caught by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of stephanotis and Belmont gardenias.

The bride was attended by Miss Elsie Jenkins as maid of honor while Miss Ordesor Lomax, childhood friend of Miss Lanham; Miss May Callista Reckert and Miss Jane Hunter served as bridesmaids. Miss Jenkins wore a gown of pink marquisette trimmed in lace and carried a large picture hat of contrasting hue filled with flowers of assorted colors. Miss Lomax, Miss Reckert and Miss Hunter wore gowns of blue, yellow and orchid marquisette shades. Little Virginia Ann Reckert served as flower girl and Jackie Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Colgan Shaw, was the ringbearer. Hilleary Frazier Brown was the best man for the bridegroom.

Latin Americans Out in Force at Brilliant Embassy Reception Given by the Escalantes

By Carolyn Bell

"It's nice to see all the folks again," said Vice President Henry A. Wallace as he smilingly surveyed the crowded rooms at the Venezuelan Embassy yesterday afternoon. "The folks"—the Latin-American contingent—had turned out in full force for the brilliant reception given by the Ambassador and Senora de Escalante in honor of the former President of Venezuela and his brunette wife, Senora Lopez Contreras.

It was one of the first big parties of the year and talk naturally centered around summer vacations—or the many new arrivals in the diplomatic set. Although the cool-looking white embassy, set back in a fringe of green shrubs, boasts an air-conditioning system, the persistent heat came in for a good deal of discussion. The ladies, for the most part, left their new fall ensembles at home and donned summer frocks. Any number of men turned up in white linen suits—despite the September 15 deadline.

Gen. Lopez Contreras—who reestablished Venezuela as a democracy following the dictatorship of Gomez—was introduced to the guests by the Ambassador. He in turn introduced his extremely pretty wife, who yesterday wore a long pink faille frock with a black net shawl, embroidered in jet beads, thrown over her shoulders. A cluster of deep purple orchids completed the ensemble. Senora de Escalante, chic as always in black, wore a corsage of orchids, also.

The long drawing room, hung with gold brocade drapes, was filled with bright fall flowers. A huge bouquet of flame gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums were placed under the flamboyant painting of Bolivar which takes up the whole side of one wall. Bright pink dahlias in a silver bowl adorned the long coffee table.

Officials Attend Large Reception

Headed by the Vice President and Mrs. Wallace quite a number of officials attended yesterday's 5-to-7 party. Mrs. Wallace, who incidentally was trying out her Spanish—she has taken seven lessons—wore a trim black frock with touches of white. Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, was an early arrival. Her black frock had wide white-braided reveres. On Saturday evening the Secretary and Mrs. Hull will entertain informally in their apartment at dinner for Gen. and Mrs. Lopez Contreras.

Glimpsed threading her way through the crowded rooms was Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of War, who was prettily turned out in a raspberry colored frock and matching hat. Arriving with Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson was Mrs. Jesse Jones. Mrs. Jones, who was fluttering away at her fan, wore a black frock with touches of white and a white and a black hat with pale blue trimming. In cool beige crepe, was Senora de Espil, just back from a month at Hot Springs, Va. She was accompanied by the Ambassador of Argentina, Felipe Espil.

Senorita Escalante Pretty in Black

A lavish buffet had been set up in the long dining room lined with windows facing Massachusetts Avenue. The table was centered with an exquisite bouquet of Easter lilies. Salmon, turkys and hams were flanked on all sides by salads and ices.

Wearing an enormous blue and white striped hat was Senhora de Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, who was accompanying her husband. Her linen suit was of pale gray. Mrs. Claude Pepper looked pretty as a picture in a pale blue crepe frock and wide-brimmed dark hat. The Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long, was there, as were the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, Mr. and Mrs. Ricardo Alfaro, Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Lauerence Duggan, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Gen. and Mrs. Charles W. Cootes, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, George T. Summerlin, the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceras, and the 1rst Secretary of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Vega, the latter smartly turned out in a brown ensemble.

With an attentive group of swains in her wake, piquant Senorita Maria Teresa Escalanta, buzzed about to see that her parent's guests were happy. She was tall and lovely looking in a crisp, black taffeta frock with a beige chiffon blouse embroidered in pearls. Her hair was swept up and she wore two carnations tucked into the coiffure. Also assisting was Senora de Jurado, wife of Maj. Jurado, aide to the general, who wore a black dinner dress with a red panel down the center.

GLIMPSED HERE AND THERE: Dapper Congressman Joe Baldwin chatting with Mrs. Adolf Berle who wore frilly black and carried a paper fan . . . Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bonsal, she in sleek black . . . the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Concheso . . . she recently reutrned from Havana with her two children . . . Maj. Theodore Babbitt, cool looking in his white uniform . . . He is serving as aide de camp to Gen. Lopez Contreras during his visit . . . Miss Lolita Dawson accompanie. by Leonard Cromie who recently returned from Montreal, where he was stationed . . . Mr. Cromie wore a handsome blue and white R. A. F. tie figured with British lions . . . Silver-tongued Father Edmund Walsh talked with a group . . . the newly arrived Minister from the Dominican Republic accompanied by his wife, Senora de Troncoso . . . dark-eyed Louisa Teetz wearing lipstick red frock . . . Don Arturo Lares, counselor of the Venezuelan Embassy, chatting with a gay group . . . Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling wearing a green and white printed frock . . . Senora de Lecuna, wife of the second secretary of the Venezuelan Embassy, wearing a sheer black frock . . . The Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels were accompanied by Christina Michels . . . and dozens of others.

Ensign Driver Weds D. C. Girl

The Francis Asbury Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding yesterday at noon of Miss Ann Cherrington, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Cherrington, of this city, and Ensign Russell Broyles Driver, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie R. Driver, of Bristol, Tenn. The ceremony was performed by the rector of the church, the Rev. Robin Gould.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bouffant white net and a fingertip veil which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Her cousin, Miss Ruth Bailey, of Columbus, Ohio, and Miss Betty Driver, the bridegroom's sister, were her only attendants. The former was dressed in pale pink net with short sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Miss Driver was similarly attired in blue and both carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Leslie R. Driver, jr., of Bristol, Tenn., was best man and the ushers were Dr. Ernest Cherrington, jr., of Delaware, brother of the bride, and Thomas Driver, Mr. Driver's brother.

Mrs. Cherrington wore a gown of dusty pink with a picture hat of contrasting shades and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Driver, sr., had chosen a black ensemble with a corsage of pink roses.

A breakfast at the Methodist Building for the wedding party and the two families followed the ceremony. The bride attended Ohio State University, where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority, and is a graduate of American University. Mr. Driver was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University and is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Mrs. A. M. Owsley Visiting in Capital

Mrs. Alvin Mansfield Owsley, wife of the former Minister to Denmark, Ireland and Rumania, arrived in Washington last night for a few days' stay with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash.

Mrs. Owsley is en route to her home in Indianapolis from Richmond, Va., where she went to enroll her daughter, Constance, in school.

Miss Griffin, Mr. Sterrett To Be Wed

Of wide interest is the announcement by Capt. and Mrs. Robert Melville Griffin, of 1515 Thirtieth Street of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Patricia Hemming Griffin, to Frank Gum Sterrett, son of William Dent Sterrett and the late Mrs. Sterrett. The wedding will take place in November.

Miss Griffin attended the Potomac School here, the Bishop School in La Jolla, Calif., and Smith College. She made her debut at a tea given in the 1937-38 season and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Sterrett studied at St. Alban's School and Williams College and is a member of the Chevy Chase Club.

The prospective bride was one of three young women to open a personal service shop, As You Like It, last winter in Georgetown. The other two were Miss Frances van Keuren and Miss Jane Acheson. The marriage of Miss Acheson to Dudley Brown will take place on Saturday, September 27, and Miss Griffin will be among the attendants.

In turn, Miss Acheson will be a bridesmaid at the marriage of Miss Griffin in November. Mrs. Christopher Sargent, Mr. Sterrett's sister, will be matron of honor and Miss Mimi Griffin will be maid of honor. The other bridesmaids will be the Misses Alice Barry, Louise Burke and Barbara Bradley.

Miss Johannsen Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Johannsen, of Tottenville, Staten Island, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Johannsen, to Douglas W. Clephane, formerly a resident of this city. He is the son of Col. and Mrs. Walter C. Clephane of Chevy Chase, Md.

Miss Johannsen was gradusted from Cooper Union Art School. Mr. Clephane was active in newspaper and press association work here several years ago. He attended George Washington University and was graduated from the University of Michigan. He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, the National Press Club and the Advertising Club of New York City, where he is president of Clephane Associates, and the National Industrial Publishing Corporation.

The wedding will take place in the rectory of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York October 18.

Miss Barbara Korff Engaged To Squadron Leader Russell

As a surprise to Washington society will come the announcement by Baroness Korff of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Barbara Korff, to Squadron Leader the Honorable Edward Wristhesley Curzon Russell, Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve. The prospective bridegroom, who is on a special mission to this country, is the third son of the Dowager Lady Ampthill of London and of the late Lord Ampthill.

The prospective bride attended the Madeira School in Washington and Bryn Mawr College. She made her debut at a tea given in the 1937-38 season and is a member of the Junior League. Recently she has been studying and working at fine and commercial art in New York.

Her father, the late Baron Serge Alexander Korff of Russia, was Lieutenant Governor of Finland under the Provisional Government and later taught European history at Johns Hopkins and Georgetown Universities. She is a granddaughter of the late Rear Admiral and Mrs. William Knickerbocker Van Reypen of Washington and the sister of Baron Serge Korff of Swarthmore and Washington.

Squadron Leader Russell was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge. He is a member of the Marlborough Club, London, and was formerly managing editor of the London Morning Post. His father, the late Lord Ampthill, was a former Governor of Madras and Viceroy of India (pr-tem). He was for over a quarter of a century Pro-Grand Master of the English Freemasons.

The Dowager Lady Ampthill, who, before her marriage, was Lady Margaret Lygon, is a lady-in-waiting to Queen Mary and all her life has been active in the British Red Cross.

Mrs. Merryman Due Tomorrow From Vacation

Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, the Duchess of Windsor's "Aunt Bessie," will return tomorrow from a vacation in New England. She spent some time in Nantucket, where Mrs. John Lord O'Brian, wife of the General Counsel of the OPM, was a neighbor, and is now at Centerville on Cape Cod. In Centerville Mrs. Merryman has been visiting Mrs. Reeve Lewis, of Washington.

Mrs. Merryman will be on hand for the tea which the Women's National Press Club will give on September 25 in honor of the Duchess of Windsor. Other relatives of the Duchess are also being invited; otherwise the tea is limited to club members and wives of the British Embassy staff. Mrs. Merryman paid a visit to the Duke and Duchess in Nassau last winter.

Fanella Sexton Wed in New York To Mr. Rulon

The wedding of Miss Fanella June Sexton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Victor Sexton, of Bel Air, Md., to Watson Birdsall Rulon, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Birdsall Rulon, of Philadelphia, took place yesterday in New York. The ceremony was performed at the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, and a breakfast was served afterwards in the vicarage by Mrs. S. Tagart Steele, jr., a cousin of Mr. Rulon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and had Mrs. C. V. Quesenberry as her matron of honor. Joseph Keen Rulon was best man for his brother.

After a motor trip through the maritime provinces of Canada the couple will make their home in Washington.

Mrs. Lachmann, Dr. Reti Are Wed

News has been received of the marriage on Monday afternoon in New Haven, Conn., of Mrs. Elizabeth Lachmann, of that city and New York, to Dr. Rudolph Reti, of New Haven, formerly of Vienna, Austria. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Luther A. Weigle, dean of the Yale Divinity School.

The bride, the former Elizabeth Schoepf, of Cincinnati, is the daughter of Mrs. W. Wesley Schoepf, of Washington. She is a well-known concert soprano. Her first husband, the late Norbert Lachmann, was a Swiss diplomat.

Dr. Reti, who is a composer and pianist, was founder of the Salzburg Chamber Music Festival. He has been an honorary research fellow in music at Yale.

Professional Women Plan Defense Activity

Representatives of Government Agencies To Make Suggestions at Meeting Tuesday

The Washington members of the Women's Professional Panhellenic Association will take the lead in its national program of volunteer defense activity by asking six representatives of Government departments and defense agencies to make recommendations at a meeting next Tuesday evening.

Speakers at the meeting at 8 p. m. in the United States Public Health Auditorium will be T. Semmes Walmsley, deputy director, Office of Civilian Defense; Miss Minnie E. Harman, assistant to the national director, volunteer special services, American Red Cross; Miss Mary Winslow, assistant to the coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics; Hugh H. Clegg, assistant director, Federal Bureau of Investigation; Miss Alma C. Haupt, nursing consultant, office of Defense Health and Welware Services; Mrs. Elsie Halstrom Dawson, food and nutrition section, Bureau of Home Economics, Department of Agriculture.

The volunteer participation program recommended by the Washington Association will be reported to the national association, which in turn will launch its Nation-wide program early in October.

The more than 600 members in Washington, many of whom are employed in Government offices, will point the way for the 50,000 members in the 14 national professional fraternities of the association "to assist State and local volunteer defense agencies."

Miss Tracy Strohecker, chairman of the Washington Professional Panhellenic Committee, announced that the executive committee of the national association, through the president, Mrs. Vashti Burr Whittington, of Harrisburg, Pa., requested the Washington members to recommend the defense program.

Miss Strohecker Is Chairman

Washington members in charge of plans for the meeting, in addition to Miss Strohecker, chairman, are Sarah H. Regar, secretary of the committee, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Sigma Sigma Sigma (education); Mrs. Dorothy C. Williams, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Alpha Sigma Alpha (education); Mary M. Connelly, Eta Alumnae Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi (law); Betty Hoaglan, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Phi Chi Theta (commerce); Salley Presley, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Phi Delta Delta (law); Gwendolyn Wisehart, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Sigma Alhpa Iota (music); Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Washington Alumnae Chapter, Zeta Pho Eta (speech arts; Mrs. Lorraine Hurley, Epsilon Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi (law); Louis O'Neil, Omricon Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi (law); Beauford Bradley, Nu Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi (law); Mary L. Martin, Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta (law); Dorothy Dunn, Zeta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta (law); Kathryn Masco Swartz, Alpha Lamdb Chapter, Phi Delta Delta (law); Frances George, Alpha Tau Chapter, Sigm Sigma Sigma (education)

Miss Strohecker has appointed the following members of professional fraternities to serve as a special advisory committee of the Washington Professional Panhellenic Association in volunteer defense work:

Kappa Beta Pi, Judge Ellen K. Raedy, judge of the Municipal Court Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, president of the Women's Bar Association; Marguerite Rawalt, vice president, Federal Bar Association; Anna L. Moulton, chairman, board of directors, Kappa Beta Pi; Caroline Just, province dean; Mrs. Grace B. Stiles, Assistant United States District Attorney; Elizabeth F. Reed, past grand dean; Mrs. Sara Mero Williams, dean of Eta Alumnae Chapter; Mrs. Helena Doocey Reed, assistant trust officer, Lincoln National Bank; Helena Goodner, grand chancellor; Mary Chadwick, trust department, Washington Loan & Trust Co.;

Phi Chi Theta, Denise R. Chotas, Greek Legation; Mrs. Ellen Schoper, member, Affiliated Council of Panhellenics;

Judge Fay Bentley Among Those Named

Phi Delta Delta, Judge Fay Bentley, judge of the Juvenile Court; Judge Marion Harron, member, Board of Tax Appeals; Judge Lucy S. Howorth, member, Board of Veterans Appeals; Mrs. Ruth Moorhead Hildebrand, official representative in the Women's Professional Panhellenic Association; Alma H. Preinkert, registrar, University of Maryland; Annabel Matthews, Board of Tax Appeals; Helen R. Carloss, Department of Justice; Louise Foster, Department of Justice; Patricia Collins, Department of Justice; Grace B. Knoeller, past president, Phi Delta Delta; Catherine L. Vaux, vice president, Phi Delta Delta; Louisa Wilson, province director; Mary Agnes Brown, attorney in the solicitor's office, Veterans' Administration.

Sigma Alpha Iota, Mrs. Mary Lou Mullenburg, bureau of research committee, Women's Professional Panhellenic Association; Helen Turley, soloist, Third Church of Christ Scientist; Susan Oliver, concert soloist; Jean Appel, organist, Western Presbyterian Church.

Zeta Phi Eta, Mrs. Virginia Rand Beers, secretary, Washington Alumnae Chapter.

The 14 fraternities in the National Association cover the fields of music, physical education, law, home economics, pharmacy, commerce, education and speech arts. There are 550 undergraduate chapters in 220 colleges and universities throughout the country and approximately 200 city alumnae chapters. More than 20 city Panhellenic Associations like the one in Washington have been organized in the largest urban centers.

National P.-T.A. Acts to Reduce Traffic Deaths

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers, noting an appalling rise in deaths of children in traffic accidents, called upon its 2,500,000 members yesterday to mobilize for safety, it was stated in an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. C. D. Lowe, its safety chairman and junior past president, are in Chicago for the meeting of the board of managers of the National Congress.

The national body sent a new 56-page safety manual to the 28,000 Parent-Teacher Associations from coast to coast for guidance in prosecuting the campaign through regional conferences, study courses and community activities.

"This is our reply to President Roosevelt, who has proclaimed a safety campaign to be vital to national defense," asserted Miss Marion Telford, chairman of the Congress Safety Committee. She added:

"Since the Nation's safety is actually a community problem and each Parent-Teacher Association is concerned with its own community, this is in large measure our responsibility.

"In addition, while traffic deaths in 1941 have increased 17 per cent, the increase in the preschool age group up to 4 years was increased 33 per cent—the largest increase of all age groups."

Miss Tlford said since the safety problem had been aggravated by the defense emergency, the Congress' program would be intensified in accordance with "the techniques and procedures which our experience has proved to be best."

For example, she said, the manual urges that the P. T. A. appoint committees to collect data on the most hazardous places for drivers and pedestrians in a 30-mile radius of the meeting place of the association. At meetings, each of these locations will be named and hazards specifically described.

"This technique will be applied most vigorously," Miss Telford said because the Federal Public Roads Administration estimated 91 per cent of motor vehicle trips are under 30 miles from home.

The manual also covers automobile driving instruction, home safety, safety for children going to school, rules for drivers and pedestrians, and safety education in the schools.

Isolation Embodies Threat To U. S., Dr. Gewehr Tells D.A.R.

If America withdraws in isolation and faces the possibility of a Hitler victory, this Nation would tend toward militarization, a planned economy and authoritarian government which would carry "a threat to our Constitutional system," Dr. W. M. Gewehr, of the University of Maryland faculty, said in a Constitution Day address for the District Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, last night.

He spoke on "Constitutional Crisis in 1787 and in 1941" at the program at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

There seem to be but two courses that the United States can pursue, Dr. Gewehr said. One would be to remain in isolation and face the consequences of a Hitler victory.

But this, he said, would require an indefinite period of "exhausting military preparation for an eventual conflict. Even if it did not come in our time, we should have to prepare for it," he said.

The United States would be forced to adopt "an autarchic planned economy" and to live mainly within its own resources and those of part of the Western Hemisphere, he said.

This militarization and planned economy would eventually lead toward an authoritarian government with its numerous controls. This course "clearly would carry a real threat to our Constitutional system and our American political democracy," said Dr. Gewehr, who is professor and head of the history department at the University of Maryland.

British Hegemony In Europe Gone

The Nation's other course is to "accept the challenge as we are now doing, to make the necessary sacrifices to insure the victory of the democratic way of life," he said.

Britain's hegemony in Europe is gone, Dr. Gewehr stated. That depended on her financial, industrial and naval leadership, and she has lost the first two of those. "Her navy alone cannot save her this time," he added.

The leadership in the world of the future will rest with Germany and her satellites or with the United States and her allies, Dr. Gewehr said.

Britain can not survive alone," but she will survive because the American people, imbued with the love of liberty, are committed to the free way of life," he added.

Describes U. S. Crisis of 1787

Dr. Gewehr described the crisis of 1787 when the American Republic seemed doomed to failure because the articles of confederation had made the Government dependent on the will of the separate States. Some leaders thought of restoring a monarchy, and an informal invitation was extended to one of the princes of Prussia, Dr. Gewehr said.

The convention which met in Philadelphia in the summer of 1787 made a bold decision to draw up a Constitution which would rest, not upon the States but upon the people, he explained. The convention ended its work on September 17, the anniversary celebrated last night.

Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, state regent of the D. A. R., and Mrs. Jessie Scott Arnold, historian, were in charge of the program which included greetings from representatives of other patriotic societies and a musical program.

Party Canceled

Due to the illness of Mrs. Albert Lyman Cox, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., have canceled the party tomorrow they were to have given in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Cox.

Soroptimists To Form Class

Services in which volunteers can work for the Red Cross were outlined for the Soroptimist Club at its luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel by Mrs. Raymond C. Mackay, vice chairman of volunteer special service, District Chapter of the Red Cross.

Members indicated on their attendance slips the type of volunteer work in which they are interested.

The club made plans for organizing a first aid class next week, under the direction of a Red Cross instructor.

Mrs. Bertha B. Jones, defense chairman of the club, was in charge of the meeting, over which Mrs. Loraine Leese Good, president, presided.

Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis, a member of the local club, who is chairman of defense for the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, made a progress report on replies to the questionnaire which all members have received for "voluntary registration of skills for the defense program." She said that two of the early returns came from members in Honolulu.

2 More Groups Join in U. W. O. Movement

Two more groups joined yesterday in the movement of the United Women's Organizations of the District for promotion of a mass meeting to be addressed by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, October 14, in the Departmental Auditorium.

The Girl Scout organization of the District and the Catholic Daughters of America have sent messages signifying their active interest in the mass meeting, Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the U. W. O., announced yesterday.

Of 35 representatives of organizations who attended the U. W. O. meeting Monday, 29 indicated cooperation in plans for the mass meeting. The others were to take up the question with their boards. With the two reporting yesterday, only four remain to be heard from.

Mayor LaGuardia will discuss plans for women's participation in civilian defense at the mass meeting, which has already been heralded as a possible pattern for unifying women's movements in other parts of the Nation.

Mrs. Roosevelt, newly appointed assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense, will preside at the mass meeting.

Mrs. Black to Direct Democrat Programs

Mrs. A. G. Black has been appointed program chairman for the Woman's National Democratic Club, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Curtis Shears, president.

Another new appointee is Mrs. Philip Dodson, who will be chairman for affiliated clubs. The Woman's National Democratic Club has 125 clubs over the Nation affiliated with it.

Mrs. Cheney to Tell Of Blackout Driving

Mrs. Howard Lovewell Cheney, a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps, will relate some of her experiences in blackout driving on "Personality Plus" program over Station WWDC at 7:15 this evening.

Mrs. Finch Names Aides

Mrs. George A. Finch, chairman of the Chevy Chase branch of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has announced leaders for the various sections in the annual roll call.

Mrs. Finch will act as chairman of the roll call, with Mrs. J. Roger Whiteford as vice chairman.

The other leaders are Mrs. Dwight V. Jones, Section 2-East; Mrs. R. R. Widner, Section 2-West; Mrs. Oscar B. Hunter, Section 3; Miss Byrd Belt, Section 4; Mrs. Fenner D. Powell, Section 5; Mrs. Lee P. Calfee, "The Hamlet"; Mrs. E. Burton Corning, Rollingwood; Mrs. Mason B. Leming, North Chevy Chase; Mrs. Roger Whiteford, Leland Street, and Miss Jean Benton, Section 3.

Mrs. C. A. Avant will be chairman of the junior roll call and will work with the Leland Junior High School, the Chevy Chase Elementary School and the Cobb School.

Over 50 per cent increase in membership is the quota for this community, making more than 3725 members needed for a complete roll call, this quota being based on the population in the community and on previous roll calls.

Mrs. Alfred J. Steffen, chairman of production, has announced that 1552 garments have been sent headquarters since June. Between 400 and 500 women have been responsible for this work. Mrs. John Beveridge, chairman of surgical dressings, reported 10,332 surgical dressings had been completed and sent on.

Mrs. Dwight V. Jones reported that the chapter had started a blood donors' service. Appointments may be made through her or Mrs. Finch, or at the chapter headquarters. The recipients of the blood plasma are the members of the armed forces of the United States.

Mrs. Harrison F. Fitts, treasurer, has made an appeal for volunteers to help with the cutting work which is in her charge at the Bethesda Chevy Chase Recreation Center.

Takoma Women's Club Board Meets Tomorrow

Mrs. Gilbert G. Sward, newly elected president of the Takoma aPrk Women's Club, has called the first executive board meeting of the current club year at her home, 2825 Greenvale Road, Chevy Chase, Md., at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Preceding the business meeting luncheon will be served. Mrs. Sward will be assisted by Mrs. Frank A. Nickols and Mrs. Wilbur H. Youngman.

My[illegible]ery Blasts Sink 3 Swede Destroyers

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Sept. 17.—Three of Sweden's best modern destroyers exploded and sank today in a series of mysterious blasts in Harstjaerden, a fjord south of Stockholm, long used as a naval proving ground and anchorage.

[D. N. B., official German news agency, said a troop transport also burned and sank, and a mine-layer, the Klas Fleming, was damaged severely when her cargo of mines blew up. Fire spread to nearby Maersgarns Island, where ammunition dumps are located, it said.]

The destroyers lost were the Goteborg, a sleek 1040-ton vessel built in 1935, and the Klas Horn and Klas Uggla, sister ships of 1020 tons each, built in 1932. Normal complements of the three would number 380 men.

Flames Spread on Sea

Verified casualties were 31 killed and 11 injured, but the toll was believed to be higher. Flaming oil which spread over the sea prevented a thorough check.

Swedish naval authorities said they were at a loss to account for the disaster.

[The Swedish-American news exchange in New York received a Stockholm dispatch saying a boiler aboard the Goteborg exploded, indicating that this touched off the other blasts.

[D. N. B., which also carried this report, said another account blamed a torpedo explosion on the Goteborg. The German agency said the explosions shook Maersgarns Island so severely that soldiers there took refuge in air-raid shelters.]

Ships Speed to Rescue

All available coastal vessels sped to the scene to help with rescue work and fire fighting. Every ambulance in Stockholm was sent out.

[This heavy blow to the efficient little navy of neutral Sweden occurred as the Finnish press was charging that some Swedish papers through blind antagonism to Nazi Germany were playing into the hands of Russia. Vidkun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi government on September 6 demanded that the Swedish press cease what he called "lie propaganda against new Norway and its leaders."

[There was no intimation from Stockholm, however, that these criticisms were in any way connected with the naval disaster.]

Secret Navy Building

Sweden has for some time been engaged in a big naval building program, mostly secret.

She is known, however, to have had at least 16 modern destroyers, including four bought from Italy before the war, and eight torpedo boats big enough to rate as "junior destroyers."

Sweden also has a combination aircraft carrier-cruiser of 4,775 tons, three 7,000-ton cruisers of World War vintage, four 3,415-ton cruisers dating back to 1901, two cruisers of 4,700 and 4,300 tons lately being modernized; the 4,775-ton Gotland, built in 1933; two new cruisers of 8,000 tons started in 1939, and two which were to have been started this year. She has 18 or more submarines and a large fleet of mine-layers and auxiliary craft.

Informed Swedish sources assert that for the last six months Sweden has added a ship a week to her navy, but it is likely that many of these were not major combat units.

Cape Verde Base of Italy Worries U. S. Naval Men

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

EYES IN THE SKIES: What the grand viziers of United States defense are really worrying about concerning those Portuguese Cape Verde Islands off the Vichy French African coast is that the Axis has a flying periscope based there right now.

Couple of years ago Bruno Mussolini, crash-killed son of the Duce, pow-wowed with Portugal and contracted a Cape Verde stepping stone for an Italian airline to South America. In and out of that base Italian planes still operate the sole remaining Axis airline on the Atlantic.

The Italian planes fly directly over one of the main ocean assembly points for British war supply convoys getting ready to run the German blockade. The planes have radios and so do the lurking submarines and surface raiders.

Every shipload of war supplies for Britain sunk in the Atlantic increases the pressure for more help from Uncle Sam, reducing the percentage of the American output for America's own forces. United States defense moguls would like to void the contract between Italy and Portugal, but the most delicate diplomacy hasn't been able to effect that yet.

DEFENSE QUIZ—What United States general has to report to and take orders from a general of fewer stars? Lieut. Gen. (three stars) Delos C. Emmons, chief of the Army Air Forces Combat Command. His boss is Maj. Gen. (two stars) Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Air Forces, but also deputy chief of staff of the Army. The flying leader of the Army's winged fighting men was given his high rank to place air power on an absolutely even footing with the ground forces. The only other Louie Gens are the commanders of the four field armies and the new armed force in the Philippines.

CRIMSON CORD: Director Bill Knudsen of OPM says that defense industries ought to be freed of red tape fetters and allowed to do their jobs without "so much Washington." Here's a case in point that Knudsen never heard of. A New Englander had one machine available for defense and entered the winning bid on a contract for 400,000 little aluminum collars to be used somewhere in airplanes. Finished ahead of schedule, too, but then "Washington" told him he couldn't count by weight but must count by hand, packing them exactly one gross to a box. When last seen through a rift in the red tape he was still counting his way one by one through 400,000 little white collars.

Pre-Marital Blood Tests Reported 65% Accurate

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 17 (AP).—An Illinois dermatologist told Michigan physicians today that premarital blood tests demanded in many States to determine presence or absence of syphilis are accurate only about 65 per cent of the time.

Dr. Frances E. Senear, head of the department of dermatology of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, reported to the Michigan Medical Society that the tests vary in accuracy according to the stage of the disease, and that it has been found other diseases such as tropical fevers, cancer, tuberculosis and diabetes frequently produce a positive reaction when no trace of syphilis can be found.

Under ideal conditions, Dr. Senear said, the tests may average higher than 65 per cent in accuracy, but he added that misleading diagnosis sometimes result from tests performed by the average public laboratory. None of the tests in common use is infallible, he warned. He advised practitioners to hesitate in diagnosing syphilis without further evidence to support the blood test findings.

Woman's Death In Tub of Water Held Accidental

A certificate of accidental death from drowning was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday afternoon after an autopsy was completed on the body of Mrs. Zora Collins, 60, of 42 Independence Avenue Southwest.

Dr. MacDonald said the post mortem disclosed Mrs. Collins had drowned apparently after falling into a tub of scalding water in the bathroom of her apartment, Tuesday. She was found about 10 p. m. after residents on a lower floor complained of water leaking through the ceiling.

The coroner said Mrs. Collins had been dead about four hours when she was found and that her body was covered with severe scald burns. Mrs. Collins was washing clothes and apparently lost her balance, it was said.

A retired employe of the General Accounting Office, Mrs. Collins is survived by one son, Harry Collins, of 2107 T Street Southeast.

A. U. Welcomes Enrollees Today

An orientation program for all new students enrolled at American University in College of Arts and Sciences will begin today at 3 p. m. with registration followed by talks by Dean George B. Woods and Carl Byham, president-elect of the student body, it was announced yesterday.

New enrollees will be taken on tours of the campus, aptitude tests will be atiministered, and several of the college honor and social societies will entertain.

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, university president, will address all new students at a dinner to be held Saturday at 6:15 p. m. in the college dining room.

Sunday's program is under the direction of the Student Christian Association. On Monday, Cap and Gown and Omicron Delta Kappa will entertain new students. On Tuesday, the annual all-college party will be held in the evening.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Financing Is Asked For Promotion Plan

The Budget Bureau is being criticized by Federal employes for its failure to ask Congress for an appropriation to make effective the automatic promotion plan (Ramspeck - Mead Act) which will become effective October 1 and which is expected to bring administrative promotions to 175,000 employes the first year it's in operation. The bureau, however, isn't as inactive as it seems. In its report to the House Appropriations Committee, the bureau recommended that the promotion plan be financed by a supplemental appropriation to be voted by Congress at the end of the fiscal year.

The bureau also suggested that departments and agencies be permitted to make the promotions out of existing funds which means that all employes eligible for a promotion would get it on the first of the month despite the fact that funds aren't technically available. It's the bureau argument that an accurate estimate of the cost of promotions can't be made now; that the cost can be determined easily by next May, and that the delay wouldn't cost a nickel more, and if anything, would be cheaper by saving time.

Budget Bureau officials have presented this view to both House and Senate Appropriations Committees. Now it's up to these committees to decide whether the deserving employes will get their pay raises on October 1. Action has been held up in the House committee by the death of Chairman Taylor. It's generally taken for granted that both committees will go along on the budget plan and permit the agencies to raise the salaries of their employes out of present appropriations. Meantime, the departments and agencies are listing their employes who are eligible for the in-grade promotions.

The House Public Building and Grounds Committee will continue its investigation into decentralization of Federal agencies here within a few days. Chairman Lanham yesterday appointed Representative Downs of Connecticut, the chairman of a subcommittee to determine which departments should be decentralized. Downs said he would summon all cabinet members to testify before his subcommittee. Representatives of the War, Treasury and Agriculture Departments already have testified.

Uncle Sam is going to teach some of his citizens to speak and read Japanese, Chinese, and Malayan. A search for interpreters for these languages revealed only a handful of Americans who knew one or more of the languages. To prepare for any and all eventualities, Uncle Sam has given the Rockefeller Foundation $50,000 to teach a select group these languages. The fund is being handled at the foundation by Dr. David Stevens who is director of humanities. Teaching will be conducted here by Dr. Mortimer Graves of the American Council of Learned Societies to which $10,000 have been allocated by the foundation.

The first public hearing on Hatch Act violations is being conducted in Cincinnati by the Civil Service Commission. It's charged that employes of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation in that city were forced to make contributions to the politicans during the 1940 election campaign. James W. Irwin is the trial examiner . . . The Nation's architects are being listed on the National Roster for possible call to Federal jobs. Civil Service supervises the roster . . . Civil Service will soon announce an exam for information specialists.

The Federal employe who was or is drafted in the Army will be paid his accumulated annual leave under a recent act approved by Congress. However, the Federal employe who volunteered for the Army won't be paid for his leave, Comptroller General Linsey Warren has so ruled . . .OPM soon will campaign for scrap rubber . . . State Department's visa division is being moved from the Winder Building, Seventeenth and F Streets, to 515 Twenty-second Street.

Police Shots Halt Driver After 80-M. P. H. Chase

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 17.—An 80-mile-an-hour auto chase through city streets, climaxed by police gunplay, resulted in the arrest early today of a 25-year-old Baltimorean, Isaac Nichols. The chase continued for more than 3 miles before the officers finally caused the car to halt after firing at his tires.

In police court, Nichols was fined a total of $44.75 on the speeding charge and driving a car without an operator's license.

Dysentery Laid to Hospital Overcrowding

The House District Committee yesterday sought data on accepted standards of hospital nursing staffs as Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, Health Department director of maternal and infant welfare, declared "overcrowding" to be an important factor in a recent outbreak of infant dysentery at Sibley Hospital.

Another factor, Dr. Oppenheimer stated, was "the difficulty in getting graduate nurses." The official declared at the same time that her investigations at Sibley disclosed that 247 patients had been accommodated in space ordinarily used by 180.

Records of the District's Bureau of Vital Statistics yesterday showed that thus far this month eight babies have died of infant dysentery here. Fifty cases of the disease have been reported since August 1.

District committee aides yesterday asked the Graduate Nurses' Association of the District to furnish data on the minimum number of nurses in relation to patient load advocated by health and hospital administration experts.

Two Washington women yesterday filed affidavits with the committee in connection with the deaths of their babies from dysentery contracted in the hospital. One of the graduates complained that the hospital seemed to be handicapped by an undersized nursing staff.

Warm? Certainly! Day Hottest Sept. 17 on Record

They write songs about the weather, and everyone talks about the weather, including little boys who have only a few days left in which to enjoy their summer freedom. Yesterday was one of those Indian summer days that was made to order for fishing, swimming, or just lazy dreaming.

"It was the hottest September 17 on record," said the weatherman. The temperature reading at 1 p. m. yesterday was 92.4 degrees, which is pretty hot in any man's language. The humidity at the same time was 42 per cent which meant the air was pretty "dry."

Today promises to be fair and "not so warm," with the mercury expected to hover around the 84-85 degree mark.

Pastor Is Given Kitchen Shower

The Rev. James P. Rodgers received more than 150 articles for the pantry and kitchen of his new home at 6443 Second Place Northwest last night at a surprise shower given by members and friends of the church.

Mrs. George W. Potter, president of the Ladies Aid Society, was chairman of the party, held at the pastor's home. A pair of brass andirons and a miror were special gifts.

Police Seize Suspect in Wife Slaying

Here's a little drama entitled "How To Catch a Suspect," presented by Washington's rejuvenated homicide squad.

At 7:40 p. m. Tuesday, Beatrice Wise Peyton, 24, Negro, of 609 Tenth Street Northeast, was found unconscious on the sidewalk in front of 5 I Street Northeast, by Fred Bennings, Negro, 49, of 242 Parker Street Northeast.

Bennings called police who in turn summoned a doctor from Casualty Hospital. The woman was pronounced dead at 7:50 p. m. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald viewed the body and said death was due to a gunshot wound in the chest. A second bullet pierced her arm, the coroner declared.

Two members of the homicide squad, Detective Sergt. Charles Carver, drafted for homicide work during the recent Strieff case and now permanently assigned, and Detective Sergt. W. D. Perry were called into the case. Perry's duties on the squad are not to begin officially until today, but he went along to get his hand in.

The two investigators first went to the dead woman's home, where a nephew told hem she had been having domestic difficulties with her husband. They obtained a description of the husband which was broadcast by the police radio station.

When a checkup failed to locate the husband, Perry and Carver learned the man came to Washington from Amissville, Va., and that his mother still lived there.

A quick trip to Georgetown by the detectives rewarded them. They found a bus driver who recalled driving a man answering the suspect's description to Falls Church, Va. The driver had just returned to Washington.

Carver and Perry in the meantime had learned the suspect was well known to R. S. Wood, a Virginia State trooper. The detectives got on the telephone, called the District police radio station and asked that a message by relayed to Trooper Wood through the Alexandria, Va., police radio station.

Wood was reached and given a description of the suspect and his probable destination. Wood learned that from Falls Church the fugitive took a bus to Centerville. In the latter city, a gas station attendant told Wood he saw the man hitch-hiking toward Warrenton.

Wood sped to Warrenton and learned his quarry had taken a taxicab to Amissville. Ten miles from Warrenton, shortly after midnight, the cab was overtaken and the man arrested.

Wood notified Perry and Carver, who drove to Warrenton after the man. He agreed to waive extradition and was returned to Washington at 4:50 a. m.

According to the detectives, he showed them where he had thrown his weapon, a 32-caliber revolver.

He identified himself as Marshall Peyton,

Catoe to Face Abramowitz Trial First

Jarvis Catoe, 36, who confessed five sex murders in Washington will be placed on trial first for the death of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz, 28-year-old bride slain in her Sixteenth Strt Northwst apartment March 8.

This trial is set for October 15. A month later Catoe will be tried for the death of Mattie Steward, 48, Negro, killed November 28, 1940.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran announced the selection of cases yesterday after he and his principal assistant, John W. Fihelly, had conferred for more than an hour with Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty and Sergt. John Wise, of the Homcide Squad.

The announcement confirmed predictions of a fortnight ago that the prosecutors would deal with Catoe on the Abramowitz case rather than for the murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23, War Department clerk, whose nude body was found in a garage on June 16.

The police say Catoe confessed these murders, two others here and five rapes. When indicted two weeks ago he pleaded not guilty to all the charges.

Defense Counsel Walter M. Shea, George J. Boden and Robert J. Esher declared that they would be ready for trial and that they expected Catoe to adhere to the not guilty plea rather than resort to a claim of insanity. However, the defense lawyers intimated that the evidence contained "an ace in the hole" which would support Catoe's stand.

The defense staff isued this statement:

"We expected ever since the inquest that the authorities would not dare to try the Strieff case, even though statements attributed to the authorities in the press prior to the inquest were to the effect that the Strieff case would be presented to the grand jury and in the event of an indictment a speedy trial of this case demanded.

"In our opinion, the Abramowitz case is no stronger against Catoe than the Strieff case. The inquest of the Strieff case showed the inherent weakness of that case and the improbability that Catoe was connected in any way with either of those cases."

Stettinius Given Testimonial Dinner

More than 100 OPM associates and friends of Edward R. Stettinius, jr., attended a testimonial dinner for him last night at the Hotel Mayflower, and wished him success in his new position as lend-lease expediter.

The former head of the Priorities Division in the OPM heard testimonial speeches by his former aides in that department, Blackwell Smith, Sidney Weinberg, Lawrence Martin and Jeffrey Smith. Philip D. Reed, Deputy Director of Materials Division in the OPM, was toastmaster.

Park Board to Discuss Road Plan Today

Highway and bridge improvements deemed essential because of traffic problems, which will be raised by construction of the new War Department building in nearby Virginia, will be considered today by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Foremost on the agenda are the proposed extension of Independence Avenue westward from Fourteenth Street to the Potomac River, location of a new bridge over the Anacostia River and development of the K Street viaduct as a vehicular by-pass of Georgetown.

Congress already has authorized the new bridge, to be on or near the line of South Capitol Street. The other two major improvements have yet to receive Congressional approval.

Meeting today and tomorrow under the chairmanship of Frederic A. Delano, the planning body also will discuss progress reports on plans for the proposed Baltimore Parkway and pass on sites suggested by the District Commissioners for a Northwest health center and an elementary school to be erected in the vicinity of Nichols Avenue and Atlantic Street Southwest.

John Nolen, jr., director of planning, will report on cooperation of the District Highway Department, Office of National Capital Parks and Coordinating Committee in drafting traffic relief plans. He also will outline results of conferences with Maryland Roads Commission officials in connection with the Baltimore Parkway project, which would provide a scenic, high-speed route between that city and the Capital.

Max Wehrly, city planner of the commission staff, will describe cooperative efforts now under way to develop plans for a Fairfax County (Virginia) water supply and sewage disposal system.

This afternoon the commission, with members of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission as guests, will make a sightseeing inspection trip down the C. & O. Canal aboard a horse-drawn barge. The "voyage" will start at Great Falls and end at the Anglers Club.

What is described as an ingenious plan for a combined air-raid shelter and parking garage will be inspected by the planners at their session tomorrow afternoon.

Nolen withheld the name of the inventor, disclosing only that he is a Frenchman.

Realty Men Urge 1940 Rent Ceiling

Present Control Bill; Several Exceptions Are Allowed in Plan

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Washington's organized real estate dealers yesterday responded to demands for rent-control legislation here by offering Congress a bill of their own—a measure which would permit rents, with certain exceptions, to go no higher than the level of September, 1940.

The bill was introduced by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, who said it was the first time real estate interests anywhere in the country have proposed legislation to prevent rents from skyrocketing during the defense boom.

E. Barrett Prettyman, former District corporation counsel and president of the District Bar Association, is scheduled to explain provisions of the measure and to outline realtors' views on restrictions against rent increases at a public hearing in the House District Committee room at 10 a. m. today.

Rent levels of last September were selected as "ceilings" at which the bill would freeze rentals here, because, it was explained, Bureau of Labor Statistics records show the month to be the last before the rental market began to feel the impact of the city's defense growth.

Would Create Administrator

The bill would create the office of District Rent Administrator to be appointed by the Commissioners for three years at an annual salary of $7000. The administrator would be empowered to appoint examiners and to promulgate rules and regulations subject to Commissioners' approval.

Two conditions are established by the bill under which landlords would be permitted to apply to the administrator for rent increases. In one instance, the administrator could authorize an increase for all landlords if justified by a general increase in fuel, taxes and other cost items. Rent rises might be allowed individual landlords who could demonstrate either increases in costs or in capital investment by reason of improvements.

Would Freeze Apartment Service

In addition to freezing rents as of last September, the bill would freeze apartment and rooming house service as of that date. In event of a reduction of service, the administrator could either order the service restored or the rent reduced.

Orders changing rents or services would be based on findings of examiners after hearings. Decisions of the administrator could be appealed to the Municipal Court.

The bill would prohibit landlords from asking for or receiving rents in excess of the established minimum and would bar them from evicting tenants for failure to pay excessive rents. Tenants charged in excess of the permissible rent would be permitted to collect double the excess plus $50 attorney fee.

To Encourage New Building

To encourage new building and conversion of existing structures into dwellings, the measure would permit landlords to charge as much rent as the market will allow for housing made available after enactment of the bill. Rent charged for the first month new housing is occupied could not be increased, however.

Today's hearing will be conducted before the special defense subcommittee of the District Committee which, for several months, has taken testimony on two other rent-control bills, also introduced by Randolph. One of the bills would establish a three-man rent commission, while the other, drafted by experts in the Office of Price Administration, would give an administrator, appointed by the President, full control over rents for the duration of the emergency.

The new bill represents a month's study by rent experts and the joint defense housing committee comprised of representatives of the Washington Real Estate Board, the Washington Building Owners and Managers Association, the Operative Builders Association, the District Building and Loan League and the Washington Taxpayers Association. Prettyman is counsel for the committee.

Suspected Footpad Seized at Hospital

A 16-year-old youth surprised Tuesday night atop the roof at 1442 Somerset Place Northwest, where he was suspected of attempting a housebreaking was arrested early today when he applied for treatment at Garfield Hospital.

He received his injury when he drew a knife on Bernard West, janitor at the Somerset Place apartment, and received a blow on the head from a baseball bat West carried to the roof to investigate noises.

Officers last night said the lad has already admitted to 25 housebreakings in the past two months. His case will be brought before Juvenile Court.

Fire on Bus Ties Up Traffic

A fire on a Capital Transit Co. bus at the dinner hour last night caused a brief traffic tie-up at Eleventh and H Streets Northwest. The driver, Roy C. Kelly, put out the blaze before firemen arrived. No one was hurt.

Named Md. Tobacco Queen

Senorita Maria Teresa Escalante, daughter of the Venezuelan Ambassador to Washington, has been chosen queen to reign over the Court of the Magic Weed, tobacco carnival to be staged at La Plata, Md., on September 26 and 27. Coronation ceremony will be Saturday night, September 27, and she will be crowned by Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War

Schools Expect Enrollment Of 96,250

An expected, 96,250 students will enter the District public schools when doors open Monday, the Board of Education was told yesterday at its regular meeting at the Franklin School.

According to the statistical information compiled for the Board's information, enrollment will be up some 3,400 over last year.

Mrs. Mildred S. Percy, research assistant in the education research department of division 1-9 of the District school system, was appointed head of the department of guidance and placement. She has been in the District public schools system since 1923.

Cadet Uniform Unchanged

Appointed to the same capacity in divisions 10-13 was Mrs. T. C. Alexander, who has served as a research assistant in that division. She was appointed a public school teacher in 1920.

By unanimous action the board ordered a continuance of the present type of cadet uniform. New prices for the uniforms, marking an increase over previous years, are $22.69 for a private, $22.94 for a non-commissioned officer and $25.28 for an officer.

To further the Federal defense savings plan in the schools a committee of 13, headed by Miss May P. Bradshaw, principal of Roosevelt High School, was appointed by the board. Members include:

Prof. Paul O. Carr, Wilson Teachers College; Prof. T. I. Brown, Miner Teachers College; R. N. Mattingly, principal of Cardoza High School; Mrs. Mary S. Resh, principal of Dennison Vocational School; George F. Waltz, McKinley High School teacher; E. Y. Olney, Anacostia Junior-Senior High School teacher.

Dunbar High Approved

Dr. Julia L. Hahn, supervising principal of the third division; Mrs. J. C. Smith, administrative principal of the Morgan School; Mrs. Juanita S. Winn, teacher at the Morgan School; E. J. Lockwood, director of evening and summer schools in divisions 1-9, and C. O. Lewis, director of evening and summer schools in divisions 10-13.

The board authorized its president, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, to sign the necessary papers approving the Dunbar High School as a school for immigrant students.

By its action the board postponed a formerly approved experiment providing for a new schedule of languages and business subjects in four junior high schools. The postponement is necessitated by changes in teaching personnel induced by national defense, it was said.

The board approved the retirement of F. C. Johnson, Armstrong High School teacher, who will celebrate his seventieth birthday on September 25.

Coroner's Jury To Hear Driver On Traffic Death

A coroner's jury this morning will investigate the traffic death of Harry Zender, 57, of 804 Seventeenth Street Northwest, who was struck and killed while standing in a streetcar loading zone in the 2600 block Wisconsin Avenue Northwest Tuesday night.

Louis Bryant, 24, Negro, of 11 Virginia Avenue Southwest, driver of a delivery car owned by Pearson's Pharmacy, 2436 Wisconsin Avenue, will appear at the hearing.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Ida Shenk, 44, of 1305 Fairlawn Avenue Southeast, who also was struck by Bryant's machine, which later crashed into a tree, was reported improved at Mount Alto Hospital yesterday. She suffered a fractured right leg and skull.

The driver told police yesterday he lost control of the automobile when the brakes failed to hold.

New Petition To Convert Trolleys Filed

A new move to convert 161 two-man cars to one-man cars was made yesterday by the Capital Transit Co. when it filed a petition to that effect with the Public Utilities Commission.

The commission promptly announced through its secretary, Elmo J. Milligan, that a public hearing would be held at a later date. At the same time Milligan issued notice of an engineering investigation to be made of the proposal.

The transit company had previously challenged the power of P. U. C. to reject plans for conversion of older cars to one-man operation and had taken the case to the District Court. However, this suit was withdrawn September 12.

This court action was filed nearly a year and a half ago after a request by the transit company that permission be granted to convert a number of cars was turned down by the commission. PUC rejected the proposal as unwise at the time.

Capital Transit filed another petition to convert nearly 161 cars last February, but PUC declined to consider the proposal pending outcome of the suit then in court.

The transit company cited "new conditions" which had arisen here which should change PUC's earlier ruling in filing the petition yesterday and asking that the previous request be withdrawn. The District's growth in population is an expected argument of the transit company in asking approval for conversion.

Senate Passes 2 District Crime Bills

Approval Given Vagrancy Measure, Stiffer Penalties On Repeaters

Legislative action on the District's new vagrancy law—a police weapon against crime long advocated by District and Congressional leaders—was completed by the Senate yesterday as it gave approval also to a bill to enforce stiff penalties for repeated law violations here.

The measures, both of which were urged in the recent report of the House Police Investigation Subcommittee, were among six District bills the Senate passed by unanimous consent.

The vagrancy bill which now requires only the signature of President Roosevelt to become law, would make it necessary for known criminals and others prosecuted under its terms to prove that they have lawful employment or lawful means of support. The present law merely requires defendants to show visible means of support.

Bill Goes Back to House

In passing the habitual criminal bill, the Senate accepted a rewritten version of a House-passed measure. The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate changes.

The Senate bill differs from the House version in that it provides increasingly stiff penalties for repeated convictions of crimes of violence, rather than felonies. Included in the list of violent crimes are murder, rape, manslaughter, abduction, kidnaping, housebreaking and robbery.

The penalties in each bill are the same—compulsory maximum sentence for second-offenders, one and one-half times maximum sentence for third offense and twice the maximum for fourth and subsequent offenses.

Industrial Safety

The Senate also approved a House bill to authorize a District agency to promulgate regulations for the safety of industrial workers. The House bill created an Industrial Accident Prevention Board, but the Senate measure, in line with board-merging aims of Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, District Committee chairman, transfers safety functions to the Minimum Wage Board.

Other bills passed by the Senate would permit District and Federal employes to appear as court witnesses without loss of salary or annual leave, increase authorization for construction of a new Recorder of Deeds building and authorize the superintendent of insurance to require certain reserves to be maintained by companies insuring taxicab operators.

The Capitol Locates Its First Paying Guest

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

AND WHAT DO YOU DO with your old theater ticket stubs? Do you pop them into your top bureau drawer along with odd-looking shells you picked up on Cape Cod, that weird streetcar transfer they gave you in Cairo and those clippings of cousin Tillie's "brilliant" marriage? Or won't the little woman let you?

BROCK PEMBERTON

Well, be buffaloed no longer, me proud bucks. There's gold in them thar scraps. True, you don't strike anything but a sentimental vein very often, but once in a while something does come up and you're pledged to collecting junk for the rest of your mortal living. Take the case of Mrs. Mary E. Steiner, of 1353 A Street Northeast.

Fourteen years ago this week Mrs. Steiner stood in line on F Street to purchase the first ticket of admission to the new Fox Theater. After a couple of hours wait, Mrs. Steiner became the first paying patron of the Fox, saw George O'Brien and Virginia Vallee in "Paid to Love" and a Roxy stage revue headlined by the dancing "Gamby," (Maria Gambarelli, sister of the Earle's incoming songstress Yolla Galli). But Mrs. S. saved her No. 1 ticket stub, she did.

Seven years later the Fox had a birthday in which it paged patron No. 1. Mrs. Steiner had her stub to prove she was it. Tempus again fled and a few days ago Mrs. S. heard once more the call for patron No. 1. She phoned the theater (by now the Capitol), they asked where she'd been all these years and invited her to cut the Capitol's birthday cake at tonight's performance. She'll give a box party for her friends and, one hopes, feel like a New Year's Eve celebrant amid the Capitol's festive decorations.

Now are you going to save your old stubs or are you going to be patriotic and turn over all your waste paper to the National Defense movement?

Britain Scores a Newsreel Coup

Someday one of those British spy melodramas doubtless will tell the story of how England nabbed the German newsreel films showing the Nazi camera records of the early attacks on the Soviet. However it happened, we know not, but England got the films, has granted Paramount the rights in the United States. Chief characters in this aerial battle are the Stuka planes. They went on view yesterday at the Earle, Metropolitan and Ambassador Theaters.

FROM OUT-OF-TOWN: "Two Story House," the "shudder comedy" Producer Brock Pemberton rechristened "Cuckoos on the Hearth" after its National Theater engagement, took a beating from the New York death watch, which wasn't expected to like it anyway. The audience appeal is what Pemberton has been counting on for this one—much after the fashion of E Street's current "Separate Rooms" audiences seem to love despite what the reviewers say about it. All the returns aren't in yet at this writing, but John Anderson had the smartest crack about it: "Brocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

From Boston the word is "Yes" on the Maxwell Anderson "Candle in the Wind," which will star Helen Hayes at the National the week of October 6. The Herald called it "very substantial success;" The Post, "Rousing and Powerful" and the Globe, "good theater, written with labor and fine skill of a civilized craftsman."

BACK TO OUR TOWN: Tonight's the night for the swing dancers. Artie Shaw's new band, with "Hot Lips" Page, Jack Jenney, Les Robinson and Dave Tough among 32 jam authorities, plays for dancing in the Riverside Stadium's Arabian Ballroom from 9 'til 1. Paula Kelley, who filled in for Marion Hutton with Glenn Miller's Orchestra, will be on hand tonight for the vocals.

In and out of town is Ben H. Atwell for the Al Jolson "Hold On to Your Hats," coming to the National after Miss Cornell. Ben is a chap who's been around. After serving a turn as a Chicago managing editor, Ben went in for publicity and handled such eminent folk as Pavlova, Morris Gest, Roxy and Major Bowes. "The Miracle" and "The Green Pastures" were his most celebrated assignments.

Since we boasted about playing our ping pong from an easy chair, we hope for an illuminating session with the autographed copy "How to Play Table Tennis" Coleman Clark sent us. Today's the last for the champ turned pro on the stage of the Earle . . . No truth whatever in another source's statement that Robert E. Sherwood has revised "There Shall Be No Night" for its current road tour. Finland is still the hero, Russia the merciless villain. The tour opens in Wilmington October 13 with the Lunts.

Roadside

"'DAVY CROCKETT.' This melodrama closes the Capital's barn theater season with its final performance Saturday evening. Betty Gray, Dick Sykes and Ted Tiller have the leading roles. Bibi Osterwald is on hand for the entr'acte, singing "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage" with a gentlemanly quartet.

Eastward Passage

New York, Sept. 17.

HARPO MARX: Last week the President signed an order lifting the restriction against American citizens traveling on belligerents' vessels—and permitted Americans to cross the seas on British warships. This, at first glance, would appear to be an empty gesture, for it's unlikely that warships would take civilian passengers. But that ruling was made for the benefit of Alexander Woollcott. He's on his way to England on a British warship . . . Before Alec left he talked to Ed Murrow, CBS correspondent in London, via the private short-wave channel. "I'd like you to reserve the best hotel accommodations for me," Woollcott ordered . . . "The best may not be good enough," said Murrow. "Times have changed" . . . "So have I," said Alec. "Get whatever's available."

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

HOUSING DEPT.: Two of last week's Atlantic City Beauty Pageant winners—Miss Birmingham and Miss Kentucky—scoured the midtown district for suitable rooms. They went from house to house, and finally found a building whose front was most inviting. "We'd like to accommodate you," the clerk reluctantly informed, "but we can't." It was the City Athletic Club—the all-male institution . . . FEDERAL COMM. COMM.: The radio chains agreed on Friday that as soon as your commission delivers its final ruling in the monopoly regulations case, they'll seek immediate relief in the law courts . . . GENE TUNNEY: Jack Dempsey and his complete family are vacationing in North Carolina, and he's relinquished his bachelor quarters.

HARRY HOPKINS: The most successful mission sent abroad since the war began was the one headed by your friend, Daniel Arnstein. He took his traffic experts to the Burma Road and did a thorough, speedy job of increasing its efficiency manyfold . . . Arnstein thereby earned for himself a national reputation, and the due credit he received was reported last week in every newspaper in the nation. Arnstein returned with personal mementoes and documents inscribed to him by the grateful Republic of China . . . This amazing feat has made the name of Daniel Arnstein known from coast to coast, and from Singapore to Rangoon. But before he left for the Orient he had applied in the New York Supreme Court for a legal change of name. And now the famous Daniel Arnstein legally is Daniel Austin.

FRED ASTAIRE: In Eleanor Powell's new picture, "I'll Take Manila," the dancing lady will feature a new top routine—in which she'll beat out a message in Morse code . . . ED FLYNN: Mat Adams, who assumed a $6,000 deficit when he became president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, turned over his office to his successor with all bills paid and money in the bank . . . WENDELL WILLKIE: Because of the perfect job you're doing before the Senatorial sub-committee investigation, Will Hay's status has been deflated. Hays had favored appeasing the Inquisitors . . . HAROLD LLOYD: Many of your old pictures now are being resurrected and prepared for Kay Kyser, the bandleader—who just signed a new deal with R. K. O.

NEWSPAPER GUILD: Gudrun Hansen, correspondent of the "Berlingske Tidende" of Copenhagen, was stranded in New York and now has a new profession. She's been signed as a showgirl at the Riviera . . . WILLIAM GREEN: Britain's new goodwill emissaries no longer will be the noblemen and famous subjects who have been streaming here. Laborites will be the new visitors. A small delegation already has arrived and larger ones will follow . . . ADMIRAL TOWERS: At a dinner party given for the officers of the "Malaya," the hostess asked one of the Britishers about his rank. "I'm the paymaster," he informed. The hostess seemed disappointed. The paymaster consoled: "But when a ship starts going down, ma'am, I can sink as fast as the captain does."

ASSOC. PRESS: On Saturday, in a Memphis dispatch, a newly arrived refugee was quoted as authority for the report that Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Thyssen had been captured in Cannes and that both had committed suicide in jail. That isn't true. Only a few days ago Louis Bromfield, the writer, received a letter from Mrs. Thyssen. She cited no discomforts . . . PAN AMER. AIRWAYS: In the President's broadcast last week he referred to Nazi-controlled airports in Colombia, too near the Panama Canal. The maps, which the President had, showed that there were 40 such airports in the country which doesn't require more than one. After due pressure the Colombian government now has taken charge of these airfields . . . BERNT BALCHEN: The uniformed Norwegian youngsters who were in town last night are aviators, here to do a March of Time reel, before they fly to London.

GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK: Elizabeth Dilling, the Red-hunter, is being subpenaed this week to testify before the Federal Grand Jury in Washington. The investigation concerns Flanders Hall, the Fascist publishing house . . . SECRETARY STIMSON: Your Cabinet colleague, Col. Frank Knox, submitted to a minor operation last week—and not even his commanding officer knows about it. . . SIR GERALD CAMPBELL: When N. B. C. presented its series of two-way broadcasts from Moscow, Berlin and London—a series during which correspondents in all three countries were able to converse with each other—Russia at first refused to participate. But N. B. C. finally managed to obtain the Kremlin's consent, by assuring: "This is considered good propaganda."

HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood Modern

Hollywood, Sept. 17.—Brynie Foy, one of our most popular producers, has got himself 156 weeks straight, without options or lay-off. The first year at $3500, and on up into the skies. And nobody in this town deserves it more . . .

KATHARINE HEPBURN

Now that the news is out about George Sanders' marriage which was announced exclusively in this column, George says "At last we can light. I've sold my sailboat where we kept out of sight of land, and have now bought two lots on which we'll build a $3500 Hollywood mansion. The bathtub will be the swimming pool, kitchen the barbecue pit, and the parlor our rumpus room." Why, George, you've gone Hollywood in reverse!

Spencer Tracy's been ribbing Katharine Hepburn in Chinese. He started as a gag, but when George Stevens heard it, it struck him as so funny he's hired a Chinaman to really teach Spence the lingo, and will do a scene that way in "Woman of the Year" . . . And speaking of that, Freddie Banker, from my office, who's in the Army, told of a Chinese in his outfit. He'd been flying for Chang Kai-Shek when he was drafted into our Army. His flat feet got him dismissed, he went right back to fly again for China. Says he, "Even if it takes 16 years, China will come out victorious. Because it's the cradle of civilization."

That farewell on the "Ball of Fire" set between Gary Cooper and Slim Talbot who's been Gary's stand in for 16 years) was something. "Well, so long," said Slim. "So long," said Gary. A couple of clams but it had bystanders all choked up . . . Gene Autry's bought 2000 acres near Ardmore, Okla., on which to winter his newly purchased Rodeo. He's also bought 1500 head of prize stock. Asked why he didn't buy nearer home, he said he was taking no chances on his cows going Hollywood. "Look what happened to Elsie."

Bob Preston has been elected "Ideal Outdoor Man" by the coeds of the University of Hawaii. They ought to see him now after working a month in semi-gloom for "Midnight Angel." Looks as if he'd been grown in a cellar.

Kathleen Howard, fashion expert turned actress and now in "Ball of Fire," is smiling these days. Her family lived in Paris 36 years, stayed on eight months after the Nazis took over. The trip from Paris to New York for four people took four months; they arrived with $12 between them. Naturally all their things were confiscated. Her brother Cecil De Blaquiere buried many of his valuable paintings and sculptures in a friend's garden outside of Paris, and his only comment was, "I hope some day I'll be able to go back and pick them up."

RKO's signed Bonita Granville on a long-term contract, expects to continue costarring her with Jackie Cooper after they finish "Syncopation" . . . George Seaton, who scripted "Charley's Aunt," and his wife, Phyllis Laughton, the gal who coached Hedy Lamarr, Dottie Lamour and Paulette Goddard, are now on a Mississippi River boat en route to New Orleans. I can think of no lazier vacation.

As a surprise to Loretta Young, Columbia redecorated her dressing room which delighted her no end, but the smell of the paint nearly knocked her out. So Bob Benchley told her that if she'd slice a large onion and rub it around, it would neutralize the odor. And she fell for it! . . . With Orson Welles' ten pigeons still loose in a Pathe sound stage, eight monkeys gone native on the "Jungle Book" location, with all the bull rampant, and our wolves running wild, I'd say our town was ripe for a visit from Frank Buck.

Writer Hal Block has had 16 mm. sound pictures taken of three "Millions for Defense" programs, and is giving the prints away to five children's hospitals throughout the country. The shots were taken at rehearsals, and include Jack Benny, Don Ameche, Claudette Colbert, Mary Livingstone, Betty Davis, Ken Murray, Eddie Robinson, Betty Grable, George Raft, Abbott and Costello, Raymond Massey, Priscilla Lane. Films will be distributed in time to be shown Thanksgiving Day at hospitals in Boston, St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville, Ky., and San Francisco.

Australia Faces Greater Peril, Says Fadden

Copyright by New York Times

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 17.—Prime Minister A. W. Fadden, reviewing the war situation in the House of Representatives today, admitted that Russia's position is serious and said Australia's security is imperiled as it has not been heretofore. It would be a profound mistake to suppose that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had not calculated on a winter campaign or that the advent of winter would necessarily arrest the German attack, he continued, for the probability was otherwise.

The Soviet needed all the material aid the British Empire and the United States could afford, and Australia is bound by every consideration of security and honor to discharge its obligations in that respect to the utmost limit, Fadden asserted. Australia might directly participate in economic aid, though not as a principal, and would meet to the fullest extent possible the requirements allocated to her.

American cooperation must be the dominant fact in estimation of the future. "Against the military ebb and flow in Europe and the Middle East," he said, "we are entitled on a long term view to set American and British sea power, industrial capacity and common resolve which, used to the utmost, would enable us ultimately to strike decisive blows.

"President Roosevelt's latest declaration must incalculably influence the course of the war. Throughout the critical period in the Far East, now extending over a year, the commonwealth has regarded of highest importance the coordination of imperial and United States policy."

The government has invited Alfred Duff Cooper, new British coordinator for the Far East, to visit Australia as soon as he had established himself at Singapore, the prime minister said. The United Kingdom and Australian governments at present are discussing important aspects of Far Eastern policy, he continued, for Australia must remain vigilant and ready for some sudden turn in the war impelling her active self-defense near her own coast line.

Sir Frederick Stewart, minister of external affairs, said the government had already indicated its willingness to receive representatives of the Soviet to develop trade with her. The most serious threat to the Middle East was the constant German pressure against Turkey, he said, and much depended on Turkey's ability to maintain her independence.

The lull in the Far East was attributable to the firm stand of the governments of the empire and the United States and also Russian resistance, causing Japan to doubt the inevitability of an Axis victory, the foreign minister declared, but the situation remained one of continued suspense as on past occasions, and uneasiness remained. The United States-Japanese parleys, of which the commonwealth had been advised, he continued, gave ground for modified encouragement. The traditional Japanese policy of prudence might yet be reasserted.

The United States throughout has taken a clear and encouraging initiative against domination of independent countries, Sir Frederick said, which Australia has gladly accepted.

Britain Opens Trials Today To Smash Food Bootleggers

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 17.—Britain is on the verge of stern prosecution of persons involved in a wartime food racket of great magnitude, informed persons disclosed tonight.

The first cases may be brought into court tomorrow. Those in the know say they will deal with black market operations involving hundreds of tons of the most valuable foodstuffs, even those stocks which had been built up as a reserve against German invasion.

Scotland Yard and operatives of the food ministry uncovered the evidence of the racket. Traditionally, official sources maintained their silence today, even after the first story broke in the London Evening Press.

It was not unexpected, however, for in both the newspapers and in Parliament there have been complaints for months about black market profiteering in food and clothing supplies, virtually all of which are rationed.

Informants disclosed tonight that the black market has operated both with stolen goods and through shadow corporations with fabricated trade turnover statements which built up large and secret stocks.

Such companies are reputed to have done a business amounting to hundreds of thousands of pounds a year.

Scores of food trucks have been hijacked and stolen throughout the country each week and their contents sold at high prices through the bootleg merchandising system.

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, charged that substantial quantities of maple syrup, intended for Canadian troops in England, had been diverted to the black bourse.

In some cases, informants said, bootleg operators have even obtained large cash advances from banks to carry out transactions masked as legitimate business, and reputable transport companies have been employed to move bootleg goods.

College Records 2 Earthquakes 8500 Miles Away

Weston, Mass., Sept. 17 (AP).—The seismograph at Weston College recorded an earthquake at 2:06.48 a. m. (E. S. T.) today. The disturbance was about 100 miles deep in the earth and approximately 8500 miles distant, the Rev. Clarence Blais, S. J., said. Another severe 'quake was recorded at 5:58.02 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday, about the same distance away, Father Blais added.

Asia Minor 'Quake Reported

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 17 (AP).—D. N. B. reported a violent earthquake in Asia Minor today.

The temblor started at 4:36 a. m., D. N. B. said in a Belgrade dispatch, with shocks recurring at 8-second intervals for 12 minutes.

Saw Ax, Friend's Head, He's Held for Murder

Swoyerville, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP).—A 48-year-old former mine worker, accused of hacking his friend Joseph Slakish, 67, to death with an ax while the victim was giving him a haircut, told Detective Joseph Miller:

"I saw the ax against the house. I looked at Joe's head. Then I want to chop him. I picked up the ax. After that I don't know what happened."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of Kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Cards Capture Pair, Trail Brooks by 1 Game

Crabtree's Homer Wins Second Fray

Braves Bow Twice, 6-1 and 3-2; Veteran Also Ties Score With Homer in First Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 17.—The Cardinals edged a little nearer Brooklyn by sweeping a double-header from the Boston Braves today, 6 to 1 and 3 to 2, and now trail the leaders by only one game.

Estel Crabtree, 37-year-old outfielder, smacked a home run in the ninth inning of the second fray to bring victory in a pitchers' duel between Max Lanier and Jim Tobin.

His home run in the seventh inning of the first game tied the score and then, in the eighth, came a five-run splurge on Brave misplays, two walks and three hits.

The pitching in the first game was top notch and until he blew up in the eighth Tom Earley was the equal of Rookie Howard Pollet who came through with his fourth victory against one defeat in the month he has been in the majors. His first victory was against the Braves.

Busy Eighth

Boston scored first in the opener. Phil Masi got on base when Martin Marion fumbled his grounder. He took second on a wild pitch after two outs and scored as Earley drove sharply to right field.

Then after Crabtree tied the score the big eighth went like this:

Sib Sisti tossed out Pollet. Jimmy Brown grounded to Buddy Hassett, who tossed to Earley, who ran to cover first—but failed to touch the bag. Johnny Hopp doubled to right and Brown stopped at third. Moore flied out and big John Mize was intentionally passed, filling the bases.

Then Hassett bobbled Crabtree's grounder and Brown and Hopp scored. Frank Crespi walked, again filling the bases, Marion's single sent Mize and Crabtree over the plate and Gus Mancuso's single scored Crespi. Art Johnson relieved Earley and quelled the uprising.

Rookie Stan Musial, just up from Rochester, doubled in the Cardinals' first two runs in the third inning of the nightcap.

Title Fight, Series Keep N.Y. Fans Busy

By the United Press

New York, Sept. 17.—The big town usually takes mammoth sporting events in its Gotham stride but its blase balance already is threatened seriously by the double explosion due for the week of September 28-October 4 when Joe Louis defends his crown against Lou Nova and the Yankees take on the National League winner in the World Series.

If the Brooklyn Dodgers win the National League pennant, it will take more than the fire department to quell flaming Flatbush which passed the combustion point weeks ago as "The Bums" continued to dominate the race.

Sports fans seem to have gotten the "kill two birds" idea and you hear reports from all sides about Cousin Charlie from Oklahoma City taking a week's vacation to catch both events and how "I just gotta get a pair" for Uncle Elmer and Aunt Emma who are driving up from Dallas.

The result is an unprecedented demand for world-series tickets and a skyrocketing market for fight pasteboards.

All reserved seats in Yankee Stadium, the biggest of all the ball yards, were sold out yesterday—with almost two weeks of the regular baseball season still remaining.

Tremendous Demand

"Countless thousands of ticket applications will have to be returned by the Yankee office," President Ed Barrow said today. "It is the biggest demand for world-series tickets I've experienced in all the years I've been connected with baseball."

This means that 41,000 grandstand and box seats in the stadium for the first, second and sixth games have been bought and paid for. Geared to seat 69,000 fans, the stadium has left 14,000 upper-tier grandstand seats and 14,000 bleacher seats that will be put on sale the morning of each game.

If clear and warm weather are present for either the first or second game, Barrow expects a complete sellout. This would eclipse the former one-game series attendance record of 66,669 set in the stadium by the Yanks-Giants in 1396.

29,000 Reserved

There never has been any doubt as to whether Ebbets Field would sell out for every game. Selling tickets in Brooklyn is only a question of whose money to take. In a borough of 3,000,000 population and only 33,000 seats at the outside, the Dodger management is faced with a terrific problem. Naturally regular applicants and season boxholders will be taken care of first. Approximately 29,000 seats will be reserved, leaving about 4,000 for the bleacherites, who will be fighting for places in line as soon as, and if, the Dodgers clinch the pennant.

Promoter Mike Jacobs is watching the demand for world series tickets with utmost interest because he figures every applicant a potential customer to the Louis-Nova tilt. Figured at first as a $500,000 fight, it already has exceeded all expectations and is more than $100,000 ahead of the advance sale for the Louis-Conn fight in June which drew $421,000.

Durham Again Beats Greensboro in Series

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 17 (AP).—Durham handed Greensboro its third defeat in a row in the finals of the Piedmont League's Shaughnessy playoff series, beating the Red Sox, 3 to 0, here tonight.

Spencer Smith hurled five-hit ball in the victory. The clubs play the fourth game of the best four out of seven series here tomorrow night.

Nats Smash 20 Hits, Defeat Browns, 9 to 8

Mickey Vernon's Single in Tenth Deciding Factor; Judnich Homers for St. Louis

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats slugged themselves 20 hits yesterday and needed every last one of them, plus a zany bit of baserunning by the Browns, to win a 9-8 game in ten innings. They didn't win until they made their last hit—Mickey Vernon's solid single into leftfield.

Washington couldn't get permanent possession of the game until it took the lead for the third time. Walter Judnich had the rudeness to slap a home run over the rightfield fence with two on base in the seventh and wipe out a 7-5 margin the Nats were enjoying at that time.

There would have been no extra inning and no Washington victory had young Chuck Stevens, Browns' rookie first baseman from San Antonio, remembered one of the elemental rules of baseball in the first inning. He tripled into the rightfield corner, only he didn't triple. He forgot to touch second base and was tagged out when Mickey Vernon noted the omission and cannily called for the ball. There was none out at the time.

Wynn Starts Game

Actually, the Nats got another important break to win the game. There were two out in the tenth, none on, and no signs of a Washington run, particularly when Rookie Hillis Layne swatted a routine grounder to Second Baseman Don Heffner. But it took a diabolical hop as Heffner was set for the ball, and Layne beat it out for his third hit of the game. Cecil Travis poked one of Relief Pitcher Archie McKain's left-handed pitches for a single to center, and then it was that Vernon sent everybody home.

Early Wynn started the game for the Nats and gave up five runs before he was removed for a pinch-

Hudson to Face Browns in Special Ladies' Day Game

The Nats today will attempt to narrow the Browns' sixth-place margin to a single game with Sid Hudson scheduled to pitch the finale of the two-game series. Bob Muncrief, rising young right-hander of the Browns, will oppose Hudson.

Griffith Stadium officials have designated today's contest as a special ladies' day game.

Manager Bucky Harris, well pleased with the performance of his rookies, will retain Hillis Layne at third base and Roberto Ortiz in rightfield. Their batting punch has been a potent factor in recent Washington triumphs.

4 Runs in 5th Wins for N. Y. Over Chisox

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—The New York Yankees broke up what might have been a sparkling pitching duel between Spud Chandler and Ed Smith today by blasting across four runs in the fifth inning to beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 3.

The Bombers made six hits in their big uprising, one of them Tommy Henrich's thirty-first home run with two on for the runs that won the game. The Yanks made only two other blows in the entire contest, but one of them was a triple by Johnny Sturm for a run in the first.

Chandler held the Sox to five hits for his ninth victory, but gave up two tallies in the first on a single by Joe Kuhel, a walk and a double by Taft Wright. Then Kuhel homered in the third.

Bill Dickey, seeking a major league record for catching in 100 games a year for 13 seasons, played the first two innings for the Yanks and then retired. He needs three more games to beat the 12-year mark he now holds jointly with Gabby Hartnett and Ray Schalk.

G. W., Terps Meet in Second Grid Practice

With both teams missing key players owing to injuries, George Washington and Maryland met in football scrimmage yesterday for the second time this season at College Park. And, as before, the teams appeared fairly well-matched. The workout lasted one and one-half hours.

When reports from both camps had been taken into consideration, it apepared that George Washington had evened up the score with Maryland by outscoring the Terps two touchdowns to one. This made up for last Saturday when the Terps made two scores and G. W. one.

Paul Weber, a 180-pound sophomore halfback starter, proved the Colonials' star back, both on offense and defense. Weber, who hails from Washington, Pa., counted his team's first tally, on a 15-yard line smash, and made other good gains and many tackles. The second and last G. W. score fell to Jim Graham, also a sophomore back, who bucked center for eight or ten yards.

The Terps' six-pointer was credited to Quarterback Tommy Mont on a pass from Fullback Jack Wright. Both are sophs.

Lorraine Gulli Leads Women's Bowling With 412

Lorraine Gulli was in a familiar role of leading scorer as the Ladies District Duckpin League opened on seven alleys last night. Miss Gulli had a 142 game and 412 set while other top performances were Lucy Rose, 381 for Rosslyn, Lucille Young, 376 for Ice Palace and Dorothy Gude, 359. Ice Palace had a 636 game, high for the night, and one of the best in years.

Team results: Rosslyn 3, Convention Hall 0; Arlington 3, Spillway 0; Hi-Skor 2, Del Ray 1; Brookland 2, Rendezvous 1; Ice Palace 2, Arcadia 1; Lafayette 2, King Pin 1; Clarendon 2, Red Circle 1.

The Cleveland Park Y. M. C. A. eleven will report to the branch Y at Thirty-fourth and Lowell Streets at 5:30 this afternoon for an organization meeting. First practice is at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Ninth-Inning Rally Scores For Dodgers

Flock Halts Pirates In Last Frame for 6-4 Margin; Galen Sparks Victory

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17.—For eight innings today a rude jolt seemed in store for the pennant-hungry Brooklyn Dodgers, but Flatbush's beloved "bums" awakened to their peril in dime-novel fashion and tore off a five-run ninth inning rally to squelch the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 4.

As a final touch to their spine-tingling surge, which had 6,206 Pittsburghers cheering them on, the Brooks quenched a counter-rally by the Buccos in the ninth in the nick of time after one run had scored.

A big "5" tacked on the scoreboard for St. Louis was the spur which snapped the Durocher demons out of their lethargy.

Until that five-run inning of the Cards against Boston, the Dodgers were docile before the fast slants of Southpaw Ken Heintzelman.

They made hits in every inning except the first, a total of 15 for the game, but repeated failures against the clutch pitching of Heintzelman left the runners as stranded as panting commuters late for the 8:30 train.

Galan Hits Double

That is until the ninth inning. Then little Augie Galan, who had tied up Brooklyn's struggle yesterday at Cincinnati with a pinch double in the ninth inning, was sent to the plate to bat for quiet Curt Davis, who had been pitching his heart out all afternoon only to find himself trailing, 3 to 1.

Galan led off with a smashing double to right and it was the brass ring on the merry-go-round. The Dodgers kept riding until ten men had gone to bat. Peewee Reese singled Galan home and Billy Herman blasted a single to right, putting Reese on third. Then two-gun Pete Reiser drove a terrific triple against the exit gate in right center to bring both runners home.

This was more than symbolic—Heintzelman exited immediately in favor of Rip Sewell. Reiser was held on third as Joe Medwick grounded out and then was trapped and run down when Cookie Lavagetto grounded to Third Baseman Frank Gustine. But this was only the lull, not the end of the storm.

Lavagetto reached second on Reiser's rundown and Slugger Dolph Camilli was purposely passed. Then Dixie Walker waited out another walk, to load the bases, and Lew Riggs came in as a pinch-hitter for Mickey Owen. He rapped a sharp grounder which bounced over Secondbaseman Stu Martin's head for a single and brought home what proved to be the two deciding runs.

Bucs Take Lead

The Pirates had pounced on a two-run lead in the second, partly on two hits and partly through the mental aberrations for which the Dodgers are famous.

Debs Garms singled and Elbie Fletcher walked. Martin sent a potential double play grounder to Reese, who tossed to Herman to force Fletcher. But Herman tried to cut off Garms by throwing to third, which Lavagetto had left unguarded. The ball went right on through, Garms scored and Martin went to second. Vince DiMaggio

Sons of Grove And Lentz Enroll At Chestertown

By the Associated Press

Chestertown, Md., Sept. 17.—Sons of two well-known sports figures were among the approximately 100 first-year students who registered at the opening of freshman week at Washington College today.

Among those enrolling were Robert G. Grove, son of "Lefty" Bob Grove, Boston Red Sox pitcher, and Valentine W. Lentz, son of Valentine (Dutch) Lentz, Army basketball coach.

The freshman week program designed to acquaint new students with college ways will continue through Sunday. The 160th academic year will begin Monday.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

If the Cardinals lose the pennant by a fraction of a game, St. Louis fans will be yelling an accompaniment to the buffalo's screams. The buffalo we refer to is the genus Bubalus buffelus on the American nickel which the Cardinal ownership squeezed to the screaming point in a short-sighted, nickel-nursing handling of the series with the Giants earlier in the week.

POVICH

With an open date on Monday, the Cardinal front office refused to schedule a game with the Giants, preferring to wait until Tuesday, because Monday is the least profitable baseball day in the week. And so, when the Giants played the Cardinals to a tie on Tuesday there was no chance to play the game off. The Cardinals lost an opportunity to cut a half game from the Dodgers' lead and it could, conceivably, cost them the pennant. It could cost the Cardinal players as much as $6000 each in World Series spoils and it could cost the Cardinal owners a couple hundred grand.

It is one of baseball's irrevocable rules that when a series between two clubs is not completed at the end of the last day on which those two clubs are scheduled to meet during a season, no game can be re-scheduled. The Cardinals, as a result, will play one game fewer than the Dodgers. Thus the Cardinals, at the finish, can lose the pennant despite the fact they may have lost no more games than the Dodgers.

Boiled down, it means that the Dodgers get a chance to add to their percentage which St. Louis doesn't have. If the race is close enough, the Dodgers can, by winning one more game than the Cardinals, win the pennant. Of course defeat in that extra game might prove fatal to the Dodgers, but the Dodgers will leap at the risk.

Johnny Allen Catches Spirit

One thing is certain, the National League in any case will have a stout-hearted contender to send into the world series against the Yankees. Either the Dodgers or the Cardinals represent a better team than any National League club to find its way into a world series since the 1934 Gas House Gang of Deans, Medwick, Frisch, Durocher, Bottomley and Pepper Martin. With the chips down, the Dodgers and Cards have been two great ball clubs.

The pitching of both the Cards and Dodgers has been superior in this pennant drive to anything the Yankees have exhibited during the season. Even the aged Johnny Allen, considered washed up twice this season when he was released at the waiver price by the Indians and Browns, consequently, caught the vibrant spirit of the Brooklyn club. Allen's 15-inning shutout job against the Reds the other day when, in desperation, Leo Durocher sent him to the mound, was an epic of the season. He didn't get credit for the victory despite the fact he held the Reds to one scratch hit in nine innings and allowed only six hits in 15. Hugh Casey, who pitched the sixteenth and seventeenth innings finally, was the winning pitcher.

But what Allen did was to cut himself in for a full share of the World Series spoils if the Dodgers get into the World Series. At least he will get a full share unless the Dodgers are base ingrates and entirely unappreciative of the job he did for them in the game with the Reds. Allen didn't join the Dodgers until late July and ordinarily would not be entitled to a full cut of the series swag, but if the Dodgers don't vote him a man's sized share we hope they don't win the pennant.

From here in, the Dodgers seem to have all the better of it in the schedule. Of their ten remaining games they have no fewer than seven with the anemic Phillies. Otherwise they play the Pirates once and the Braves twice. If Durocher had written the script he couldn't have plotted a more inviting wind-up to a close pennant race, particularly with Brooklyn ending the season with two games at Ebbets Field against the Phils.

Cards Face Trouble in Cubs

The Cardinals don't have such a soft touch. Following one game with the Braves, they take on the Cubs on four and in Passeau and Olsen they meet up with a pair of tough pitchers. Then follows, for the Cardinals, four games with the Pirates—at Pittsburgh, which can mean deep trouble. The Cardinals wind up on the road with two more games at Chicago. If they beat out the Dodgers under these circumstances, they'll be much the best.

If the American League isn't envious of the ding-dong finish the National League is staging, the only reason is that the A. L. is inured to it. For years now, with the exception of 1940, the American League has seen interest in its pennant races collapse in early September with the Yankees making a farce of competition while the National League continued to rake in the shekels to the last week of the season.

The American League's chief comfort has been the World Series results. Until the Reds upset the Tigers last year, the National League had not won a series since 1934. And according to the Broadway betting commissioners, the National League doesn't have much of a chance to win this one unless the Cardinals beat out the Dodgers. It's no secret with them that the Cards would give the Yankees a better battle of it than the Brooks, if the Cards can wangle their way into the series, which of course would be the neatest trick of the month.

Pieces of Haight:

Dear Boss: Colorado Springs, Colo.

I feel as though I owe you and the Redskins' fans at least one informative letter. Here's some things you might know or might not know about the team:

All equipment is furnished players except shoes and shoulder pads for practice . . . They wear out on the average of two game uniforms a season . . . This training trip will cost a shade over $15,000 . . . but games and guarantees will offset that . . . On all trips and in Washington before the season opens their expenses are paid . . . At home all players must live at the Fairfax Hotel . . . They must be in bed by 11 p. m. or face a fine of $1 a minute for each minute late . . . The night after a game players have a 12 p. m. Curfew . . . They are paid by the season but it is prorated per game . . . They are required to wear coats and ties in hotels and public dining rooms, when traveling as a group.

HAIGHT

Players must be uniformed alike on playing field . . . Everyone must wear stockings . . . 27 of the present group of Redskins are married . . . 16 children call players "papa" . . . Bob McChesney, Vic Carroll, Bob Masterson and Wayne Millner have two children each . . . Carroll's are twins . . . At the San Diego camp the players practiced twice a day . . . They practice once in Washington, from 10 to 12 in the morning . . . Monday, following a game, is a day of rest . . . Coach Flaherty uses movies of games to aid in his work . . . the pictures of a game last year were being shown the players and, on a try for point after touchdown by the opposition, a Redskin back was seen leaning against the goal post with a bored expression on his face . . . From what I observed, tips alone on the train from Los Angeles here cost the club $75.

Coach Flaherty and Edwards train right along with the players . . . Flaherty, former star end for Gonaga U. and the New York Giants, can still pull down passes with the best of them . . . Every team in the league has borrowed ticket-handling ideas from the Redskins . . . When Philadelphia's Eagle's changed hands this year, the whole official family of the team came down to study Redskin methods . . . When the band forms letters between halves this year, the formations will face the west instead of the north as heretofore . . . the band will have 112 pieces this year and a director, John D'Andelet . . . Bess, Colonial Fullback, Cracks Terp Line for Good Gain

Bill Bess, reserve George Washington fullback who started in place of the injured Walter Fedora in a scrimmage against Maryland yesterday, is shown gaining about five yards through the line. It was the second scrimmage of the year between the well-matched Colonials and Terps

Tars, Hoyas Rely Heavily on Air Power in Grid Scrimmage

Bill Busik, of Middies, Georgetown's Doolan Outstanding; Hoyas Improve Gradually

By Jack Munhall
Post Staff Writer

Annapolis, Sept. 17.—The air-minded football teams of Georgetown and Navy scrimmaged fully 2½ hours here today behind canvas curtains in Thompson Stadium and at the end both coaches were satisfied with the progress made, though they were a bit disappointed with their squads.

The scrimmage, first of two scheduled in four days between the two teams—they meet here again Saturday—was conducted as an informal practice game. There were no kickoffs, no punting and Navy missed the only field goal attempted.

It was agreed that the teams alternate equally on offense and defense. Each took the ball for six downs and then relinquished it, no matter what the result. Usually the action started from the offenders' 35, except for a few minutes when the ball was moved back to the other 40 to avoid having the sun in the defenders' eyes.

Navy, far ahead of Georgetown in length of training and benefitting from two scrimmages with strong Pennsylvania last week, outscored the Hoyas eight touchdowns to six. Five of the Navy tallies were authored by the unerring passing arm of Halfback Bill Busik, a great triple-threat halfback. Three times Halfback Sammy Boothe was on the receiving end, and twice End Bob Zoeller snatched the ball for scores.

Georgetown, in its first outside scrimmage of the year, also relied heavily on an aerial game, with Sophomore Halfback Benny Reiges and veteran backs, Benny Bulvin and Johnny Barrett, doing most of the pitching.

Leading scorer for the Hoyas was Jack Doolan, junior halfback and sprint star, who counted three times. Doolan, racing away on a 32-yard off-tackle cutback from spread formation, was responsible for the day's most spectacular touchdown run. He also scored once on a pass, from Bulvin, which covered 35 yards in the air and an additional 15 on the ground, and once on a 15-yard reverse from Barrett.

Navy had much the better of the early going, with Busik uncorking three successive payoff heaves to Boothe, but as the hard-fought but clean scrimmage continued the Hoyas improved noticeably. And at the end Georgetown was going impressively.

It seemed to take the Hoyas the best part of an hour to coordinate their offense and defense, whereas Navy showed good cooperation from the beginning.

Line-ups for Each

The Hoyas started a team comprising Chris Pavich and Art Lemke, ends; Al Blozis and George Perpich, tackles; Angelo Paternoster and Ed McMahon, guards; Ed Derringe, center; Doolan and Bulvin, halfbacks; Lou Falcone, quarterback, and John Barrett, fullback. Barrett was calling the plays.

Navy's No. 1 eleven included Zoller and Maxson, ends; Gene Flathmann and Bill Chewning, tackles; Vito Vitucci and John Hill, guards; Jim Donaldson, center; Busik and Boothe, halfbacks; Bill Chip, quarterback, and Sherwood Werner, fullback.

Georgetown's No. 2 bunch was composed of Bob Duffey and Al Lujack, ends; Frank Fenwick and Al Yukna, tackles; Stan Jaworowski and John Hyle, guards; "Whitey" Erickson, center; Frank Dornfeld and Ed Agnew, halfbacks; Joe Sikorski, quarterback, and Joe Gyorgydeak, fullback.

Navy's No. 2 team numbered Chet Lee and Bob Wooten, ends; Dick Opp and John Hardy, tackles; Bob Day and Art Knox, guards; George Ringenberg, center; John Davis and Phil Hurt, halfbacks; Clyde Siegfried, quarterback, and Bob Woods, fullback.

Navy scored the game's first three touchdowns on the aforesaid Busik-to-Boothe passes, and added a fourth, before G. U. scored. When Fullback Werner intercepted a Bulvin pass. Then the Hoyas, forsaking close formation for the spread, shook Doolan loose for their first tally.

Late Rally

The Middies made the score, five touchdowns to one in their favor, when Hurt plunged 5 yards over tackle, and added Nos. 6 and 7 on two successive passes, Busik to Zoeller. Thereafter Georgetown had the better of it.

Facing two or three different Navy combinations, the Hoyas made their No. 2 score on the long Bulvin-to-Doolan forward pass, and Dornfeld scored through the line, from the 5, after his line bucks and a pass, Reiges to Gyorgydeak, had placed the ball in scoring position.

Navy counted its final touchdown soon after, with John Hebron, a fourth-string halfback, skirting the sidelines for about 25 yards on a play Georgetown rooters protested because they thought Hebron stepped out. Georgetown's last three tallies were by Pavich on a pass from Reiges; Doolan on a reverse from Barrett good for about 20 yards, and Gyorgydeak on a 15-yard jaunt that ended the scrimmage in near-darkness.

Indian Spring Plays C. C. of Md.

Indian Spring will play its semi-final match in the Maryland State golf team championship with the Country Club of Maryland over the latter's course on Sunday, it was announced yesterday.

The all-Baltimore match between Bonnie View and Rolling Road will be played at Bonnie View.

Indian Spring and C. C. of Maryland had each played one match at home and one away, although the Baltimoreans had traveled to Manor for one match, while Indian Spring had played twice in the District. Otto Greiner and Eddie Johnston are the star members of the Baltimoreans.

Turk Edwards May Again Play With 'Skins

Veteran May Be Used in Emergencies; Only 2 Pounds Over Playing Weight

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Denver, Colo., Sept. 17.—Turk Edwards may come out of retirement to play in parts of some games this season. The present Redskins' line coach was told by Head Coach Ray Flaherty to step up on his personal conditioning because he may be used in emergencies. Although he saw little action last season, Edwards is only two pounds over his playing weight as the result of working with his charges during the training period. His leg, which forced him out last year, has been strengthened by last year's rest and he believes he can help the team.

EDWARDS

Edwards, who tacked nine years of professional football on his three collegiate seasons at Washington State, is 33 years old. Coach Flaherty plans to carry only five tackles this year, with Edwards to be held in reserve. The massive Edwards, who was long rated the best tackle in the league, smiled broadly when informed that he might play. He loves football and said at the start of the training period at San Diego that he felt like a "lost ball" not being an active member of the club.

Coach Flaherty expressed himself as pleased with the signal work of the Redskins at practice today. Only two more drills remain before the battle royal at Colorado Springs on Saturday night that will determine which of the 44 players will be the 33 to be carried during the regular season.

Torn ligaments in his right arm virtually have eliminated Truck Tornell, rookie guard. He was not believed to be of league caliber before injured.

No Game Stalling

Crisler Urges Enforcement Of 25-Second Timeout Rule

By the United Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17.—Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler, University of Michigan football coach, today recommended strict enforcement of the 25-second time-out rule to prevent the much-debated unlimited substitutions provision from stalling a game.

Crisler, president of the National Football Coaches Association, said he was considering asking all coaches to cooperate in keeping down the number of substitutions.

He revealed that Walter R. Okeson, chairman of the association's rules committee, probably would shortly issue a clarification on the ruling and include formal instructions for officials.

"If the substitution is made by the offensive team," Crisler said, "and then the ball is not put into play for more than 25 seconds, this team should be charged with a time-out." He explained that a team is allowed but three time-outs in a half.

Football rules provide that substitutions may be made without penalty only when time is out. A penalty is in order when there is a delay of more than 25 seconds in setting the ball in play because of substitution.

Notre Dame Prepares

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 17 (AP).—The opening of classes today put Notre Dame's football squad on a one-drill-a-day basis as Coach Frank Leahy emphasized defensive preparations for the season opener with Arizona here September 27.

Leahy has given a scrub team instructions in Wildcat plays and it will scrimmage with the first and second elevens the rest of the week to give them an idea of what to expect from Coach Mike Casteel's Southwesterners.

Army, Syracuse Work

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP).—The Army and Syracuse University football squads will hold joint workouts here tomorrow and Friday, it was announced today by Col. Louis E. Hibbs, graduate manager of athletics.

Col. Hibbs pointed out, however, that no practice game is scheduled between the two teams, and that it will not be decided whether they will even scrimmage until the coaches, Earl Blaik, of Army, and Ossie Solem, of Syracuse, get together before the drill starts.

During Army's practice session today, MacGlachlin Hatch a guard was moved up to the "A" squad to join his more famous brother, Johnny, one of the squad's leading backs.

Wisconsin Loses Wilding

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17 (AP).—A veteran backfield mainstay will be lost to the University of Wisconsin football team this year, Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced today.

He said that Bob Wilding, senior left-halfback from Des Moines, Iowa, had decided to forego football because of an old shoulder injury. He also announced that George Vranesh, soph center from Minnesota, would return to school and report for practice Saturday.

Stuhldreher experimented with a new backfield today and planned to give it another chance in a scrimmage tomorrow.

Bears Edge Royals, 6-5, In Playoffs

By International News Service

Newark, N. J., Sept. 17.—A fumble by Alex Kampouris with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth inning gave the Newark Bears the necessary run to down the Montreal Royals, 6 to 5, in the opening game of the final round of the International League Governor's Cup series before 8,291 here tonight.

Leo Nonenkamp's double set the stage for the winning rally at the expense of Van Mungo, who took the mound in the seventh. An intentional pass to Heeny Majeski and Frank Kelleher's safe bunt clogged the sacks and Nonnenkamp came home as Kampouris juggled Gene Corbett's slow roller.

Minneapolis Wins Over Louisville In Series Game

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Sept. 17.—The Millers weathered a storm of errors and Louisville base hits here this afternoon and clung tenaciously to their playoff raft with a 10-to-6 victory over the Colonels.

The two teams committed nine misplays, the Millers five, and the Colonels outhit their rivals, 14 to 11. Louisville hit safely at least once in each inning, but left 13 men stranded.

Cox Wrestles Fraley Tonight

A feud that is destined to parallel the ones between Chief White Feather and Tiger Nelson, Laverne Baxter and George Koverly, Rudy Dusek and Jim Londos will go into its third chapter tonight at Turner's Arena, with Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, and Pat Fraley, the Pacific Coast champion, as the principals.

Cox and Fraley will meet for the third time, and of paramount interest is the question of the selection of a referee for the bout.

At a late hour last night Promoter Joe Turner had not definitely made up his mind on the third man in the ring. Casey Berger, the Airport guard, is ready to take it over, but Turner is trying to comply with the wishes of the two wrestlers to have a neutral official.

Should Turner decide to ditch Berger, he is expected to call in either Cyclone Burns, of Baltimore, or Willie Klein, N. W. A. official from Philadelphia.

Abie Coleman, the midget mauler, has joined forces with Maurice LaChappelle, the popular Frenchman, and they will face Angelo Leone and Lou Plummer in a two-man match.

Fred Grobmier will take on the Green Hornet (Big Jim Henry), and Emil Dusek will meet Abe Yourist. First contest is at 8:30 p. m.

Bosox Rally To Defeat Indians, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 17.—The Boston Red Sox, surging from behind with a two-run ninth-inning rally, extended their current victory string to eight straight today as they defeated the dispirited Cleveland Indians and former teammate, Jim Bagby, 3-2.

Joe Dobson, who came to the Red Sox from Cleveland last winter, had much better luck than Bagby with his old teammates, limiting them to six hits, all singles, although Peck's Bad Boys clustered three of them in the second to collect a lead which stood up until the Boston half of the ninth.

In that frame Jimmy Foxx opened with a single and "Skeeter" Newsome ran for him. After Bobby Doerr struck out, Newsome took third and Frank Pytlak second when Lou Boudreau heaved the Boston catcher's roller into the Sox dugout.

Pete Foxx, batting for Dobson, was walked intentionally and Dom DiMaggio slapped Bagby's first pitch for a single to left, scoring Newsome and Pytlak. DiMaggio batted in the other Boston run in the third, his infield tap sending Pytlak home after the latter had doubled and been moved to third as Dobson was thrown out at first.

Former Sculls Champion Sends Offer to Nugent to Buy Phils

Prospective Buyer Heads Syndicate

Price Not Disclosed Of Written Offer; Body Would Assume All Obligations

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—An offer to buy the National League Phillies was mailed to Gerry Nugent today by Jack Kelly, national director of the civilian physical training program on behalf of a syndicate he heads.

Nugent is with the Phillies at Cincinnati.

Kelly, former champion Olympic sculler 20 years ago, declined to disclose the price his group offered the president of the Phils.

"I think it is a very fair offer," Kelly declared, "we want to buy all the outstanding 5000 shares of the club, and all the players. We are willing to take over the obligation of $20,000 a year rental on old Baker Bowl that still has two years to run and also will assume the remaining three years of a radio contract to broadcast the Phillies games. Otherwise, we want the club free of debts. If we are successful we are ready to put additional working capital into the club."

When the Phils moved to Shibe Park from Baker Bowl three years ago they agreed to pay $100,000, payable over a five-year period, in order to break a 99-year lease. Two years ago the Phils received a reported $200,000 for the privilege of permitting radio broadcasts for five years.

"We want to give Philadelphia a winning ball club and I think Gerry is ready to talk business," Kelly said.

At Cincinnati, Nugent commented: "Newspapers have been selling the club every year but I haven't. I want to see those sprouts develop into blooms before I make any decision."

Mighty Phils Lose 2 Close Ones to Reds

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—Cincinnati's Reds took a twin bill from Philadelphia today, a hit batsman with the bases full doing the trick 3 to 2 in the nightcap after Johnny Vander Meer yielded but three hits and fanned 11 to win the opener 1 to 0.

The first game was Vander Meer all the way, running his season's strikeouts to 195. He walked none until Johnny Rizzo batted for Rube Melton in the ninth.

The nightcap was marked by three hit batsmen of which Bill Werber was the last. Harry Craft was knocked cold in the sixth and sent to a hospital for X-ray tests and Gene Thompson contributed one.

Augie Lio, Schultz Fined for Fight

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP).—Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National Football League, assessed fines of $25 each today against Charles Schultz, Green Bay Packers tackle, and Augie Lio, guard with the Detroit Lions, for their fight during last Sunday's Packers-Lions game at Green Bay, Dis. The players, who were put out of the game in the fourth quarter, must pay their fines to regain eligibility, Layden said.

Watch The Louis-Nova Fight, Folks

New York, Sept. 17.—A benevolent Providence seems to have adopted the Louis-Nova fight and showered on it a vast variety of blessings. The result is that Mike Jacobs, who gets churlish as a hungry bear when anyone asks him to predict the gate of a fight, is freely announcing that this one will do $700,000, maybe more.

CONSIDINE

Why?

Well, overlooking the fact that a lot of persons are giving Nova a chance to win, this fight is going to be the biggest since the second Louis-Schmeling fight because of reasons as diversified as a war, a World Series and an East Indian cult.

Louis' request for a ten-day postponement had the unexpected result of increasing ticket sales. It inculcated in the minds of many a belief that Louis wasn't in good shape and that Nova had more of a chance to win. Louis has been a popular champion. We think that 50 years hence he will be spoken of with as much veneration as is Sullivan and that his feats will grow with the telling until, to the fight fan of 1991, Louis will seem to have been a combination of Superman, Jove and Genii with the dark brown hair. Anyway, the fight fans of today want to be in on the kill. If this is it, as some believe, it is a fight they don't want to miss.

Was Draft Board Under Contract?

If Jacobs or Harry Markson, his able press men, had one of those exclusive contracts with Louis' Chicago draft board they couldn't have gotten the board to act with more timeliness in shifting Louis to Class 1-A. The board's action has convinced another block of fans that win or lose, this may be Louis' last fight and that he must be seen for the final time. This group of ticket buyers is overlooking completely the fact that even if Louis is shipped to training camp right after the Nova fight, that he will certainly fight in some kind of Army benefit fights. He'll certainly be given leave—if the considerably less exemplary Bummy Davis got it. But, anyway, Joe's draft board has helped make this fight big.

Because of defense production, there is more dough around the country than there has been for years, for this is the blissful period between the making of it and next year's tax returns. Then, too, Nova's sincerely believed-in Yoga and his curious explorations into fields beyond the ken of boxing fans and boxing writers help the fight. This will be a battle that Louis won't have to carry alone. He usually is the sole magnet. Nova will draw his share for this one. A lot of it will be curiosity trade, but Jacobs wouldn't bar a Babylonian snake charmer with a leaky bucket of asps, if the bloke had enough dough for a seat.

Joe Meets A Man His Size

This fight is being helped, too, by the fact that Louis is fighting a physical equal, for a change. That comes under the heading of a novelty, after Joe's adventures with that mighty mass of willing flesh, Abe Simon, the towering Buddy Baer and the fleet, light-heavyweight, Billy Conn. Nova will weigh about the same, stand about the same height, have the same reach, etc., etc., then, too, don't forget the fight fans among the World Series immigrants.

Billy Conn helped this fight so much that he ought to be cut in on the gross. For it was Billy who found that at least one of Joe's ample feet is made of clay. Billy gave Joe a fine slapping around, had him stumbling, retreating, sorely distressed and on the point of being knocked out. Then got knocked out himself. But before he was kayoed, Billy gave the boxing public ample notice that it had better see Louis soon, if they want to see him while he is still classed with the all-time heavyweight champions. Billy's aid to the fight is a curious thing, in view of the fact that he is about as interested in aiding Nova, whom he dislikes, as he is in aiding Hitler.

Anyway, there are some of the paradoxical boosts that the fight has been given. We don't remember a luckier promotion.

Babe Dahlgren Stars as Cubs Beat Giants, 7-3

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Led by Babe Dahlgren with a triple and two singles, the Chicago Cubs slammed their way to a 7-to-3 triumph over the New York Giants today and moved within half a game of fifth place in the National League, now held by the Giants.

Each team made ten hits, but Lefty Vern Olsen allowed New York only one run till the ninth and then snuffed out a two-run Giant rally with no apparent trouble.

In the meantime the Cubs spread their scoring over five of their eight turns at bat. Lefty Dave Koslo, rookie just up from Milwaukee, yielded four hits and three runs in the first five innings and was charged with the defeat.

Walks, Error Defeat Macks For Tigers, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—Phil Marchildon's generosity with bases on balls and a two-run error by Sam Chapman gave Detroit a 3-to-2 victory over the Athletics today. The defeat was the fifth in a row for the Mackmen.

Marchildon and his successor, Porter Vaughn, allowed Detroit only four hits, but three straight walks and an infield out gave the Tigers a run in the first, and two more bases on balls, a single by Bruce Campbell and Chapman's wild throw in fielding Campbell's hit accounted for two more runs in the fifth.

Kavakos Holds Undefeated Pace

Kavakos Grill remains unbeaten in the Metropolitan Invitational Softball Tournament after a 8-to-4 victory over Westminster Church, Southwest champion, at Washington Softball Stadium last night. Westminster, having lost its second game, bows out of the tournament. "Cannonball" Smith had a shade the better of "Deacon" Waterholder, allowing but five hits to the Deacon's six and issuing only eight bases on balls to Waterholder's 11. Forame for Kavakos and Harrigan for Westminster hit home runs.

The Firemen nearly met a tartar in Frank Carr's Park View youngsters, champions of the playgrounds playing under the colors of the Washington Monarch Club. By virtue of a big first inning the smokeeaters eked out a 6-to-4 victory.

Tonight two intracounty feuds will be settled. At 7:30 Greenbelt will play Carr Brothers & Boswell. Both are Prince Georges County teams. At 8:45 Rockville will meet Silver Spring, its traditional rival.

5 Top Drivers Race at Lanham

Five of the ten leading point scorers of the Eastern division of the American Automobile Association signed yesterday to compete on tomorrow night's seven-event midget automobile racing program sponsored by the Three A's at the West Lanham (Md.) Speedway at 8:30 o'clock.

George Fender, the Eastern pacemaker with 3451½ points, returned his signed entry blank to Racing Manager Tom Lane, as did Charley Breslin, No. 6; Johnny Pierson, No. 7; Dee Toran, No. 8, and Johnny Jars, No. 10.

Charley Miller, No. 2; John Peterson, No. 3; Joe Garson, No. 4; John Ritter, No. 5, and Dave Randolph, No. 9, previously had entered the field and round out the first ten.

A total of 20 entries had been received yesterday and indications are that as many as 26 high-powered little cars manned by reputation drivers will comprise tomorrow's field.

Tony Williams, the celebrated Midwestern handler of big and little machines, who swept all three events in which he appeared last week, will be back in competition with other big name contestants, including Harry Sheeler, Hawley Kight, Red Redmond, Bob McAndrews, Ed Wendt, Elmer Sefcik, Jeep Colkitt, Charley Creech, Bob Ervin and George Fair.

Fender and Miller, ranking No. 1 and 2 Eastern point scorers who wheel high powered outboards on the Gordon racing team, admittedly will be out to stop the apparently undefeatable Willman. Tony zoomed to victory in the second qualifying heat, second semifinal and in the 25-lap feature last week, and will again rule a pre-race favorite tomorrow night.

Ritter will be back on the job in his yellow outboard, while McAndrews, whose Ford V-8 created a stir in last Friday night's Lanham debut, also will bear watching.

Tickets for tomorrow night's card are on sale at the Standard Capitol Servicenter, Third Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest, and the American Automobile Association, Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

Explanation Asked For Price Boost On Series Tickets

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17. — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, said today he had asked Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn club, for an explanation of the additional 25-cent charges on strips of World Series tickets.

MacPhail had said that the extra charge was for the "handling" of tickets.

"Until I find out what's going on down there I can't say anything about it," Landis commented.

Arcadia Pinmen Down Ice Palace

Fred Murphy's Arcadians got under way and took two in a row from Ice Palace, in the District League, with George Demeres the best scorer with his 381. Dave Williams led the Connecticut Avenue team with his 383 set, while Johnny Ressa and George Simon had 366 and 367, respectively.

Tony Santini had second high set for the night of 447 which featured a 167 game, but his Convention Hall boys dropped two to Hosslyn. Young Billy Stalcup paced the Galt Davis boys with his 145, 426, with Brad Mandley tossing in a 389, and "Whip" Litchfield 371.

Worsham and Bogart Regain Grosner Pro-Amateur Title

Eagle Three On 15 Leads To Victory

Spencer and Rippy Again Lose in Title Round; All Erratic On Outgoing Nine

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A one-two punch on the fifteenth and sixteenth holes, first an eagle by Lewis Worsham and then a birdie by Ralph Bogart, netted the young stars the Grosner Match Play Pro-amateur Championship for the second time in three years yesterday at Manor Country Club.

Cliff Spencer, the East Potomac pro and Claude Rippy, the slender amateur shotmaker, were the final round victims, losing, 1 up on the eighteenth after leading from the third through the fourteenth hole. It was the second straight final round defeat for Spencer and Rippy.

For nine holes yesterday the title match resembled a two-bit nassau between a bunch of fifth flighters. Rippy played what probably were his worst nine holes of golf in ten years. Bogart was in the trees enough to merit a card in the woodchoppers' union. Worsham hit some good shots but lots of bad ones, while Spencer carried the burden for his team but still had lots of room for improvement.

To give you an idea, there was only one par in the foursome on the first hole, all missed the green on the par-three third but Spencer scrambled out a par and everybody missed the par-three fifth green. Again Spencer chipped and one-putted for the only par.

One Hole Under

Spencer and Rippy were holding grimly to a 1-up lead on the fifteenth tee but in two quick holes their lead was reversed to a one-hole deficit and that's the way the match ended. Worsham hit a four-iron second shot off the fairway on the par five-fifteenth which took a kick in his favor within a foot of the pin for almost a conceded eagle.

That evened the match and on the sixteenth, with Bogart within 20 feet of the cup in two and Spencer half that distance, the District amateur champion rolled his home for a birdie three while Spencer's try stopped on the left lip. The seventeenth was halved in threes and the eighteenth in fours, Rippy reducing his team's chances by slicing his tee shot out of bounds.

$135 Triumph

The victory was worth $135 to Worsham, who is now the big tournament winner of the year among the local pros, while Bogart, who tucked away his third straight city

Cunningham's Column . . .

Cunningham

In the Women's National Golf, the stubby little, hard-slugging bride from the coast, Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell, who put aside a honeymoon to go all out after the sport's biggest cup, moved fast into that category.

A lot of us eldering bearzarks who annually watch those lithe debutantes teasing that glorified moth ball around those fairways of the Florida winter circuit were mildly amused with this lass the winter before last.

She was only 19 at the time, and she scarcely looked that. With a girl chum, a second-hand puddle jumper and $700, she had driven across the country to take a whack at those Florida road shows, and, while she'd done well enough to make the idle sit up and take notice, there was still a long and rocky road up the hill to the top. With the beautiful optimism of youth, she didn't seem to think so.

She discussed her career and her problems with a frankness so complete and so confident, you found yourself pulling for her instead of kidding her even a little. Her papa and her mama, for instance, away out there in Long Beach, where her father was assistant-superintendent of the city schools, weren't any too easy in their minds about their girl-child's gallivanting around on her own all the way over there across the country. They wanted her to be happy, but they were wishing she could figure some way to be that at home.

But happiness to her was swinging that golf club, as faithful as she unquestionably was to her folks. She talked grips and some of the elder gentry thought she was just a little too positive. She was pretty outspoken in her comments upon the games of her competitors, for instance.

But upon analysis, these criticisms were never catty. They were spoken objectively, and they, furthermore, were the truth. It was just part of the frankness and confidence that were part of the superserious little girl.

Whipping Up a Summary

Young Betty could flog a typewriter like a speed-star pro. I asked her to whip me up a summary of her career. Here she goes verbatim—I saved it:

"Here's the dope: Born in Long Beach, Calif., November 16, 1920, which makes me 19 now, according to my figuring. Educated in Long Beach city schools, of which my father is assistant superintendent. Graduated in January '37, and went year and a half to Long Beach Junior College, learning nothing.

"As for golf; I took my first lessons in September of 1937 from Larry Gleason, of the Virginia Country Club, in Long Beach. Played first 18 holes in the same month and had a 96, which was very encouraging, but many rounds after that were very discouraging. Oh . . . how I started! I almost forgot the stock question.

"The pros at the municipal course offered free lessons to the city juniors, and mother was anxious to get me out of a red satin softball uniform into something more dignified. She suggested I take up golf. My uncle then stepped in and said if I were going to try to be a golfer, I should take a course of lessons from Gleason instead. I thought ten lessons would be more than sufficient. How I got fooled!

"So I took the ten, very bored with the whole procedure of knocking balls down a practice fairway. I struggled through the first course and decided some more wouldn't do any harm, a 95 being my best score in the first couple of months of effort. I went into my first tournament in February of 1938 at the Los Angeles Country Club, the mid-winter invitational. I qualified with 103 and was runner-up in the third flight.

The Bug Bites

"Then the bug really bit. Somebody tipped me off that the thing to do in this game is practise, so I went to work. The following April, I qualified in the State championship with a 92 and got bounced in the first round, 2 down. So I practised some more and qualified in the Southern California championship in May at the Riviera Country Club with an 86. I whittled my original 18 handicap of October, 1937, to a 9. By August I had that down to 4. Broke 90 for the first time in April of '38 with an 86 at my home course and a month later, broke 80, with a 78 . . ."

Banner Fall Racing Season Opens Today at Belmont Park

Two Match Races Virtually Set Between Alsab and Requested, Whirly and War Relic

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 17.—Beautiful Belmont opens its fashionable fall meeting tomorrow and, aside from the annual opportunity it gives the womenfolk to show off their autumn styles, there's going to be quite a bit of racing at Alf Vanderbilt's Long Island park in the next 15 days.

The twenty-seventh renewal of the Fall Highweight Handicap starts the ball rolling tomorrow, with Joe Widener's Roman the choice in the field of 14 for the $5,000-added money, although he's loaded down with 140 pounds—10 over scale weight—for the six-furlong dash.

But the fall highweight only serves to bow in the program. Of more interest to racing folks is the bargain match race between Alsab, owned by Mrs. Al Sabath, of Chicago, and Requested, from Texas Ben Whitaker's barn, on September 23, and the chances of a match September 27 to settle the argument as to whether Whirlaway, Warren Wright's stretch-flying champ, is a better galloper right now than Sam Riddle's War Relic, who looks like one of Man o' War's outstanding sons. Vanderbilt has been trying to smoke up this latter match, since War Relic whipped Whirly in the Narragansett Special last Saturday.

If this run comes off, it'll be a $25,000 affair. However, neither the 25 G's nor the $10,000 for which Alsab and Requested will run to decide the two-year-old championship of the year are included in the $173,000 added money Vanderbilt has put up for the gee-gees who can pick 'em up and lay 'em down faster than the other fellows in the 14 regular stakes on the card.

Whirlaway is slated for his first outing of the meeting Saturday in the Lawrence Realization, a standard 3-year-old headliner. He's also entered in the Jockey Club Gold Cup the following Saturday.

Jennings Takes Publinks Title Over Seay

The District Public Links Championship went back to a long-hitter yesterday when R. A. "Dick" Jennings, a Capitol Hill employe from Texas, defeated W. W. Seay, 5 and 4, in the finals at East Potomac.

Jennings, runner-up to Roy Smith for the title last year, played the 14 holes of the title match in three-under par figures and added his name to those of Andy Oliveri, two-time winner, and Smith on the S. G. Loeffler Trophy. Claude Rippy retired the original cup five years ago with his third triumph.

The public links followers, including Tommy Doerer, jr., have been boosting Jennings as the future city champ for some time. He is the longest hitter today on the courses and one of the most powerful hitters in town. In the final match he was often from 50 to 75 yards ahead of Seay, the short-straight shooter from Anacostia.

Seay's presence in the finals is a story in itself. The Department of Agriculture employee was three down with four holes to play in his morning semi-final match with defending titlist Smith but won out on the nineteenth with a game comeback which furnished the tournament with its only real upset. Seay parred the fifteenth, birdied the

Road Scraper Easy Victor In Feature

Handler's Horses Score in Both Ends Of Daily Double: 8,000 Fans See Card

By Clocker Mike

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 17.—Trainer Frank A. Bonsal stole the show here today when he saddled three winners including J. W. Y. Martin's Road Scraper, winner of the three-quarter mile feature, titled the Sykesville Purse. Road Scraper ran in his usual manner and was never headed to report three lengths in the van of a photo for place. Hornblende got second money, a head in front of High Command, who was a nose before Wire Tapper.

Road Scraper, a 3-year-old son of High Quest-Conamor, was scoring his second win in 11 starts this year and in so doing it, hung up one of the best races of his brief career. Always noted for his early speed, Road Scraper was sent to the fore soon after the start but was quickly joined by the speedy Weatherite. These two raced in that order until after they had headed into the stretch where Weatherite called it a day and the ultimate winner began to draw away. The 8000 fans in attendance were waiting for Road Scraper to chuck it but that was not to be today. He was in a running mood and kept drawing away until he held a three-length margin. The battle for the place was a three-horse affair for the last sixteenth and was not decided until the last stride.

In enabling Red Howell to score his second triumph of the day, Road Scraper toured the six furlongs in 1:13 1/5 to hang up a $20.70 mutuel. Previous to the feature, Bonsal had saddled both winners in the daily double when he sent out Mill End and Sweeping Lee.

Under Jockey M. N. Gonzalez, Mill End, after being fourth here earlier in the meeting, got there the hard way today. Completely overlooked despite his recent good effort, Mill End returned the good price of $33.20.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPING LEE, $18.40, $7.80, $5.90; BILLS RITA, $5.30, $4.50; FALCONIERE, $13.90.

SWEEPING LEE, never far off the pace, reached the leaders nearing the eighth pole and gradually took command nearing the wire. BILLS RITA saved ground from the start and was going best at the end. FALCONIERE had good speed to set the pace and tired inside the eighth pole. CATOCTIN LAD ran an even race after the opening quarter.

Daily Double—MILL END and SWEEPING LEE Paid $386.50.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1100; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:09. Off at 3:10½. Winner, C. Oslebay's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISCHIEF AFOOT, $5.40, $3.00, $2.40; ONE LINK, $4.20, $3.00; CAPT. CAUTION, $2.80.

MISCHIEF AFOOT moved to the lead leaving the backstretch and just lasted under a strong ride. ONE LINK shot through on the rail to take command after being last away, dropped behind the winner on the turn and was coming again in the stretch run. CAPT. CAUTION could not better his position. ARTHUR C. ran an even race.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:39. Off at 3:40. Winner, G. C. Greer's dk. b. c. IRISH MOON	(Gonzales)	110	2	6	1					3.40

†H. G. Bedwell entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOMKIN, $7.60, $3.00, $4.90; AARON BURR, $7.20, $6.00; ARMY SONG, $7.10.

DOMKIN was hard ridden to race with HIGH HEDGE early, appeared to be drawing away when the latter stopped and was all out to outlast AARON BURR. The latter was in close quarters entering the stretch and closed with a rush when taken out in the center of the track. ARMY SONG closed willingly after being in close quarters on the turn. FOGOSO was coming well at the end. HIGH HEDGE raced with the leader most of the way and then faltered. IRISH MOON lost his rider after going a sixteenth of a mile.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1500; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:11½. Winner, J. W. Y. Martin's ch. g. (3), by High Quest—Con Amore. Trained by F. A. Bonsel, jr. Value to winner, $1000; second, $350; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROAD SCRAPER, $20.70, $8.00, $6.50; HORNBLENDE, $27.80, $15.80; HIGH COMMAND, $8.10.

ROAD SCRAPER took command while under a good grip, disposed of WEATHERITE and drew out to win easily. HORNBLENDE was far back early, lost ground while moving and was coming well at the end. HIGH COMMAND was well up from the start, but could not better his position. WIRE TAPPER had good speed early, but was weakening in the late stages. SUN EAGER had no mishaps.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:40½. Vanner, D. C. Harrison's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNTERGLOW, $8.70, $4.40, $3.30; REGENT, $4.50, $3.20; NAVY, $3.40.

COUNTERGLOW, much the best, opened a long lead early and was never threatened to win well in hand. REGENT came well after being off last and lacking speed for a half. NAVY trailed in the opening half and then closed well while losing ground. WAUGH POP raced on the rail and had no excuses.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:11. Winner, W. H. Leachman's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid— MISS BRIDEAUX, $7.30, $5.30, $3.80; CISNEROS, $8.70, $5.10; BULL TERRIER, $6.50.

MISS BRIDEAUX took command at once and was never threatened. CISNEROS came from the middle of the pack to be going well at the end. BULL TERRIER weakened after chasing the leader for a mile. ROUGH GOING raced wide from the start and closed willingly. WIRE ME could not threaten.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:39. Off at 5:39½. Winner, C. E. Nelson's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAR CHANCE, $9.70, $4.70, $4.40; SIR REG, $5.20, $3.60; CITY JUDGE, $9.40.

STAR CHANCE moved to the front on the backstretch, bore out all through the stretch and then drew off again. SIR REG moved up with a rush approaching the half pole, reached the leader and was carried out all through the stretch. Pollard claimed foul against the winner, but it was not allowed. CITY JUDGE was well up from the start. BOSTON PAL raced on the outside from the start. PREDICATE was through early.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

The disqualification Tuesday of the even-money shot, Escolar, brought many arguments as to whether or not the rule used in Maryland is the best. In the case of Escolar and Butcher Boy, there is no doubt that the two were much the best in the race and even though Escolar's number was taken down, it should have been placed no worse than second. The two were seven or eight lengths in front of the next horse and it doesn't seem fair that the diqualified horse should be placed all the way out of the money. Of course, there are arguments for and against both rules but I personally think that the rule where the stewards are allowed to place disqualified horse in the position they see fit, is the best arrangement. This rule is used in many tracks outside of Maryland and seems to be working in a very satisfactory manner. After the race Tuesday, it was announced that Mike Basile, rider of Escolar, had been set down for the remainder of the meeting. Due to his very impressive score here Tuesday, Mrs. W. W. Vaughn's Canroll must be regarded as a likely starter in Saturday's $10,000 Added Potomac Handicap. The 3-year-old son of Catalan came off the pace to win in 1:46 4-5 over the mile and a sixteenth distance. In back of Canroll came E. G. Hackney's Sir Alfred, another candidate for the Potomac. After the race, Trainer Syd Boniface announced that he does not expect to start his chrage in the weekend feature. However, if he trains well the rest of the week, he may still go postward. Another horse changed hands Tuesday when C. U. Yaeger took Panorascope for $2,500. The horse ran a good race to be second to Ginoca. R. Sterling Clark's Basileus finally graduated from the maiden ranks Tuesday. This one may go on to greater heights now that he has left the maiden class. Thus far in the meeting, it looks like Guy Bedwell has the most promising apprentice here. The lad is Freddie Ramerscheid, a Western boy. The boy rode an excellent race on Clingendaal opening day and then came back to put up a crackerjack performance on Triphammer over a distance of ground. Before that winning effort, Triphammer had generally been regarded as strictly a sprinter. BILL.

First race—RENCOURT was third here to Mischief Afoot and off that race must be given the call. He beat about half this field in that effort and didn't have any the best of the racing luck. FIRE BROOM showed good speed in the same race and may have needed that race. FLYING REIGH must be given a chance with these.

Second race—BOLIVAR hasn't started for some time, but seems to have too much class for a field like this. Needs only the right handling. SPARROW CHIRP has a good race here and also has a good running mate. DOCKET was the victim of bad racing luck last out and should be a factor.

Third race—GINO BEAU'S race here the other day was a corker and a repeater should mean a set of brackets for this one. CATHODE is in good hands and showed good races in Chicago. MIGRATION had good races in New York and deserves a call.

Fourth race—MAECLOUD is the class of this race and has been training in a fashion that would make her a winner. PHARA FROST is another one with a touch of class. Races in New York were just fair, but this route will suit better. ROSE ANITA has a good race here and should take a share.

Fifth race—STOLEN TRYST was out of the money behind Cape Cod, but was in trouble repeatedly and should improve. BIG STAKES is the class of this race, but may need one race. NIGHT GLOW is better than ever now and is the likely favorite.

Sixth race—AETHELWOLD has gone away back, but still seems able to take care of a field this cheap. CLINGENDAAL won in a manner that suggested a distance would suit. ZOSTERA came from far back while sprinting and may be dangerous.

Seventh race—SUN LARK has plenty of speed and with 109 pounds may go this far to take top money. CONNIE PLAUT will be going good in the final quarter and should get up for a share of the purse. GUERRILLA has a good race over this track and cannot be overlooked.

Eighth race—The CHRISTMAS ENTRY looks very good here after a good season in New York. Either one can take it, so I'm taking the entry. BRAXTON has a very good race here and is strictly the one to beat. CRIMSON LANCER was an impressive second.

Best bet—BOLIVAR.

Pepco's Profit Drop Laid to Sliding Scale

C. Melvin Sharpe, executive assistant of the Potomac Electric Power Co., yesterday made public some figures amplifying a recent news story in The Post in which it was pointed out the power company's gross revenues had soared during the past 11 years but net income had failed to keep pace.

The Post's story was based on a survey by the public utilities division of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC figures show that Pepco netted $4,766,008 on gross revenues of $10,565,960 in 1930, while in 1940 the Washington utility netted $3,954,010 on a gross of $16,640,319.

Mr. Sharpe, in a formal statement yesterday, explained the anomaly. Principal reason, he said, is the fact that the company operates under a sliding scale plan of rates, under the supervision of the Public Utilities Commission, which provides that rates be adjusted annually, either upward or downward, according to the findings of the PUC.

"From the date of its inauguration," he pointed out, "the Washington sliding scale plan has resulted in reduction in rates each year."

"In 1930," he continued, "the revenue received from the sale of current amounted to 3.29 cents a kilowatt hour, whereas by reason of rate reductions every year since 1930 . . . the revenue received from the sale of current in 1940 had decreased to 1.72 cents a kilowatt hour."

This is a cut of approximately 50 per cent and amounts to a total saving in 11 years of about $5,000,000 for consumers, he pointed out.

Taxes in 1930 amounted to $959,334 as compared with taxes of $2,449,775 in 1940, an increase of more than 155 per cent. In the same decade, he added, labor costs of the company jumped exactly 110 per cent.

D. C. Policy Sales Leap

Washington sales of ordinary life insurance jumped 10 per cent in August over the same month last year, according to the Life Insurance Research Bureau, of Hartford, Conn. District of Columbia sales were valued at $5,573,000 in August.

In the first eight months local sales of insurance totaled $45,457,000, an increase of 4 per cent over the same period last year.

Nationally, life insurance sales in August totaled $581,171,000, a gain of 10 per cent over this same 1940 month. The total for the first eight months was $4,617,528,000, or 5 per cent better than last year.

Virginia's sales gain for August was 16 per cent and Maryland showed an increase of 24 per cent.

Howard Bradbury Elected

Howard Bradbury, of the Washington Wholesale Drug Exchange, was elected president of the Federal Wholesale Druggists Association yesterday in succession to S. C. James, of Buffalo, N. Y. Bradbury presided over the convention sessions in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in the absence of James, who is ill. Other officers are John O. Crozier, Baltimore, vice president; O. J. Schmitz, Atchison, Kans., treasurer; Ray Schlotterer, New York City, reelected secretary.

D. C. Business Briefs

Directors of the American Security and Trust Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable October 10 to holders of record September 30.

The Lincoln Service Corporation, industrial bankers with head office in Washington, yesterday announced the acquisition of the Universal Discount Co., Inc., and International Finance Co., both of Pittsburgh.

Funeral Today For C. F. Davis

Funeral services for Clarence F. Davis, 31, of 8216 Cedar Avenue, Silver Spring, who died at Emergency Hospital Tuesday, will be held today at 10 a. m. at the Northminster Presbyterian Church, Alaska Avenue and Kalmia Road Northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Davis was employed in the service department of the Washington Gas Co. Surviving are his wife, Eileen Frances Davis, whom he married two years ago; a brother in California, and two sisters in Pittsburgh.

Mattie White's Brother Dies on China Mission

Miss Mattie Gatling White, 3101 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, last night was notified that her brother, the Rev. Philip White, a Baptist missionary in China had died last Thursday following an operation in a Honan hospital.

The Rev. Mr. White, a native of Hertford, N. C., leaves a wife and two children.

R. C. Tuttle, 48, Dies

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP).—Robert C. Tuttle, vice president and director of the Atlantic Refining Co. and general manager of the company's transportation, died last night after a two weeks' illness. He was 48. In recent months he had served by appointment of Petroleum Coordinator Harold Ickes as a member of the transportation committee of the Atlantic Seaboard district.

Buying Picks Up Speed as Stocks Rise; Motor and Steel Shares Lead Late Upturn

New York, Sept. 17.—The stock market whipped up a quick flurry of buying today just before the final gong. Gains on the day were general and a fair scattering of new highs for a year or longer were included in the final tally.

Aircraft manufacturing stocks had carried the burden of the advance through most of a dull and spotty session but when motor and steel issues joined the parade in the final minutes most other sections of the list followed.

Traders reported the rally was accompanied by rumors Japan might be about to desert the Axis, though nothing in the cable news gave factual support of this view.

Also much discussed among traders was the Federal tax bill, passed by the Senate and awaiting Presidential signature. Some quarters contended the bill put less burden on corporation income and more on individual taxpayers than had been anticipated.

As share prices advanced, turnover picked up. Volume was 886,560 shares, compared with 606,190 shares Tuesday. The advance of 0.5 of a point in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks to 44.1 was the widest for a single session since July 21, this year.

In the share list gains of major fractions to 2 points or so were recorded for such issues as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, Douglas, United Aircraft, Bendix, Glenn Martin, New York Shipbuilding, Union Carbide, American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe and Peoples Gas Light & Coke.

Consolidated Aircraft, which was a leader from the opening after declaration of a cash and stock dividend, closed 2¼ higher. Eastman Kodak was up nearly 3.

In the Curb market, where transactions were 174,000 shares against 140,000 Tuesday, Aluminum of America advanced 5 points and general fractional gains were the rule.

Traders, operating on a selective basis, today sent the bond market through the most active session in three weeks but corporate prices ended practically unchanged. Transfers totaled $7,653,975, face value, compared with $5,897,050 yesterday.

The Associated Press averages of industrials and rails were unchanged but the average of 20 rails slipped, largely because of a drop of 3⅝ points, at 17⅜, in Colorado & Southern 4½s on announcement the road was unable to meet November 1 interest coupons and sought debt adjustment.

Japanese Governments continued their amazing climb which, since September 8, have sent them up 15 to 19 points. It was on that date that rumors of possible peace in the Pacific began to be heard in Wall Street. Gains of two to three points were accomplished today despite a very small turnover.

Other foreign Governments likewise were favored and substantial advances were made by bonds of Queensland, Argentina, Australia, Canada, Cuba, Copenhagen and Norway.

U. S. Governments received little play and closed unchanged to small fractions off in the dealer market. Stock exchange quotations came into line with counter sales.

Curtiss-Wright Backlog Tops Billion Mark

Unfilled orders of Curtiss-Wright Corp. are up $150,000,000 since July and now total slightly more than $1,000,000,000, it was learned yesterday. This represents the largest backlog of aircraft orders ever shown by an American aviation firm and compares with total deliveries of around $625,000,000 reported by the entire industry in 1940 and deliveries estimated by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce at seven hundred million dollars for the first seven months of 1941.

The recent gain in defense orders also places Curtiss-Wright close on the heels of Bethlehem Steel Corp. and General Motors Corp., with respect to unfilled defense contracts.

Bethlehem Steel Orders

Bethlehem Steel reported defense orders of $1,228,242,000 on July 16, while Alfred E. Sloan, chairman, estimated last week that General Motors had defense business aggregating $1,200,000,000.

Curtiss-Wright's defense orders consist principally of airplanes (the 2000th P-40 pursuit plane was made August 14), aircraft engines and propellers. In addition, the War Department is using the Wright engine to power the M-3 medium tanks now getting fairly substantial production. In view of the emphasis on tanks by defense officials and the one billion dollar tank program coming up soon, Curtiss-Wright soon will be playing its first important defense role outside the aviation field.

Higher Delivery Mark Seen

Sales deliveries by the company, which totaled $138,000,000 in 1940, amounted to $142,272,000 in the first six months of 1941 and company officials expect they will run substantially higher in the current half year.

It is understood that directors will give consideration to a common dividend payment at one of the fall meetings of the board. An initial dividend of 50 cents a share was paid in December of 1940. The full year's dividends for 1941 on the Class A stock were declared in August.

Cities Service to Ship Oil by Rail Tank Car

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Cities Service Oil Co. announced today plans for transportation by railroad tank cars of 6000 barrels of Illinois crude oil daily to its Eastern refineries.

The seven days a week schedule calls for delivery of 4000 barrels a day to the company refinery at Pettys Island, near Philadelphia, and 2000 barrels daily to the East Baintree, Mass., plant.

In addition, a tank car delivery of 400,000 gallons of kerosene is expected this week.

W. L. T. Abrams, 46, Real Operator, Rites Today

W. L. Trenholm Abrams, 46, Washington real estate operator, will be buried in Arlington Cemetery today. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. at his home, 2927 Twenty-eighth Street Northwest, where he died unexpectedly Tuesday of a heart attack.

Mr. Abrams, a native of New York City, served as a second lieutenant in a tank unit during the World War, participating in the Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel campaigns.

After the war he was associated with the late Randall Hagner in real estate here for ten years and since then had directed his own firm.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Virginia Armstrong Abrams; one sister, Mrs. Geoffrey Bartlett, of New York City, and one brother, Maddox Abrams, of Washington.

Former Rep. McKenzie Dies in Illinois

Elizabeth, Ill., Sept. 17 (AP).—John C. McKenzie, 81, who served seven terms as Republican Congressman from the Thirteenth Illinois District, died today.

Starting in 1910, MacKenzie was elected to Congress for seven consecutive terms. Before that he had been State Representative and State Senator.

Surviving are his wife and a daughter, Jean.

Further Boost in Crude Oil Sought by Midcontinent Trade

By the Associated Press

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 17.—Midcontinent oilmen talked hopefully today that crude oil prices may soon be further increased.

E. B. Reeser, president of Barnsdall Oil Co., indicated he believed that leading purchasers should take the lead in an upward movement in posted prices.

He suggested that Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, might be convinced of the need of higher crude prices.

"Henderson is attempting to be fair in the performance of a ticklish job," said Reeser, "and I am sure that if the industry could show him that costs are piling up and up, and that the high cost of living has compelled this and other companies to raise wages with the likelihood that even further wage advances may be necessary, that a price advance would be countenanced."

Most oil companies operating in the midcontinent have raised wages from 5 to 10 per cent during the past week.

Oilmen here were divided on what steps probably now would be taken on the proposed pipe line from Texas to New York to funnel 250,000 barrels of petroleum daily to the East Coast.

The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board denied the use of steel plate for the 80-million-dollar project, but indicated it would take a more favorable view if seamless steel tubing priorities are sought for the line.

Using steel plate, now going into ship construction, the industry believed it could have constructed the line by next spring. With seamless tubing production capacity limited, oilmen declared it would require 16 to 24 months for the project.

Some oilmen took the view that the project now may be dropped.

In the field the Oil and Gas Journal reported 667 completions for the week, compared with the same number the previous week and 563 a year ago.

Auto Output In Week Shows Sharp Upturn

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Automotive Editor

Detroit, Sept. 17.—Another sharp upturn in motorcar production is indicated for the current week, bringing the industry's output nearer the maximum permitted under the schedules authorized by the defense agencies.

Because the level of production still is subject to many factors, among them adequate deliveries of minor parts as well as the normal difficulties peculiar to new model assemblies, figures are given with reservations. Fairly authoritative estimates for the present week, however, place the total at slightly more than 70,000 units, up approximately 20,000 from last week.

Dealers Stocking Up

Dealer stocking throughout the country is going forward, but many large selling localities still are without initial models of the 1942 lines. Field agents report some would-be buyers admitting a desire to see all models and compare price schedules before making purchases. This tendency is expected to slow down sales for a time, but sales executives say that once all models are on display and all price revisions have been announced demand will pick up rapidly.

Some authoritative trade sources say the further slash in production announced by the Office of Production Management this week will be reflected in a new car shortage soon after next February 1. The latest curtailment order reduces the aggregate output of passenger cars for the five months of the new model year up to December 31 to 1,023,217 units. This compares with 1,510,167 in the like period of 1940.

Public To See Models

Buick, Chrysler, Dodge and Pontiac are scheduled to make formal public announcement of their new model passenger cars over the coming weekend. Chevrolet has decided upon September 25 and Oldsmobile has set October 5 for their public presentations.

These announcements say trade sources, will give considerable stimulus to retail demand, to be further expanded when Ford makes his public introduction. The Ford presentation date has not been disclosed.

Of more than ordinary interest in connection with the various presentations are the new retail price listings of the models yet to be announced. This is particularly true in the case of Chevrolet and Ford. Chevrolet, which has led in production volume in the low-priced field during most of the last decade, probably will announce its price schedule along with the new model presentation.

Association Asks Fabric Rationing To Manufacturers

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—The National Women's Undergarment Association, in what it believed to be the first action of its kind in any industry, today decided to ask weavers and converters of rayon goods to ration the limited supply of fabrics to manufacturers.

Estimates of the amount of rayon that will be available for November and December this year ranged from 60 to 75 per cent of last year's deliveries for those months. Beyond that time, association sources said the availability of chemicals would determine the supply of rayon.

The association, whose 40 members were estimated to represent about half the women's undergarment business, said in voting for the allocation conference that they wished to solve their own problems without petitioning for Federal intervention.

Injunction Denied In Suit Against G. E.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Justice Ferdinand Pecora, of the New York Supreme Court, today denied a temporary injunction to restrain General Electric Co. from settling a suit brought by stockholders of Radio Corporation of America against General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. and other concerns.

The settlement called for payment of one million dollars to R. C. A., with General Electric's share $600,000. Justice Pecora held the injunction sought by the stockholders was premature, since the settlement now was under consideration by a special referee.

7700 to Be Laid Off As Materials Run Short

Mansfield, Ohio, Sept. 17 (AP).—Seven hundred employes of the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Co. will be furloughed Monday because of a shortage of steel and other materials needed for the manufacture of electric refrigerators, C. L. Van Derau, plant manager, announced today. The layoff will leave about 4,300 employes at work.

Small Incomes Seen Hard Hit By Credit Curb

Special Dispatch to The Post

Atlantic City, Sept. 17.—Regulations imposed by the Federal Reserve System on installment buying discriminate against the low-income groups, Dr. Albert C. Haring, Indiana University professor of marketing, declared here. The Governmental regulations and the public's erroneous impression that all installment credit had been stopped were the chief subjects discussed at the Eastern convention of the National Retail Furniture Association.

"Regulation aims to be anti-inflationary by requiring more immediate dollars to purchase without changing prices," Dr. Haring told the 360 delegates from the Eastern Seaboard and Mid-West. "Fundamentally, the only way to avoid inflation is to increase the amount of merchandise as the amount of dollars rises. This credit regulation is very close to furniture production. The less furniture fabricated, the higher furniture prices will tend to go, and, on this account, the greater the likelihood of tighter credit restrictions.

No Conflict With Defense

"The solution in the post-emergency period will lie in greater furniture production. Your trade has a legitimate and important interest in keeping furniture production at highest possible level all through these difficult years."

Good regulation, he said, should accomplish its official purpose while disrupting business practice as little as possible.

Furniture production does not conflict to any great extent with defense needs, and raw materials used in their fabrication are not required for armaments, the speaker pointed out.

W. S. Cheyney, of New York, association vice president, said a canvass of merchants and store officials from various sections of the country disclosed that September furniture sales were running around 5 per cent below those of September, 1940.

August Sales Gain

August sales were approximately 27 per cent above the corresponding month last year, and from conversations with customers it is apparent, Mr. Cheyney said, that the idea is widespread among the general public that installment buying has been stopped completely or that down-payment requirements are as stringent as those for automobile purchases. Salient regulations are that the purchase must be completed in 18 months and 10 per cent paid down, he explained.

Mr. Cheyney estimated it would cost "hundreds of thousands" in newspaper advertising to correct the mistaken impression.

Louis Bing, jr., of Cleveland, another association vice president, questioned the necessity for further restrictions. He pointed out that low-income consumers, if not allowed adequate time payment privileges, would have their needs curtailed as winter weather sets in.

Installment-credit privileges, with the right to "add on" gradually to home furnishing accounts by subsequent purchases, is the low-income group's equivalent of the charge-account methods of the upper-income bracket purchasers, he declared.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP).—Grain prices tried to rally today when a let-up in profit-taking gave the market more stability, but the recovery was short-lived.

Wheat was up fractionally at times and other grains showed corresponding gains. However, profit-taking was renewed late in the day, and this, together with some hedging, gave most contracts a lower close. Uneasiness regarding possibility of naval action in the Atlantic and about price-control legislation contributed to trade nervousness.

A fresh decline in soybeans also unsettled grains. Beans rose as much as 2 cents early in the day but then dropped about 5 cents from the highs, due partly to hedging sales and weakness of trade records during the recent sensational price advance. It was disclosed.

Wheat closed ¼ to ¾ lower than yesterday. September 1.17⅝, December 1.21⅛@1.21¾; corn ⅛ to ½ off, September 77½, December 82¾; oats ⅜ off to ⅛ up; rye ⅛ to ⅛ down; soybeans 3¼ to 3⅝ lower, and lard unchanged to 8 higher.

Defense Program Gives Public a Lesson In How Economy of U. S. Functions

The development of the national defense and aid to the anti-Axis nations program gives the public a laboratory lesson in the workings of the economy of the United States.

The impressive point is that the economy is a delicately adjusted mechanism which flourishes when the many moving parts are in balanced relationships to one another.

Disturbance to the established balance, such as the transfer of tankers to Great Britain, creates the hazard of a gasoline and oil shortage on the Eastern Seaboard, and raises problems which might not have been clearly foreseen when the original decision was made.

Former Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, used to say that it is the business of the statesman to vicualize the secondary and tertiary effects of policies as well as the immediate results.

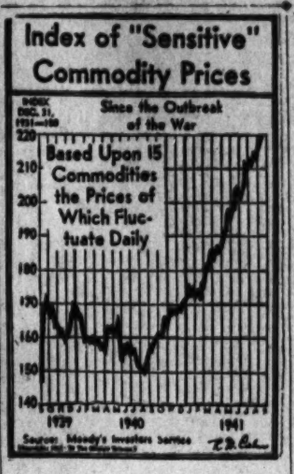
In this same spirit the decision to transfer American commercial planes to anti-Axis belligerents has a bearing on the capacity of the domestic idustry to carry on. Since the last requisitions were made on July, there has been a storm of protest in the American press and in other quarters, and the further request expected on August 1 has been deferred.

A spokesman for one of the air lines, in discussing this trend with me, pointed out: "I attribute the fact that no further mention has been made regarding additional requisitions to the spontaneous support given us by the press of this country.

"The average person has the impression that the commercial airlines of the United States have thousands of airplanes. In fact, I have confirmed this by asking people how many airplanes they thought this industry had and have not, yet received an answer estimating less than 1000, whereas we have only 352 airplanes.

"Some people become so engrossed in the immediate problem confronting them that they forget the broader aspects of any problem in these times. The production of military craft we must admit is our most important problem, but few realize that if we expect private enterprise to speed up production there are certain outside facilities on which they are dependent—the most prominent of which is transportation, which must also be speeded up. Today I estimate that we are unable to take care of at least 20 per cent of our potential business. A recent survey conducted by us indicated that 80 per cent were travelling on business, 10 per cent represented Government employes and only 10 per cent could not be definitely traced to some form of direct or indirect national defense activity."

Of course, this problem of maintaining the equipment of the American commercial airplanes intact must be considered in a dynamic sense. It is not just a question of having sufficient quantities of planes. In order to maintain the high level of safety it is desirable to avoid forcing these companies to skimp on maintenance. Likewise any delay in prompt replacement of worn out and obsolete planes would be regrettable. From the economic side, it is desirable, within the framework of military requirements, to let the producing companies keep their hands in commercial manufacture, so that the transition to normal activity will be easier when and if there is a sudden cancellation of war orders.



Grains Weak, Other Staples Move Higher

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures, with the exception of grains, registered some irregular advances in cautious trading yesterday.

Cotton and cottonseed oil in New York gained on reports the Congressional farm bloc would insist on farm products receiving preferred treatment in any price-control plans.

Cotton futures finished 80 cents to $1.05 a bale higher and cottonseed oil gained about 1-10 of a cent a pound.

Announcement a Federal searchlight had been turned on the recent advance in soybean prices dragged on the Chicago grain market. Resultant liquidation coupled with hedging slashed 3¼ to 3⅝ cents a bushel off soybean quotations. Wheat lost ⅛ to ¾ of a cent a bushel and corn ⅛ to ⅝.

Wool tops futures at New York lost .3 to .4 of a cent a pound, cocoa and hides gained a little and sugar and coffee quotations were mixed near the previous close.

The Associated Press index of wholesale spot prices of 35 commodities was slightly higher at 93.31 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 93.28 per cent the day before.

Soybean Trade Nervous

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP).—Soybean futures prices fluctuated nervously today following disclosure that the Commodity Exchange Administration was studying transactions that took place during the recent sharp advance to all-time peaks.

L. A. Fitz, chief of the CEA staff here, said that while it was a routine matter for his office to receive daily reports on market activities of larger traders, these figures were being watched closely in view of unusually high prices.

Soybeans sold as high as $2.02 last week, representing an advance of more than 60 cents since August 1.

Trading in beans recently has been in record volume. So far this year futures trade has exceeded 745 million bushels compared with 135 million for all of 1940.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 17 (AP).—Early losses were replaced by sizable gains in cotton futures trading today and final quotations were 80 cents to $1.05 a bale above yesterday's last.

Hedge selling slackened and demand was stimulated by reports farm Congressmen were hoping to exempt farm products from the proposed price-control bill. At one time quotations were as much as $1.35 a bale ahead of Tuesday's close.

Port receipts Tuesday, 14,601 bales; port stocks, 2,177,183.

Nats Collect 20 Hits, Beat Browns, 9-8

hitter in the fifth. Eden Auker started for the Browns and pitched six innings. Arnold Anderson was the victim of Judnich's homer in the seventh. Bill Zuber finally ended up as the winning pitcher, and he deserved it. He shut the Browns out in the eighth, ninth and tenth with a fast ball that sang.

The Browns rocked Wynn for two runs in the first inning after Heffner beat out a bunt to Layne at third, but the Nats bounced back with three runs when Case doubled, Layne singled to right, Travis to center, Vernon to right and Ortiz to left.

Berardino's triple in the second tied the score at 3-3, but the Nats moved in front again in the third, 4-3, after Vernon beat out a bunt and Berardino dropped a throw at second. Bloodworth got the run home with a double to left.

Early's own muff on Heffner's bunt inspired two more runs for the Browns in the fifth and they led, 5-4, but only until the Nats got to bat. Rookie Stevens dropped a throw at first base, Vernon walked and Ortiz filled the bases with an infield single. Jake Early singled home two runs and another scored on a double play.

In the seventh against Anderson, Layne made a wild throw to first on Cliff's grounder and Stevens followed with a single, whereupon Judnich bumped a pitch over the right field wall and the Browns were ahead, 8-7.

Big Roberto Ortiz was the hero of the Nats' tying run in the seventh inning. After Vernon banged a single to left, Ortiz doubled to left with such enthusiasm that Vernon was able to score all the way from first base. Ortiz, incidentally, was raising his batting average to .415.

Cal Hubbard had his troubles at that point. He called Bloodworth out on a close play at first, and a bottle came hurtling out of the stands. In the eighth inning when Hubbard called Travis out on another close play, even Bucky Harris was moved to protest.

The Nats almost won the game in the ninth. Big Jack Sanford, pinch hitting for Early, whaled a tremendous triple to the center-field corner with two out, but the Nats abandoned him. Zuber was in trouble in the tenth when he walked Cullenbine, who moved to third on Grace's single with one out, but Travis grabbed Berardino's grounder to start a double play. The Nats were a swell club, at times yesterday.

was hit by a pitch and Al Lopez singled Martin home. The Brooks messed up another double play in this inning when Reese failed to step on second base, but it didn't hurt.

The Pirates canceled this run with a tally in the eighth on a double by Fletcher, a sacrifice and a fly by DiMaggio.

Luke Hamlin pitched the last frame for the Doders and gave up successive singles to Eddie Stewart and Gustine at the start. Stewart came around on a forceout and a fly, but Hamlin fanned Fletcher to end the game with some show of authority.

amateur title only last Friday, received a new set of clubs. Spencer's prize was $70 and Rippy's a golf bag. Medalists and semifinalists also were in the prize money.

The finalists marked time in the morning with 1 up victories. Worsham and Bogart, two up with two to play against Andy Gibson and Spencer Overton, of Baltimore, lost the seventeenth but halved the eighteenth to win out while Spencer and Rippy were even most of the way against the Indian Spring team of Mel Shorey and Eddie Ault until Spencer birdied the fifteenth which proved the margin of victory.

The winners had a best ball 67 but were only even par between them until they hit the fifteenth. Worsham had an approximate individual 71 himself. Bogart helping on the fourth with a beautiful birdie which was halved by a circus shot by Rippy out of the trees. Bogart came through on the tenth with a par and then his big birdie on the sixteenth.

The losers had a 68 best ball, Rippy aiding Spencer on both par fives on the out trip, and the twelfth and thirteenth coming back. The Gerald Grosner plaque went back to the winners while Grosner contributed $250 to the prize money.

sixteenth and parred the seventeenth to draw even. They halved the eighteenth and after Seay topped his drive on the nineteenth hole he stuck a second shot on the green and holed an eight-footer for a birdie while Smith was trapped off the tee and took four to get down.

Slight Score

Jennings, out in one-under par 35 and 3 up on Rock Creek Medalist Bill Leapley, was given a back nine scare by the Michigan Normal School student, but finally won out, 2 and 1.

Seay held Jennings even for the first five holes of the final. Jennings won the first hole, lost the second and then holed a 20-footer to keep from losing the third. Seay dropped a 30-foot putt on the next hole to halve it but after tying the fifth he dropped four holes in a row and turned four down as Jennings was out in 33.

The new champion won the eleventh and halved the other holes on the back nine to close the match on the fourteenth green. He played the round out in 69 strokes, three under par.

Jennings received a replica of the Leoffler Trophy for permanent possession, plus a medal for low low qualifying score at East Potomac. Seay received two medals, one for runnerup and one for leading the Anacostia trials while Leapley received a medal for his Rock Creek qualifying performance. Tom Doerer, manager of the East Potomac course, is now anxious to promote a match between Jennings and Ralph Bogart, the District amateur champion, 18 holes at Bogart's home course and 18 at East Potomac.

Mrs. Wetherton, Internal Revenue Official, Dies

Mrs. Bertha Wetherton, 60, executive assistant to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, died yesterday in Doctors Hospital after an appendectomy.

Before coming here in 1933, Mrs. Wetherton was connected with the State government of Kansas for more than 16 years, and in recent years was State accountant and assistant budget director there.

She entered the Bureau of Internal Revenue in July, 1933, and served as special assistant to the commissioner until August 9, 1941, when she was appointed as executive assistant to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Funeral services will be held at the Lee funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast, at 2:30 p. m. today. Services will be conducted by the Rev. William A. Keese, pastor of Roland Park Methodist Church, Baltimore.

After the services the body will be sent to Topeka, Kans., for burial.

Mrs. Warren, War Veterans' Helper, Dies

Mrs. Emma M. Warren, 66, known throughout Washington for her rehabilitation work with war veterans and past chaplain of the Cooley-McCullough Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas J. Quinn, 2131 Florida Avenue Northwest.

Known affectionately as "Miss Emma" to thousands of veterans and to her other friends, Mrs. Warren was born here and educated in the local parochial schools. She was the daughter of Frank and Mary Steckline and was the wife of George B. Warren, a Spanish War veteran.

Her entire life was devoted to the rehabilitation of veterans which work she accomplished through membership in many organizations.

Mrs. Warren was past chaplain of the 8 and 40; past president of the Admiral R. E. Coontz Chapter of the American War Mothers; past State treasurer of the District of Columbia State Chapter of the American War Mothers; president of the hospital guild of the Knights of St. John; financial secretary for the last 14 years of the Immaculate Conception Auxiliary No. 169; rehabilitation worker with the Mt. Alto Hospital; rehabilitation officer of the Veterans Administration Facility at Perry Point, Md., and color-bearer of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Warren is survived by two brothers, Joseph Steckline and John Steckline of this city; and two sisters, Mrs. Francis J. Wilson of California and Mrs. Thomas Vessels of Clinton, Md.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at the St. Matthews Cathedral. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The beautiful, but not so mental, Miss Duffy has removed the mothballs and mousetraps from the cash register.

That peerless exponent of the King's English, as it is spoke in Brooklyn, Archie, has taken the nails out of the swinging doors.

Eddie Green, the bouncer and man-of-all-work—and a comical fellow—has bought a new mop and broom to clean up as best he can.

And Duffy, himself, is back home from vacation.

And that's all that's needed to announce, in short, that "Duffy's Tavern" reopens over WJSV and the Columbia network at 7:30 tonight, to keep its doors open for the remainder of the fall and winter.

After being off the air for the summer, the comedy and variety series return to the air with virtually the same array of talent as before. Ed Gardner, as Archie, stars as the loquacious host in the continuous absence of Duffy. Miss Duffy, however, will be ever present to trade quips with Archie and Eddie Green will be there to sweep up for the carriage trade which will visit at the Duffy bistro during the year. There will be music by John Kirby's Orchestra and a gentleman, name of John Reed King, will also be on hand to make sure the commercial announcements get their proper airing.

Archie says tonight's opening will be "a very auspicious occasion."

Contract Bridge

The doubleton lead is frequently employed to protect holdings in other suits which the player does not desire to lead, says Charles H. Goren, Philadelphia life master, and he gives this hand as an example:

♠KQ5
♣Q973

Against a spade contract Goren immediately rules out trumps and diamonds as opening leads and he considers the lead of a club from an unsupported queen unattractive. He recommends the lead of the heart nine, not with the hope of obtaining a third-round ruff but as an exit in order to wait or the other suits to be led by another player.

When Frank K. Perkins, of Boston, played today's hand at seven hearts, the doubleton opening did not help him any but he made the grand slam in spite of bad distribution. He started out to establish his second long suit, but switched to a semi-cross ruff when that plan failed.

Today's Hand

North and South Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠AK32 ♡K987 ♢2 ♣A1094
♠QJ108 765 ♡543 ♢9 ♣87	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠9 ♡2 ♢QJ854 3 ♣KQ652
	♠4 ♡AQJ106 ♢AK1076 ♣J3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	3♠	4♠	Pass
5♢	Pass	6♣	Pass
7♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 8♣.

The club opening was taken by dummy's ace and the singleton diamond returned to declarer's ace. A low diamond was led: West discarded a spade and Perkins ruffed on the board. He had hoped to establish the diamonds by ruffing two small ones, and the slam would have been easy if the adverse diamonds had split 4-3. When this plan failed South had to change his tactics and try to ruff all three of his low diamonds.

A heart was led to the ten in the closed hand and another small diamond ruffed in dummy. Declarer now had to risk the spade suit. He knew that West had long spades and that East was therefore short, but there was a chance East had two spades or if one spade also only one trump.

The ace and king of spades were cashed. South discarding a losing club, and East was unable to trump. Another spade was trumped by declarer and the last low diamond ruffed in the North hand. The fourth spade was played from dummy and trumped by South; the high hearts were led and the king of diamonds taken, declarer winning all thirteen tricks.

Note that Perkins's second play of the diamond suit was a low diamond, not the king, to safeguard the honor in the event either adversary held only one card of the suit and could trump.

The Young Republican Club of the District will hold its annual fall dance tomorrow at 10 p. m. at the Potomac Boat Club. Wirt Smith and Todd Alexander are in charge of arrangements.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Switch on the Tracks — BY MILTON CANIFF

MASTER JUDAS, WE SENT OUT SCOUTS TO LEARN THE SOURCE OF THE DUST CLOUD SIGHTED OFF THE ROAD! WE SAW ONLY SIGNS OF A DOUBLE RANK OF CAMELS AND MULES—GOING EAST!
PROBABLY A CARAVAN... THE LEADER SAW OUR DUST AND FEARED WE WERE TROOPS WHO WOULD SURELY TAKE HIS CARGO... SO HE SKIRTED AROUND US! ...I HARDLY THOUGHT RAVEN SHERMAN AND HER FRIENDS WOULD SURVIVE TO OFFER PURSUIT!
MEANWHILE:
THINK WE HAVE GONE FAR ENOUGH AROUND JUDAS' CAMP, RAVEN?
YES! WE'LL STOP HERE FOR THE NIGHT! THE MEN CAN REMOVE THE PADS AND SHOES FROM THE TRUCK TIRES!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

YOU'RE A FUNNY ONE, LEW!--PLAYING WITH KIDS--FLYING KITES ...AT YOUR AGE!
YOUR BOSS, TOM KANE, THE BOY EDITOR NEVER FRITTERS AWAY HIS TIME, DOES HE?
WHY DO YOU MENTION MR. KANE?
NOW DON'T TRY TO TELL ME YOU DIDN'T SEE THE LOOK ON HIS PUSS WHEN YOU STROLLED OUT WITH ME THIS AFTERNOON!
NONSENSE! THERE'S NOTHING BUT PRINTER'S INK IN HIS ARTERIES!... SAY! WHAT ARE THESE, ANYWAY?
BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS
DALE
I SUPPOSE ONE OF THOSE PSYCHO-ANALYSTS COULD MAKE SOMETHING OUT OF MY DOODLING ...THE OLD ETERNAL TRIANGLE ...TWO MEN AND A GIRL?

MICKEY FINN — Stepping Out! — BY LANK LEONARD

OH, YES, MICKEY! ALWAYS WHEN SHE'S HAVING GUESTS FOR DINNER!
HERE'S ANDY DRIVING UP NOW!
G-GOSH, ANDY—I-I'M GONNA FEEL OUT OF PLACE—M-MY SUIT EVEN NEEDS PRES—
FORGET IT, MICKEY—YOUR SUIT IS OKAY! WELL, SUPPOSE WE GET STARTED, THERE'LL BE COCKTAILS BEFORE DINNER, YOU KNOW!
BOY-O-BOY! WHAT A SWELL CAR!
IT'S NOT MINE, MICKEY! KEN CUTTING IS JUST LETTING ME USE IT! THEY'VE GOT FOUR OR FIVE!
GEE—THIS IS SOME PLACE, ANDY! THEY MUST BE AWFUL RICH!
THEY'VE GOT A FEW DOLLARS, MICKEY—KEN IS PRESIDENT OF THE CUTTING STEEL CORPORATION!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Problem Child — BY FRANK MARTINEK

NOTHING.
SHE HAS INDEED STRANGE SUPERNATURAL POWERS...THAT I BELIEVE. BUT SHE IS ALOOF--UNFRIENDLY. LIKE TOO MANY OF THE CONQUERED ONES SHE WILL NOT CO-OPERATE.
IMAGINE! SINCE HER CAPTURE SHE HAS SEEMED TO REGARD ME AND MY AGENTS AS "BAD PEOPLE!"
SMART GIRL, IF YOU ASK ME!
SHE ACTED FRIENDLY ENOUGH TOWARD RED AND MYSELF, BY GEORGE! I WONDER IF SHE MIGHT BRING HER UNKNOWN GENIUS TO BEAR FOR AMERICA!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

WELL, PRINCESS, YOURS AND CAP'N TRAWLER'S SUSPICIONS WERE CORRECT---I AM A SMUGGLER!
RIGHT ME FINE BUCKO!--AN' YE CAN TELL THAT TO THE FEDERAL AUTHORITIES!
THEY ALREADY KNOW IT--UNOFFICIALLY! I'M DOING IT FOR THEM, STRICTLY UNDER COVER! YOU SEE, IN DEFENSE WORK, WE BADLY NEED INDUSTRIAL DIAMONDS, BORED TO DRAW VERY DELICATE WIRE THROUGH--LIKE TUNGSTEN FILAMENTS!
BUT THE SECRET OF BORING THESE DIAMONDS HAS BEEN HANDED DOWN FOR GENERATIONS IN ONE FAMILY--AND THAT FAMILY IS IN AN INVADED AND OCCUPIED COUNTRY IN EUROPE!
THOSE PEOPLE WERE EAGER TO SUPPLY US WITH BORED DIAMONDS--BUT A GOVERNMENT CAN'T GO IN FOR SMUGGLING! HOWEVER A PRIVATE CITIZEN CAN!--AND THAT'S WHAT I'VE BEEN DOING!
THEN YOU WEREN'T REALLY A-- CROOK!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

WHILE THE MYSTERY GIRL PLEADS WITH INU NOT TO LEAD HIS HARPOONING ESKIMOS AGAINST THE OIL-HUNTERS, NELLO IS PREPARED TO MEET THIS ATTACK WITH MACHINE-GUNS.
DO YOU HAVE TO USE SO MUCH DYNAMITE FOR YOUR SEISMOGRAPHIC SOUNDINGS, MR. NELLO?
YEP, KING! THIS GROUND IS FROZEN AND WILL HAVE TO BE MANY CHARGES TO CHART THE OIL-BEARING FORMATIONS.
WOW! IT WON'T TAKE MANY OF THOSE TO STAMPEDE THE MUSK-OXEN!
A STAMPEDE IS CERTAIN TO BRING ON AN ATTACK BY THE HAIR-RAISING ESKIMOS!
